3,000 TROOPS OPEN REVOLT AGAINST SPAIN

STRICT CENSORSHIP IS QUICKLY IMPOSED

Revolution Reported to Be Spreading to Other Towns in North.

MAJ. RAMON FRANCO.

Madrid, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Military revolt, long expected in Spain as the result of political dissension, broke out today at Jaca, near the French frontier. At least 3,000 troops there rebelled, turned their guns on the town and defied the government of Premier Damaso Berenguer.

Tonight, with a strict censorship imposed throughout the country, no authentic account of the revolt could be obtained here. The premier, after an emergency meeting of the cabinet, announced that the situation was in hand and that the rebels were fleeing to the French border, 30 miles away.

In the meantime, various unconfirmed rumors reaching Madrid characterized the revolt as important and said Maj. Ramon Franco, Spanish "ace" aviator, who was recently imprisoned for disobedience but escaped, was one of the leaders.

Revolt Reported Spreading.

The garrison at Jaca, said to be one of the strongest fortresses in northern Spain, was variously estimated at from 3,000 to 5,000 infantrymen and artillerymen. Jaca is in high country near the Pyrenees and commands the base of one of the passes into France.

It was reported here late tonight that the military revolt at Jaca was spreading to other towns and that the garrison at Vigo had joined the movement.

One report here was that the Jaca rebellion originated with 200 men here commanded by Col. Mangada and Capt. Galan. The latter was implicated in another revolt a short time ago.

Hardly had word of the revolt been received at Madrid than every military establishment in the north was active. Troop trains were rushed toward Jaca and a squadron of fighting planes, under one of the highest officers in the air service, was ordered to the frontier.

Ready for Weeks.

Censorship was immediately established and even the most harmless messages were subject to delay or suppression. At first, persons in Madrid were able to reach points outside of the country by telephone, but this also was subject to censorship and calls were interrupted or cancelled without warning.

Rumors that all was not right in the provinces had been reaching Madrid for weeks, and the government was ready with an organized plan to cope with the emergency. Thousands of troops were en route to Jaca within a few hours after the first signal of trouble.

Officials here gave out little news, and there was no means of determining whether blood had actually been split. It was known, however, that the rebels, after turning the guns of the fortress on Jaca, had established a base in the town.

Believed Holding Garrison.

Bayonne, France, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Reports reaching here from Spain tonight indicated that rebel troops were holding Jaca. Although there was an announcement from Madrid that the troops were fleeing into France, this could not be confirmed at French border points tonight.

Paris, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—French military men said tonight that Spanish soldiers who rebelled at Jaca chose their spot admirably. They described Jaca as one of the strongest fortresses of Europe, known among soldiers as the Verdun of Spain.

Should the rebels succeed in establishing a powerful base at Jaca they would command practically two-

CUBAN CENSORSHIP AGAIN PUT IN FORCE

U. S. NOT TO INTERFERE

Havana, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The second time since November congressional elections censorship on all forms of communications entering or leaving Cuba was imposed today. It was the first outward sign the republic was given that constitutional guarantees, declared suspended yesterday afternoon by presidential decree, actually had been withdrawn throughout the island.

Imposition of censorship represented another drastic step by President Machado to extinguish the sparks of political discontent, which have threatened to burst into a devastating flame.

The censorship may continue in force until well toward the middle of February, when the 60-day authorization granted the president by congress will expire. The suspension of guarantee affects six articles of the Cuban constitution.

Inviolability of the home, freedom of speech, right to hearing within 24 hours after arrest, confidence of mail and private documents, privilege of changing residence at will, and right of assembly are removed from those living in Cuba.

While President Machado was taking these drastic steps to keep down revolt against his administration and insure order during the tourist season, which is one of Cuba's leading businesses, opposition circles were busy circulating a fresh series of manifestos in criticism of Machado's handling of the situation. Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim, who advised the American State Department that the disorders here were principally economic in nature and bore little political significance, is being made the target of some of these manifestos.

(Associated Press.)

With only the most meager reports from the American Embassy at Havana available, State Department officials last night were awaiting word of any further developments which might bring a crystallization of the situation there.

Breaking a two-day silence by department officials on the political turbulence in the island republic, Secretary Stimson reiterated his policy of nonintervention by the United States in the internal affairs of Cuba. This policy was announced some time ago when the situation appeared to be becoming acute. It is the so-

SECOND HOOVER ASSAULT ON AID SEEN IN SENATE

Truce Believed Gained by G. O. P. Chiefs May Be Brief.

HOUSE STUDYING WAY TO PLEASE PRESIDENT

Relief Measure Is Sent to Conference; May Cut Authority.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Senate Republican leaders, exercised over President Hoover's blast of last Tuesday and reports that he was on the verge of letting go another one, apparently succeeded yesterday in restoring a working arrangement with the White House, at least for the present.

The word has gone out rather strongly that Mr. Hoover does not intend to sit idly by now and permit himself to be denounced for things which he considers he can not do, and if the occasion arises he will not hesitate to speak again in the same vein. There is every reason to believe that he had considered yesterday the occasion for another statement, but reluctantly yielded to the importunities of Vice President Curtis, Senator Watson, and finally his close friend, Senator Walcott.

Bill to Conference.

In the meantime the House sent the $118,000,000 public works bill to conference, and the leaders mulled over just how it is best to approach the proposition of standing by Mr. Hoover on the drought-relief bill.

In addition to boosting the public works appropriation by $8,000,000, over the House bill, the Senate made one important change whereby the President must spend the money within the allocations prescribed, that is, $30,000,000 for Federal road aid and so forth. The President wants this fund in a lump sum so he can swap it back and forth from rivers and harbor improvements to road building and public buildings, in the way he believed would best facilitate the relief of unemployment. He thinks that the manner in which the Senate has written the bill will not lend itself to unemployment relief as well as the blanket sum, but there are no indications that he intends to make an issue over it.

Drought Bill Fight Seen.

It is doubtful if his promise to the Senate leaders embraces calling off his fight on the drought relief bill. This matter is bound to come to a head again. The House leaders hope to get to it Monday and their efforts in the meantime are to work out a way by which only the $30,000,000 appropriation for crop rehabilitation will be presented to the House. They are afraid that if the $60,000,000 appropriation extending the relief to loans for destitute farmers appears before the House they will not be able to hold their forces in line.

But assuming the House passes the $30,000,000 bill, a clash with the Senate will come in conference, and while heretofore the Senate has usually backed down in matters of this kind, the present issue has so ramified that it can not gracefully do so in this case. The President's statement of Tuesday has put not only the Democrats and Progressives in a hole, but the regulars as well. The truth of the matter is that the Senate has probably never acted so sincerely and certainly no more unanimously than when it passed the $60,000,000 bill. While the President had said he only wanted $25,000,000, no one realized he felt so keenly about the matter.

Forced to Retain Stand.

And when the figure was boosted to $60,000,000, no attempt was made to ballyhoo it or to capitalize the fact that the Senate had boosted Mr. Hoover's figure by $35,000,000. Not

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Three or four years ago there began considerable discussion of the practice of installment sales. While the system was by no means new it was then being expanded into new fields with extraordinary rapidity and assumed such large proportions that it aroused considerable alarm. Some thought it might be undermining our whole credit structure. No definite and separate figures were obtainable as to the extent to which banks were involved and this raised the question of what funds were tied up in it. The developments of the past few months have demonstrated that there was nothing unsound in this movement. The percentage of losses has been insignificant. Probably of all commercial credits this form stands well toward the top in satisfactory results, because installments have been paid. Most of the fear of it as a breeder of extravagance has been dispelled. Properly conducted it is no more subject to that criticism than the open account.

But the great lesson is the honesty and integrity of the people. The consuming public pay their debts. It is another powerful demonstration of the justification of faith and confidence in each other.

DOUMERGUE FORCES CRISIS SUBMISSION

MAY BE READY TODAY

Paris, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—President Doumergue today took the big stick of parliamentary dissolution out of the glass case, in which it has been since 1877, and the warring political parties of the Chamber of Deputies, suddenly pacified, agreed to grant at least a measure of support to a cabinet headed by Senator Theodore Steeg.

As a result, M. Steeg told the president tonight he would probably have his ministry ready for presentation at the Elysee Palace tomorrow forenoon.

It was the eighth day of the ministerial crisis, brought about by the overthrow of the Tardieu government in the Senate December 4, and the fifteenth cabinet resignation in the seven years of Doumergue's presidency.

Until this afternoon it appeared that no solution could be found and parliamentarians seriously considered possibility of a dissolution and new elections.

It was here that the president, in no way overstepping the limits of the constitution, let it be conveyed quietly to the leaders of the thirteen groups in the chamber that, unless a cabinet were formed tonight, he might have to "take definite measures." This was interpreted as meaning Parliament would be dissolved under article 5 of the constitution.

Within an hour, the leaders of three small groups of the center and right-center called on M. Steeg and informed him they were ready to cooperate, provided the radicals would lift their exclusion veto against members of the right parties. The veto was provisionally lifted and M. Steeg set about the formation of his ministry.

The most important portfolios were said to have been distributed, M,

TWO OFFICIALS HELD IN $8,000,000 FRAUD

Confessions Allegedly Made by Los Angeles Building and Loan Men.

ACTS COVERED 5 YEARS

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Rupert L. Fleury, vice president of the Guaranty Building & Loan Association, which collapsed after Gilbert H. Beesemyer, 45-year-old general manager, had allegedly confessed an $8,000,000 embezzlement, was arrested late today after admitting to the grand jury he had known for some time of Beesemyer's acts.

Fleury told the grand jury, members said, he had known of the defalcations for five years. He was ordered confined in the county jail.

"I knew of his doings," he said, "but I couldn't tell on him. Loyalty to Beesemyer kept my lips sealed. But I did not get a penny of it."

Fleury's statement was made a short time after Beesemyer had been indicted for embezzlement. The crash of the loan company came early today when confronted by the board of directors and State Building and Loan Commissioner Charles A. Whitemore, Beesemyer allegedly made a signed confession that he had been misappropriating money over several years. The money, he was quoted as saying, was used to finance other ventures, and $400,000 was for personal loans to friends for which he took unsecured notes.

Behind Beesemyer lay a wrecked investment house, in which some 25,000 depositors had put more than $17,000,000, and a confession to five years of trickery in a futile attempt to build a fortune.

As though ridding himself of a haunting secret, Beesemyer related a story of investment in a department store, oil wells and the personal notes of friends. At its close, the county grand jury indicted him for embezzlement and announced that Charles Whitmore, State building and

Mr. Average Man went to bed last night full of Christmas spirit. He and Mrs. A. M. had just finished wrapping the packages for friends and relatives. Bits of string, pieces of gay-colored paper and seals were scattered about the house, but both of them were joyful. Christmas was near. They looked forward to the cheerfulness which would mark the receipt of their gifts and to the happiness they anticipated as kind friends remembered them.

Their children were asleep in their little beds, dreaming blissfully of Santa Claus and his annual visit. And Mr. and Mrs. A. M. were content because they knew of secret packages hidden away in cupboards and closets which on Christmas Eve would be moved out under the tree, placed in stockings, and otherwise arranged to furnish the Christmas morning surprise for the youngsters.

But Mr. Average Man did not sleep well in spite of all his contentedness. He dreamed, and the dream was not a pleasant one. In his sleep he saw a group of children, approximately the age of his own boys and girls. They had risen early on Christmas morning and dashed from their beds to the living room of their little home, anxious to see what Santa had left for them.

Their arrival in the living room, however, was sad to behold. No

NATION AWAITS CHARITY CLASH OF ARMY-NAVY

MIDDIES ARE READY, AFTER DRILL IN RAIN

By TED VOSBURGH.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—A unique athletic episode marking the greatest service ever rendered by the game of college football to the cause of charity will bring together football teams of the United States Naval and Military Academies at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow before a crowd estimated at 70,000.

The ranks of those who will flock to the Yankee Stadium to see the ancient rivalry renewed in the interests of the public good, after a three-year break, were swelled by a last-minute ticket boom which lasted all day despite dismal weather. The stadium seats 78,000, however, and the game is likely to be several thousand short of a sell-out.

No rain is predicted for tomorrow, but the final workouts of the Army and Navy squads were held on wet fields in a steady drizzle.

The Navy worked out on the scene of the battle, while the Army ran through its final drill in the comparative obscurity of Briarcliff, a few miles outside the city, where the squad is bivouacked.

Athletes on Edge.

Although light work was in order for both Middies and Cadets, the athletes moved with a snap and vigor that forecast one of the hardest fought games in Army-Navy annals.

Not since 1927 have the Army and Navy met on the gridiron, and all the pent-up rivalry of three years will be released at the moment of the kick-off.

Neither Coach Bill Ingram, of the Navy, nor Ralph Sasse of the Army, was able to announce a definite starting line-up, both back fields remaining in doubt until shortly before game time.

Coach Sasse said his two first-string half backs, Stecker and Prentzel, were still suffering from injuries and that their places in the starting line-up might be taken by Fields and Herb. Stecker is regarded as the Army's best, passer and Frentzel is the leading punter.

Coach Ingram's problem was a strategic one. He was still undecided as to whether to start Kirn and Hurley, who have been his most effective backs, or to hold one or both in reserve.

Navy May Shoot Works.

Close followers of the Navy predicted that if the Middies' starting line-up contains both of these speed boys it will indicate that Ingram has determined to shoot the works at the outset in the hope of getting the jump and piling up a winning margin in the first few minutes.

Kirn came into his own in the final game of last season and Hurley, a New York boy, who lives only a few blocks from the scene of tomorrow's game, flashed into prominence this season in a fashion as sensational, emerging from the "B" squad to play a great game in the one-sided victory over Pennsylvania last week. Hurley's usual assignment is as Kirn's understudy.

Ingram refrained from running through formations in today's drill, which consisted of plenty of passing for the backs and charging for the line.

Capt. Bowstrom, husky tackle, does the long distance kicking, while the bull back, Hagberg, is slated to punt when the strategy of the moment calls for a well-placed boot out of bounds.

Up at Briarcliff, the Army athletes revelled in the luxury of staying in bed until 9 a. m., which is the middle

HOUSE BEATS WOOD'S PLAN TO LIMIT PAY

REPRESENTATIVE LAGUARDIA.

LAGUARDIA LEADS EMPLOYES' BATTLE

Defeat Is Taken to Mean That Efforts for Passage Are to Be Abandoned.

The House yesterday repudiated the Wood amendment prohibiting any increases in pay for Federal employes in the next fiscal year.

The repudiation was voted despite pleas of Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, chairman of the appropriations committee, and Representative Louis Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, that the House remain firm against the deluge of propaganda which had been set upon them by Luther Steward and Gertrude McNally, leaders of the Federal employes.

On a record vote demanded by Representative Fiorella LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, leader of the battle for the employes since the first Wood amendment made its appearance in the Postoffice-Treasury appropriation bill last week, the House struck out the amendment, 169 to 115.

Switch of 103 Votes.

This was a switch of 103 votes on the amendment since the Postoffice-Treasury bill was passed and sent to the Senate last week. In that first fight, LaGuardia and the employes lost by a vote of 130 to 90.

Defeat of the Wood amendment yesterday was taken by its supporters and opponents to end efforts for its insertions in other appropriations bills yet to be reported.

Representative JoJhn Q. Tilson (Republican), of Connecticut, Republican leader, said after the fight yesterday that he believed the LaGuardia victory would definitely halt efforts to force acceptance of the amendment. He made it clear, however, that this was his personal opinion, and was not based on conferences with members of the appropriations committee.

Amounts Not Replaced.

Although it eliminated the Wood amendment, the House did not put back intothe Interior bill the amounts the appropriations committee had cut out of the estimates to bring underaverages salaries partially up to the point provided by law.

Hopes of Government employes that Congress will aprove the recommendations of President Hoover and the Budget Bureau tha this be done, rests with the Senate. Although the Wood amendment sems definitely eliminated by the House, seemingly it is just as definite that the appropriations committee will continue to cut out of estimates the increases asked by the President for salaries next year.

The President's program calls for bringing the under-average salaries in various departments up to par over a three-year period. About 30 per cent fo the cost of this, $4,264,000, was provided in the budget. The Senate appropriations committee, in its report to the Senate on the Postoffice-Treasury bill, not only eliminated the Wood amendment from that measure, but also put back the $1,178,000 for salary increases for these departments which had ben cut out by the House.

Bill Expected to Pass.

It is expected the Senate will pass the bill carrying this amount, and also will put back in each bill the varying amounts estimated for each department for that purpose.

The Interior bill as passed by the House yesterday carried a total of $368,584,106, which was an increase of $5,842,482 over current appropriations. An appropriation of $15,000,000 was provided for Boulder Dam, despite an effort by Representative Douglas (Democrat), of Arizona, to have it stricken out.

The fight over the Wood amendment was the major contest. It was launched by Representative LaGuardia immediately the section, the last in the bill, was reached. Its

PRESIDENT ATTENDS OVERMAN'S FUNERAL

Joins Other High Officers of Government in Tribute to North Carolinian.

RITES HELD IN CAPITOL

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover, members of the Supreme Court, and diplomatic officers of more than ten nations joined the Senate and House last night in paying homage to one of North Carolina's two grand old men in the Senate—Lee S. Overman, who died early yesterday after a brief illness.

With almost 28 years of continuous service behind him, the body of the 78-year-old legislator lay in a gray flower-covered casket in the Senate chamber as high officials, friends and associates listened with bowed heads to a funeral oration by the Rev. E. B. Phillips, chaplain of the Senate.

After the ceremony the casket was taken to Union Station to await departure of the funeral party shortly before midnight for Salisbury, N. C., the dead senator's home, where burial will take place at 3 p. m. today.

To the right of the center aisle, in the front row, sat Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Overman and her three daughters, in mourning, were seated beside the casket in front of the Supreme Court members.

Vice President Curtis opened the services with a brief tribute:

"We all loved him and we all mourn his passing."

The Rev. Dr. Phillips then read the funeral service based on the new book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal Church, and including recitations of two hymns, a poem, excerpts from the Scriptures, and extemporaneous prayer.

Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, North Carolina's other veteran senator, sat bowed with grief over the death of his beloved friend and colleague. Beside him were the party leaders, Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Robinson, of Arkansas. Many members of the House also sat in the stilled, palm-decorated chamber.

Senator Simmons, who outranked his colleague by only two years in point of service, and who retires next March 4, was a member of the congressional funeral committee, but Dr. Sterling Ruffin, his physician, advised him not to make the trip to North Carolina for fear it would be "extremely dangerous to his health."

The Senate interstate commerce committee yesterday completed its investigation of the qualifications of the five men nominated to the power commission as F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the commission, announced he would relinquish his post because of criticism by members of the committee.

Opposition had formed against at least two of the five nominees when the hearings closed with Frank R. McNinch, of North Carolina, characterizing himself as a "poor man's lawyer," who had no connection with the power interests and who had only moved to strike out the section. Representative Cramton wanted debate limited to 10 minutes, but several members declared they wanted to speak and after various allotments of time had been made to members, and 30 minutes had been agreed on, Representative Edgard Howard (Democrat), of Nebraska, raised a laugh when he asked, "How about me?"

LaGuardia First to Speak.

Representative LaGuardia was first to take the floor. He declared that the Wood amendment had incorrectly become known as a move to prevent increases in salaries of Government employes.

"That is wrong," hes aid. "The amendment will mean decreases in many cases. The chairman of the appropriations committee made the astounding statement that the cost of living had gone down 30 per cent. Has rent gone down? Have clothes, food, and other necessaries? The cost of living in Washington certainly has not gone down.

Mr. Wood made reference to the large number of Government employes getting $4,000 or more a year. Let me tell you that in this bill now under consideration there are 1,181 employes in the District provided for at salaries of $1,620 and less. That this same bill provides salaries of $1,620 and less for $5,868 Federal workers in the field.

"This is not an administration matter. The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury himself asked the Senate committee to strike this amendment out of the Postoffice-Treasury bill and the committee did it. If the gentleman wants to be conservative let him come on and I'll show him how to be conservative but this is not being conservative."

Representative Carroll L. Beedy (Republican), of Maine, said he had been confused on reading the amendment at first and that he would still be with Chairman Wood if the effect was to eliminate proposed increases, but "we pay our Federal employes little enough, and as I understand this amendment, it would break the morale of our service and I will have to vote against it."

Living Cost High.

"There is no place in the country where the cost of living is higher than in Washington," Representative James A. Frear (Republican), of Wisconsin, declared. "We are voting $30,000,000 in the naval bill, $40,000,000 for reconditioning vessels and other amounts. I can't believe the House will support this amendment when it understands it. I sat in this room when we voted to raise our own salaries from $7,500 to $10,000, and although I didn't vote for the raise I did take the money. There are 140,000 Government employes who are below the $1,600 salary limit. We can't sit here and deny these people this simple justice."

Representative Wood took the floor after Representative LaFayette L. Patterson (Democrat), of Alabama, had declared that elimination of the amendment would not be against the farmers but would be "giving these employes what they are entitled to."

Says Committee Approved.

"I'm not trying to evade responsibility for this amendment which has come to be known as the Wood amendment," the committee chairman began. "But the entire committee, with two exceptions, approved it. Much has been said here and in the press that I have been defying the President and the Budget Bureau. Why, $23,000,000 has been cut out of the estimates for this department.

"Are we to be governed entirely by recommendations of the Budget Bureau and the President? Then we might as well adjourn this Congress.

"I know you have been belabored to vote against this amendment. I believe we should represent the 120,000,000 pople out in the country who are not represented by organizations. Luther Steward and Gertrude McNally are responsible for this deluge on members, and many of them may be coerced.

Union Termed Demoralizing.

"This union, run by Luther Steward and Gertrude McNally, is more demoralizing in one day than the passage of this so-called Wood amendment would be in all time.

"Why, in every department but one agents of the union go about collecting dues during office hours, on Government time. When the Bureau of Engraving put a stop to that there was a howl.

"I serve notice on every other department that they had better stop it.

"Every newspaper in Washington is against this amendment. Why? Because if the employes get increases it will mean more money for them, more advertising. If this was for persons outside the District you wouldn't hear about it. Let's wait a little while. These people are working and getting paid now. I'm speaking for 4,000,000 persons unemployed."

Cramton Closes Debate.

Representative Cramton closed the debate. His was a plea for vindication of the loyal and efficient chairman of the appropriations committee. To strike out the amendment wouldn't be an orderly way of proceeding, it would be better to let the matter go to conference between the Senate and House. The chairman had done good work under great pressure. The House should let him know it appreciated his service, Mr. Cramton said.

Then began the series of votes, the result of which had been forecast earlier in the day, when members announced their desire to eulogize Mr. Wood, and Mr. Tilson took the floor for a few minutes to extoll the Indianan.

There were 83 votes with Mr. La Guardia to strike out the Wood amnedment to 77 for the amendment. Mr. Cramton demanded tellers, and members filed down the aisles to be counted by Messrs. Cramton and La Guardia. As the last filed past, Mr. Cramton turned and announced happily to the chair that the vote was 88 to 83, but Mr. La Guardia was on his toes with the declaration, "One more, Mr. Chairman," making the vote 89 to 88. Representative Philip D. Swing (Republican), of California, had entered the chamber and stepped past Mr. La Guardia just in time.

All of this was done in committee of the whole House on the stats of the Union. The committee then rose, as the saying is, and the procedure goes, and reported to the House what it had done, and Representative Cramton asked for a separate vote on the Wood amendment.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth, who had taken the chair, ruled that the noes apparently had the decision, but Mr. La Guardia, evidently startled by Mr. Cramton's action, called for a division, and the result was 82 to 87, which meant that the Wood amendment stayed in the bill. Thereupon Mr. La Guardia called for the ayes and nays, and the amendment was stricken out, several members voting for the employes on the last and only record vote, who had voted against them in previous votes, among them being Mrs. Effie Wingo (Democrat), of Arkansas. Mrs. Wingo voted for the employes on the last vote, although every time theretofore she had voted against them.

DISCREPANCY BARED IN SHEPARD STORIES

GIRL'S STORY FINISHED

Kansas City, Kan., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—A statement alleged to have been made to Department of Justice agents by Maj. Charles A. Shepard prior to his arrest for the alleged poison murder of his wife was produced against him in his murder trial late today as Miss Grace Brandon, the Government's star witness, left the witness stand after two days of testimony.

In the statement Shepard was quoted as saying he had never discussed the subject of divorce with his wife and that nobody had ever come into their lives to cast a shadow on their marital felicity. Further, the army medical officer was quoted as declaring he never had obtained any bichloride of mercury from the dispensary at Fort Riley, Kan., where Mrs. Shepard died in 1929.

This statement was in direct conflict with testimony in the trial by the Fort Riley army pharmacist that Shepard drew supplies of mercury on several occasions about the time Mrs. Shepard was stricken with the fatal illness.

Illicit Romance Bared.

The alleged statements concerning Shepard's marital relations conflicted with trial testimony of Miss Brandon that Shepard fell in love with her some months before the death of his wife. The trial records also contained a letter identified as having been written by Shepard a few weeks before his wife became ill, advising Miss Brandon that Mrs. Shepard had refused to give him a divorce.

Mrs. James Leader, Government stenographer, read the purported statement from notes which she testified were taken when Shepard was questioned by Federal agents at Denver March 17, 1930, a few hours before he was placed under arrest.

Only half of the statement had been completed when court was adjourned. Shepard was quoted as saying his wife drank heavily and that he had tried to dissuade her.

Describing the evening of May 20, 1929, when she became ill in their quarters at Fort Riley, Shepard was quoted as saying Mrs. Shepard collapsed after eating some sandwiches which she had purchased.

Explains Cremation.

The statement said he decided she had drunk some "bad liquor." In answer to a question, Shepard was represented as saying he did not know whether she had actually taken a drink.

Shepard was quoted as saying his wife did not accompany him to San Antonio, Tex., in the fall of 1928, when he went there to take a flight surgeon's course at Brooks Field, because she believed her presence might interfere with his studies. It was on this visit to San Antonio that Shepard became acquainted with Miss Brandon, to whom he became engaged to marry after his wife's death.

The defendant further was represented as saying that his wife's body was cremated at Los Angeles at the suggestion of her brother, Curtis McCoskey, because Mrs. Shepard had expressed such a wish.

The statement was introduced over the objections of the defense.

Girl Denies Coercion.

The girl denied she was coerced by the agents.

Harry S. Class, a defense attorney, asked whether R. J. Caffrey and John D. Glass, agents of the Department of Justice, had told her how to testify.

"They did just what you are doing," she replied. "They asked me questions and tried to tangle me up."

Class brought out that the defense never had been allowed to question the girl before the trial. Aked about this, she said:

"The agents told me if I did you would turn around and make a liar out of me. It was impressed on me several times.

"This witness," Class told the Court, "has been guarded day and night and is not a free agent." He said Government agents had attempted to "intimidate and cow her."

Most of the day was spent with the defense reading love letters written by Miss Brandon to Maj. Shepard. She wept at times and turned her face away from the spectators, resting her blonde head on her hands or inclining it on Judge Richard J. Hopkins' bench.

BABY'S BODY TAKEN FROM INCINERATOR

Janitor Finds the Charred Remains of New-Born in Rubbish.

POLICE SCENT MYSTERY

Scenting possibility of murder, police detectives last night investigated the mysterious discovery of a baby's charred body in the incinerator of the Greystone apartments, 815 Eighteenth street northwest.

The infant's size was that of a normal baby at birth, but the body was so charred that Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt was unable to determine whether it had been stillborn or had breathed. Neither could he determine the sex or race, although he expressed the opinion that it was a white child.

An autopsy to be held at the morgue this morning, he said, would determine whether the baby had been alive at birth.

The body was found by Frederick Lewis, colored janitor, when he was cleaning the incinerator about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Apparently, it had been dumped down the chute after 10 o'clock in the morning, as Lewis said he had removed all trash from the incinerator at that hour.

When the janitor raked up the gruesome find on the furnace room floor, he hastily summoned Mrs. N. L. Botsford, wife of the apartment manager. Mrs. Botsford called her husband, who reported the case to the Third Precinct.

Coroner Nevitt arrived shortly afterward and ordered the body sent to the morgue. Detective Sergt. Joseph F. Waldron, of the homicide squad, was assigned to the investigation, the scope of which will depend largely on the result of the autopsy.

Mrs. Botsford could advance no theory concerning the case, saying that she knew no one in the apartment who was expecting a birth.

Police Asked to Seek Man.

Washington police have been asked to aid in a search for H. L. Legette, 33 years old, who has been missing from his home in Marion, S. C., since October 13. His wife, Mrs. Mary Legette, told police in a letter that the husband left the home to go to a nearby store to purchase groceries, and has not been seen since.

BUILDINGS TO MAKE JOBS FOR HUNDREDS

NINE HOUSES STARTED

The Cafritz Construction Co., dealt a blow against unemployment yesterday by announcing the beginning of work on a new residential development on property owned by it in the Petworth section, including 86 houses, providing for immediate employment of 400 men and of 600 men at peak of operations.

At the first of the year, officials said they expect to begin building an eight-story brick and concrete apartment house at Connecticut avenue and California street northwest, which will provide work for an additional 600 men. This building will be ten stories high and will contain 156 units subdivided into approximately 560 rooms. Its estimated cost is $1,000,000.

Work on the first nine houses in the Petworth project has started and application for permits to construct twelve more was filed yesterday with District Building Inspector Oehmann. Officials said it had been prompted by a real demand for the homes, all of which must be completed by April 1.

The houses will be of both row and detached type, brick structure and will have an average individual cost of $10,000, representing a total expenditure of more than $860,000. Besides erecting the houses, the Cafritz firm will provide street and alley improvement for the dwellings which will extend on Fourth from Decatur to Hamilton street northwest, on Farragut from Kansas avenue to Third street, on Farragut between Fourth and Fifth streets, on Gallatin from Kansas avenue to Third street, on Delafield from Third to Fourth streets and on Emerson from Kansas avenue to Third street.

Additional impetus will be given to local employment by the building at 4000 Cathedral avenue of the third unit of the Westchester Development Corporation's project. Application to build this eight-story structure was also filed yesterday and its estimated cost was given as $3,000,000.

LEAGUE'S SECURITY PROBLEM STRESSED

TRAINED CIVILIANS CITED

London, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The problem of security may be a crucial one in th ecoming League of Nations disarmament conference, Viscount Cecil, fresh from the preparatroy commission's sessions at Geneva, told a meeting of the League of Nations Union today.

"There are many continental countries," he said, "which will agree to reduction of armaments only in proportion to the extent to which they are given security against attack.

"This may be the turning point in the failure or success of the disarmament conference. Every one should remember it and should not merely put it aside on the ground that there should be no more commitments."

Viscount Cecil, who was the British delegate to the preparatory disarmament conference, said it had been impossible to persuade the world to abolish conscription, and the only policy lfet was to limit it as far as possible.

"This we have done at Geneva," he said.

In regard to trained reserves, Viscount Cecil declared, "Once they've served with the colors, you can not limit them except by a miracle. You must first limit the number of men with the colors, and we have done that."

The principle of limitation of army material by limiting costs, as adopted at Geneva, was "the only effective way of securing limitation of materials," he said.

Viscount Cecil added that the size of this last problem si arising from the rapidity with which the mechanization of armies is taking place, declaring "unless we limit machines as well as men we may well find the limitation of armies largely illulsory."

NEW HOOVER FIGHT ON AID PLAN SEEN

COMPROMISE IS SOUGHT

a word, in fact, was said on the matter. It was passed without roll call.

Mr. Hoover's statement about "playing politics at the expense of human misery" was so all embracing, however, that it hit Republicans as well as Democrats. To save their face now, they must insist upon the $60,000,000 figure, and as a matter of fact they are making plans to combat Mr. Hoover's fight. One suggestion that has been made, and by a man most friendly to Mr. Hoover, is that John Barton Payne, chairman of American Red Cross, be called before the Senate agriculture committee, to testify just how far his organization can go toward relieving destitute families.

The President let it be known yesterday that he had just received renewed assurances from the Red Cross that it could do the work adequately, and also gratifying reports of progress it was already making.

Need Not Spend Money.

The senator who wants to question Judge Payne, as an example of the depth of feeling in this controversy with the President, has information that 229,000 families in 15 out of 22 States involved in the drought are destitute.

Senators who deprecate Mr. Hoover's making an issue out of the $60,000,000 sum point out that, of course, he does not have to spend one penny of it; that he is simply authorized to do so, and that if the Red Cross can do the work he would be fully justified in keeping the money in the Treasury.

Mr. Hoover's friends say it is not fair to put him in the position of withholding the money.

Another point at issue seems to be the introduction of the principle of the Government giving food relief, or doing work that has heretofore been done by charitable agencies. The bill would permit loaning money to the drought-stricken farmers, not only for food but for clothing and medical care.

Oppose Charity Move.

Majority Leader Tilson told the House that the loans were only a guise. The loans to farmers with which to rehabilitate their crops would probably be gotten back from their very next crops, he said, but the proposed loans for food, clothing and medical care were strictly charity.

"If charity is what we have in mind," he said, "then let us be honest with the people of the United States, with the taxpayers of the country, and admit that we propose to have the United States Government, whatever the implications and consequences, take over the work of charity hitherto assumed and well provided for by community effort and private contributions."

Unlike Mr. Tilson, Speaker Longworth is not yet prepared to pass on the merits of the proposition. With him it is more of a case of standing by his appropriations committee, or more important perhaps, the President.

Despite the truce between the Senate and the White House, the blood is likely to fly again before this matter is definitely settled.

Light Rate Hearing In January Likely

Ham Says Company Can Not Waive Right to Ten-Day Notice.

The public hearing on the rates of the Potomac Electric Power Co. for 1931 will probably be held early in January, it was indicated yesterday after William F. Ham, president of the company, had informed the Public Utilities Commission that it would not waive the ten days' notice of a complaint to which it is entitled.

The commission will probably decide on the date of the hearing on or about December 19, but even then it will have to wait at least ten days, as that much time is required to give proper notice to the public.

The letter from Mr. Ham to the commission called attention to the fact that no public hearings had heretofore been ordered since the consent decree was signed, and added: "Under all existing circumstances we regret that we can not see our way clear to waive the ten days' notice of intention to hold such a hearing to which we are entitled under the law."

School Addition Plans Approved.

AL CAPONE 'INVITED' INTO FEDERAL COURT

HIS BROTHER INDICTED

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Government started after the "big game" of the gangland preserves today.

Open season on the Capones was proclaimed from two sides, a Federal grand jury returning new indictments against Ralph, eldest of the four brothers, while public notice was served on his better-known brother that his presence was desired in Federal court Monday.

George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney, issued the invitation for "Scarface Al" to attend a "command audience" before Judge James H. Wilkerson at 10 a. m. next Monday.

Just what the city's "public enemy No. 1" will do about the summons was not known. His attorney professed to know nothing of his client's whereabouts. Within the fortnight Capone has been reported in Brooklyn and Florida, California and aboard a Chicago-bound train from the South.

"How can I get Mr. Capone in court by Monday?" asked Benjamin Epstein, the gang chief's lawyer.

The district attorney said he would ask for forfeiture of Capone's $5,000 bond, posted two years ago on a contempt of Federal court citation, if he failed to show up. And if he does—the fixing of a date in January for the delayed contempt trial was only one annoyance planned for him. His income taxes may come under official scrutiny at that time, and the police have waited weeks for an opportunity to serve one of the batch of vagrancy warrants issued by Judge John H. Lyle.

The contempt citation was a side issue of grand jury inquiries two years ago which touched on graft in the metropolis and alleged tax evasions, Capone, dallying at his Florida estate, sent word he was too ill to answer the subpena and waited several weeks before returning. Meanwhile, it was reported that Capone was attending races and was fishing on the Florida coast. Federal investigators gathered evidence for a contempt citation, charging he was well enough to come to court.

The gang chief furnished bond and was never called to trial. Meanwhile he served a year in a Philadelphia jail cell for carrying a concealed weapon.

Ralph Capone, already under a three-year prison sentence for evading income taxes, and free pending appeal, was indicted some time ago on a prohibition charge linked with operation of the Montmartre and Cotton Clubs in Cicero. Today the Federal grand jury returned a fresh indictment on the prohibition conspiracy charge, noting 400 alleged sales of liquor. With Ralph were indicted seventeen others, employes of the two resorts.

Jack Guzik, manager of Capone gambling interests, was convicted several weeks ago of short-changing the Income Tax Bureau.

For good measure, the Marines included in the consignment yesterday a number of Christmas trees to make possible Yuletide decorations in those homes which otherwise would be without them.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

WE can not get over the sneaking suspicion we have had about Mr. Amos W. W. Woodcock's talk with the convention of dry forces behind closed doors the other day.

Mr. Woodcock himself was responsible for the information later that he told these people that the Government would be able to handle commercial violations of prohibition. And one gets the impression that Mr. Woodcock was not hazarding a guess when he did this, but that he gave a very definite statement.

It so happens that the dry forces were engaged at the time in discussing the question of how they should proceed from now on in this controversy, whether their best strategy was to permit a referendum, or what they should do.

* * * *

IN this light, in this setting Mr. Woodcock appeared and to us seems to have said: "The thing you should do is to sit tight. We are going to get out of this fight all right."

Because before the convention was over all hands had agreed that there should be no more talk about a referendum, that, indeed, all the convention should do was to appoint a committee of twelve to look around and report what they found at some later date.

Even Dr. Clarence True Wilson, the sponsor of the referendum plan on the dry side, agreed that it should not now be done.

JUST why Mr. Woodcock should have gone before these drys, in serious deliberation over the future, and told them that prohibition after all is enforceable, that is, the commercial violations of it, is more than we can understand.

Because Mr. Woodcock has previously and repeatedly said that the Federal Government can not enforce the prohibition law, that it can only hope to deal with cases that come naturally under Federal jurisdiction, that the States themselves must look after enforcement within their borders.

In going before the assembled drys and saying what he did, he seems to have laid down the argument, advanced every time the prohibition agitation has ever become acute: "Let's try present conditions for a while longer. We have at last profited by our mistakes and are now prepared to enforce the law."

* * * *

WE may be wrong, but there is every suggestion that Mr. Woodcock's remarks were directed against any kind of a change; that they were an argument for the status quo.

And the status quo means, of course, a continuation of the controversy in politics, an issue for weak parties and weak men, who have no other leg on which to stand.

The good thing about that proposed referendum, and we believe the country would have voted dry, is that it would take prohibition for some time out of politics. Is it possible that some high Republican influences do not want it out—not until prosperity is restored as an issue, anyway?

agreed to accept the nomination as a "public duty."

Senator Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, announced he would oppose McNinch's confirmation, while several other committee members indicated they would oppose Marcel Garsaud, of Louisiana. The committee will vote on the nominations Monday.

In a letter to Chairman Couzens, of the committee, Mr. Bonner indicated his desire to leave the power commission and enter some other branch of the Government service. He protested against "an unwarranted attack" on him by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana. During the hearings Thursday Mr. Wheeler said a majority of the committee was opposed to Mr. Bonner's retention "because of his attitude toward awarding permits to power companies."

Declaring he welcomes honest criticism, Mr. Bonner said:

"I do not propose to pass unchallenged slanderous statements made behind the protective cloak of senatorial immunity."

"With all due respect I wish to protest this treatment and to advise Senator Wheeler that he need have no worry about my future service with the Federal Power Commission. I have no inclination whatever to be connected with an activity that is becoming a political football."

Senator Hawes' opposition to Mr. McNinch was that he was nominated as a Democrat, although he did not vote for Democratic congressional candidates in this year's elections and in 1928 led the anti-Smith movement in his State.

Mr. McNinch, questioned about charges he had not made a report of contributions to the anti-Smith movement in the presidential election, submitted a list of donations totaling $30,906, of which he said he could not report the original source of $6,000.

Mr. McNinch described himself as an "Independent Democrat," but Senator Hawes and other Democrats on the committee said they did not believe his appointment complied with the spirit of the law, which provides that no more than three members of the commission shall be of the majority party.

This, they contended, implied the other two members of the commission should come from the minority party.

The committee also briefly questioned Ralph B. Williamson, of Washington State, and Claude L. Draper, of Wyoming.

Regarding Mr. Garsaud, A. D. Danzinger, a New Orleans attorney, testified he was not "correct timber" for the commission because he was indebted to R. S. Hecht, of New Orleans, director of the board of the Louisiana Public Service Corporation, which he said is a subsidiary of the Electric Bond & Share Co.

Asked whether the Madrid speaker would be able to renew the conversation, the telephone operator replied: "Sure, if he doesn't get shot."

Later, however, Buenos Aires telephone officials announced that the conversation could not be renewed because of the censorship.

DANVILLE EXPECTS RETALIATORY MOVE

Talk Also Heard That Mill Siren May End Idleness Monday.

DAM BLAST IS REPORTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec. 12.—Testimony of mass formations before mill gates, reports of a crumbling strike morale, stories of hardships of union men's families and a blast of dynamite discharged near the Schoolfield milldam at 3 o'clock this morning—all proved grist filtering through the strike mill today.

Reports were current again that tomorrow night was set as "der tag" for retaliation against the mills. Another report was that Monday would see a mass response to the mill whistle, a move that might break the back of the strike.

Nine members of a group of thirteen tried in the police court for unlawful assembly last Monday were exonerated by Magistrate Charles K. Carter. One was fined $50 and sent to jail for 30 days and three were fined lightly.

Yesterday nine were convicted and sent to jail, but appealed. Next Wednesday twenty more are to be tried on the same charge.

Police testified that the accused had failed to disperse when ordered to do so. The defense sought to show that the defendants were pickets on duty and had committed no unlawful act.

Strikers Still Defiant.

From welfare workers and from clergymen visiting the homes of strikers in Schoolfield come stories of hardship and uncertainty about the future.

In the aggregate the strikers are defiant, but, alone in their homes, they are less belligerent and complain of lack of food and warmth. Some say they fear to complain to the union lest they receive no rations.

They dare not try to return to work for fear of reprisals, and do not know whether they can get work.

A small boy told his teacher that his only food for two days had been potatoes. A minister found one family huddled in blankets, with no fire in the house. Others have gone into the cindered streets and shoveled bucketfuls of this paving to burn with what wood they get.

Wants Men to Stay Out.

Three persons told a minister that last Saturday a union leader told the union workers it was useless to try to get money for the strike unless workers were kept out of the mills. A woman complained that her son was in jail because he had done what a union leader told him. The same union leader, she said, has a warm hotel room and eats three meals a day.

Whether any of the strikers who were called on in eviction notices to pay rent today did so could not be learned.

Atwell Farley, mill paymaster, referred questioners to C. D. Gaver, secretary to the mill president. Gaver merely said "I don't know."

Bank May Acquire Closed Institution

Acquisition of Assets Is Studied as Examiners Speed Work.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The prospect of eventual acquisition of the assets of the closed Bank of United States by one of the city's largest banking organizations was regarded hopefully in important financial quarters today.

Completion of the examination by the State banking department is expected to reemove most of the obstacles which could not be surmounted in the protracted merger negotiations, which preceded the closing. Several of the strong downtown banks have been ambitious to expand their branches and are said to regard the 59 locations assembled by this uptown institution with interest.

In the meantime, plans to make effective the offer of heads of 23 clearing-house banks to relieve the closed bank's depositors were rushed forward. Joseph A. Broderick, State banking superintendent, said he thought the machinery for making loans to these depositors might be ready to start work by Monday or Tuesday.

loan commissioner, would be subpenaed for questioning next week.

With Whitmore will be called G R. Dexter, president of the closed Bank of Hollywood, who was chairman of Beesemyer's board of directors.

To Question Officials.

Other members of the board, the State building and loan examiner, who inspected the company's books last year, and several company employes also will be called.

Officials directing the investigation, which, they said, was only started with Beesemyer's confession, expressed belief he was protecting others involved. They announced their proposal to find why the embezzlements, ranging over several years, were not discovered long ago.

Milton Shaw, State examiner, who located Beesemyer's irregularities, said he found depositors' accounts totaling $17,000,000 whereas they had been carried as only $10,000,000. Shaw found the discrepancy in an entry for payment of monthly interest to depositors.

The grand jury members, in indicting Beesemyer for theft of $43,000 asked the court to fix bail of $250,000. They indicated next week additional indictments charging him with greater misappropriations would be returned. The bail was approved by the court.

Answer Is Filed in Suit Over Lee Highway Route

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 12.—H. M. Shirley and other members of the State Highway Commission have filed answer to the injunction suit started in the Circuit Court of Campbell County several months ago, in which property owners are seeking to enjoin the change in the route of State Highway 10 as it enters Lynchburg from the West.

The answer holds that the commission has not exceeded its authority in ordering a change of the route and that the courts have always held that the commission should be free and untrammeled in its selection of State highway routes.

FIREMEN HELPLESS AS FIRE RAZES HOME

BLAZE DRAWS AUTOISTS

While three volunteer fire departments stood by helpless for lack of water, a ten-room frame house, owned by the Conger brothers, proprietors of the Conger's Laundry, Washington, burned to the ground last night. The house, which Fire Chief Marion Curran, of Kensington, estimated to be valued at $12,000, stood about a mile from the junction of Vier's Mill and the Wheaton-Kensington road. One fireman was slightly injured.

The red glare from the blazing two-story frame building illuminated the sky to such an exten that motorists from as far away as Washington drove to the scene. The glare was clearly visible in Silver Spring and Chevy Chase. More than 1,200 persons viewed the fire from nearby roads and hills, nearly 500 of whom were Washingtonians.

The fire was discovered about 7:30 o'clock by William Wildman, a neighbor, who called the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department. The Chevy Chase Fire Department and Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department also responded. One of the Silver Spring engines sank into the soft earth at the side of the road left by the installation of gas mains. Thomas Saxon, Kensington fireman, who was riding on the running board to show the way to the out-of-town engine, was thrown to the ground and dragged beneath the running board. His hand was cut and he was bruised on the body but not seriously injured.

The firemen found the house an inferno. There was no water available and all they could do was stand by and keep the flames from spreading with their chemicals. The house burned to the ground, with one lone chimney standing sentinel over the smouldering ruins.

The Conger brothers have not lived at the house for years, but a colored caretaker, Gilbert Scott, had been living in the rear of the building. He left the premises about 5 o'clock with Frank Conger, one of the brothers, who had been inspecting the property. The origin of the fire was not apparent last night.

Firemen had difficulty getting through the dense crowd of motorists who thronged the narrow roads leading to the house, which was situated far back from the main road. Montgomery County police from the Silver Spring and Ethesda substations finally cleared the roads.

George A. H. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., will address a meeting of the Rockville Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Rockville Firemen's Hall and will be open to the public.

Mr. Wood will speak on "The Greater Washington Gas Situation" at the meeting, according to Walter Funderburk, chairman of the publicity committee of the chamber. The meeting is one of the first moves in a campaign to make Rockville's advantages known. An extensive program which has been going on in Rockville all summer and is continuing through the winter together with other improvements. The chamber voted several weeks ago to carry on a campaign of enlightenment and to urge industry and residents to mov to

A business meeting of the chamber will be held at 7:30 o'clock prior to the public meeting.

Montgomery County officials will act as honorary pallbearers at the funeral of Perrie E. Waters, register of wills, who died at his desk in the courthouse at Rockville Wednesday. The funeral will be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the Colonial Funeral Home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, at Rockville. A special motorcycle escort will be provided by Chief Rivie A. Moxley, of the Montgomery County Police, to clear the way for the funeral procession to Neelsville Presbyterian Church Burying Ground near Germantown.

Pallbearers will be members of the Pentalpha Lodge of Masons, at Gaithersburg, to which Mr. Waters belonged. Masonic exercises will be held at the grave. The honorary pallbearers will be Preston B. Ray, clerk of the circuit court; State Senator Robert G. Hilton, president of the Farmers Banking & Trust Co. of Rockville; George Hunter, president of the Montgomery County National Bank of Rockville; Sheriff Joseph Pyles, Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer; Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners and chairman of the Democratic State central committee for Montgomery County; Judges P. Hicks Ray, Henry Hunt 3d and Joseph C. Higgins, of the orphans court; Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, former president of the board of county commissioners; Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners; County Commissioners Robert D. Hagner, Clagett Hilton, Frank Ricketts, Downey M. Williams, former County Commissioner Robert Hickerson, and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and county Democratic leader.

The Rev. Frank A. Tyler, of the Rockville Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Henry K. Pasma, of the Rockville Presbyterian Church, will officiate at the funeral.

Mrs. Waters was 63 years old and had been in public office for seven years. He was reelected register of wills in the last general election. He was a Democrat.

The members of the Orphans Court probably will appoint a successor at the meeting of the court Tuesday. The register of wills acts under the authority of the court and the judges of the court have hte power of appointing his successor.

Headway Reported On Muscle Shoals

Conferees Forecast Differences Will Soon Be Ironed Out.

(Associated Press.)

Some headway toward an agreement on Muscle Shoals legislation was made at two sessions of the congressional conferees yesterday, and another meeting for next Wednesday was called to iron out, if possible, what were described as the only two remaining differences.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, chairman of the Senate conferees, announced after the second session that prospects for an agreement appeared brighter than at any other time. He said the two remaining points of difference concerned the manner of distribution of power and the products to be manufactured at the nitrate plants.

The Norris Government operation bill passed by the Senate provides for Government construction of transmission lines. The "compromise" House proposal would have the power sold "at the switchboard, giving preferential purchase rights to States, counties, and municipalities."

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, modified his proposal yesterday to permit the nitrate plant lessees to manufacture by-products of fertilizer as well as fertilizer, but the House group still held out for allowing manufacture of kindred chemical and electrochemical products useful in national defense along with fertilizer.

Lawyers Hit Pay Increase Policies

Federal Bar Association States Many Salaries Are Below Ratings.

Declaring that the provisions of the Classification Act, passed by Congress eight years ago, have not been fully carried out, and that a great many Government employes are in receipt of salaries below the average provided by law, the Executive Council of the Federal Bar Association has adopted a resolution denouncing the policy of withholding from efficient Government employes the increases in compensation provided for in the Act.

Due to the failure to provide the necessary funds to carry out the promotion plans of the Classification Act, persons in the employ of the Federal Government, eligible by efficiency ratings to receive an increase in salary, have year after year continued to work for compensation far under their efficiency ratings, it was stated.

Although estimates prepared for the fiscal year 1932 in the various Government departments incorporated an appropriation to cover one-third of the cases where persons were elegible to promotion, this item was omitted in the Treasury Post-Office appropriation bill reported to the House of Representatives, the resolution declared. This action was branded as unjust and discriminatory.

of which Mrs. Moorer is a communicant, said that a positive identification of the body had been made by two fraternity brothers of the youth and by a close friend of Mrs. Moorer.

LeGrand Moorer, brother of the dead student, is on his way to this city from Atlanta, Ga. He will join his mother here and they will be accompanied to Chapel Hill by Dr. Woolsall after prayers for the youth at St. Mark's Church on Sunday morning.

Woods and fields within a radius of 10 miles of the university had been combed by searchers during the early part of the Nation-wide hunt for the youth. The body, Dr. Woolsall said, was found in a thicket. Numerous searchers had passed within a few yards of where it was eventually found.

Morgan, who was only 17 year old, was an honor student at the university and was described as a brilliant scholar. On February 28 he walked from a professor's house where he lived and was never again seen alive. He had just finished writing a letter to his mother, thanking her for a check she had sent him. He left this check, together with some currency, on an open book.

Mrs. Moorer has the letter. The tenor of it is affectionate, she says, and gives no indication that he had intended to do away with himself.

The news from the university yesterday ended the hope of Mrs. Moorer that her son would be finally found alive. She clung to the belief that her boy was suffering from a lapse of memory due to overstudy.

Mrs. Moorer came to Washington several months ago in an attempt to expedite the search for him. Salvation Army headquarters all over the country had been on the lookout for him and on several occasions he was reported found.

Her husband, the late Dr. M. P. Moorer, of Asheville, N. C., died several years ago.

Step Is Called Necessary to Relieve Traffic Jam in Upper Area.

COST ESTIMATE SMALL

A bill authorizing the widening of Thirteenth street, from Monroe street to Spring road northwest was forward to the District committees of Congress yesterday by the District Commissioners. The widening from 40 to 60 feet is sought to relieve traffic congestion in this area.

The object of the proposed legislation is to authorize the Commissioners to institute in the District Supreme Cour a porceeding to condemn the necessary land. Such a procedure was found to be impractical under the existing law.

Wider Roadway Proposed.

It is proposed to widen the roadway on the east side so as to spare the trees, terrace steps and parkings on the west side, the Commissioners explained ina letter accompanying the measure.

The widening will permit the setting back of the east curb so as to line up with the 40-foot roadway south of Monroe street and north of Spring road.

Thirteenth street is one of the main north-and-south arteries into the city, it is explained, and traffic is expected to increase on this thoroughfare when the street is opened north of Military road to connect with the underpass at Fern street.

Restricted by Building Lines.

The area proposed to be condemned is restricted by building lines, the Commissioners added, and should not be very expensive. The land and improvements should cost from $50,000 to $75,000.

"A large part of this, however, would, no doubt, be assessed as benefits, which is provided for in the law under which the proceedings are to be instituted," the letter states.

A letter from J. C. Roop, director of the Bureau of the Budget, stating that the proposed legislation would not be in conflict with the President's financial program, accompanied the measure.

FUND FOR CHILDREN BOOSTED BY DREAM

Christmas tree greeted the children. No presents in tissue paper, fastened with colored ribbon were there to be distributed. Empty stockings hung from the little fireplace. And sad-eyed parents stood by, conscious of the youngsters' disappointment but tragically unable to do anything about it because of lack of work, sickness and other causes which had depleted the family's little treasury.

Mr. Average Man awoke with a start. He knew there had been something lacking in his preparations for Christmas, but until visited by the dream, he had been unaware of just what it was. Now he knew. The first thing in the morning he must go down to The Post and turn in his check for the Toy Fund which The Post had started to fill the empty stockings of children whose parents were unable to do so.

Of all the plans advanced to help such children, Mr. Average Man liked The Post plan the best, because it allows the parents to do the giving with the money raised in the fund. Thus the happiness in the family is not confined to the children.

Mr. Average Man told his wife of the oversight. She agreed that they ought to do something and urged her husband to give to the limit because "after all it's the children's Christmas."

There are many others in Mr. Average Man's shoes. They may send their checks or bring their cash to the Toy Fund Editor of The Post and he will see that some child or children are made happy with gifts they otherwise would not have received.

INTERMENT IN NEW YORK

Funeral services for the Rev. Louis J. O'Hern, rector of the Apostolic Mission House at the Catholic University, who died yesterdya following an illness of two years, will be held this morning at 10 o'clock, with solemn high mass of requiem being celebrated at the National Shrine of Immaculate Conception. Interment will be in New York City.

Father O'Hern was born at Olean, N. Y., in 1878. In 1903 he received the degree of bachelor of sacred theology, at the Catholic University of America, and in December of that year he was ordained a priest. He was one of the three who founded the American Church in Rome, known as the Church of Santa Eusanna, under the charge of the Paulist Fathers. During the World War he was executive secretary of the Catholic Army and Navy Chaplains Bureau and represented the Catholic hierarchy of America in the selection and appointment of United States Army and Navy chaplains. He was at one time editor of the Missionary Magazine. A cablegram from Rome during his last hours brought Father O'Hern papal blessings.

Surviging him are three brothers and two sisters, the Right Rev. John Francis O'Hern, Bishop of Rochester, N. Y.; hte Rev. Thomas J. O'Hern, pastor of St. Bartholomew's Church, Buffalo, N. Y.; Col. Einstein No Mystery To His Liner Steward

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—No man—not even Prof. Einstein—is a mystery to his steward.

So says John Delgado, of the liner Belgenland, who looked out for the German scientist's welfare on his voyage to America.

"Sure, I understand him," says Delgado, "he is just like me. He likes to be quiet. I always knew just what he wanted."

He liked his bath very hot.
He scorned a dress suit.
He looked at the stars all night.
He ate double portions of grapes.
He was silent but friendly.
He never complained.

"What a passenger," said Delgado. "I wish I had to take care of 20 Einsteins. I never saw any one like that before. Whenever I inquired if he wanted anything, he just said, 'Schon gut!'

"Yes, sir, that's the kind of a man I understand."

EINSTEIN IS HONORED AT OCHS' LUNCHEON

Physicist Also Welcomes Delegation of Fellow Jews on Liner.

OFFICE GIRLS' OVATION

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Albert Einstein descended today from the plane of abstruse mathematics to make a social sally from his ocean liner suite in New York harbor and to receive a delegation of fellow Jews on his ship.

With his wife and the two other members of his party the scientist went ashore to a luncheon given in his honor by Adolph S. Ochs, publisher f the New York Times. This was the only one of a host of invitations Dr. Einstein accepted for his five-day stay in New York. The luncheon was entirely private.

Photographers waylaid the physicist as he left the boat and again just before the luncheon. He posed for them with good grace and acknowledged the cheers of office girls who greeted him in the lobby of the Times Building annex.

He was presented with a volume of the golden book of the Jewish national fund, containing the names of those who gave money to the Palestine fund in his honor. In responding to the presentatin address of Menachem Ussishkin, president of the world Jewish national fund, Dr. Einstein expressed the hope that he would be able "to work for my people the rest of my life, as well as for science."

His second visit to the United States in ten years will take him to California Monday. He will sail on the Belgenland which brought him here from Antwerp.

Chaplain Delbert Transferred.

With NELSON B. BELL

THIS morning marks the inauguration locally of a method of unemployment relief that is being put in operation throughout the United States by Radio-Keith-Orpheum, represented in Washington by the RKO-Keith Theater.

As outlined to me in some detail by Ace Berry, the seasoned showman who serves as territorial manager for RKO, with headquarters in Washington, the plan is to select worthy cases from among the unemployed—heads of families and capable and responsible men and women who, through no fault of their own, have felt the pinch of hard times—and make them sales agents for tickets to the R-K-O theaters scattered throughout the land from coast to coast. The tickets are sold at the top price of the prevalent scale—50 cents is the cost here, and, I think, the probable average the country over—and the salesman is paid a 25 per cent commission on all he is able to market.

The scheme has been well systematized. Each city, Washington included, is divided into territories or zones and a reasonable number of ticket salesmen assigned to each. The precise method of approach and barter is left to the individual attempting to make the sale. In short, RKO feels that it has a desirable commodity to offer and relies upon the sales agent to develop his own type of salesmanship in his respective territory.

In the belief that some territories will be more remunerative than others, it is planned to rotate the agents so that each will be given opportunity to canvass the areas from which highest profits may be expected to accrue.

Immediate supervision of the distribution of tickets and assignment of salesmen has fallen to the lot of C. Harry Schreiber, acting manager of RKO-Keith's, under the general direction, of course, of Mr. Berry.

At a time when, it must be said, advantage is being taken of an unfortunate economic condition by unscrupulous solicitors and warnings have been sent out by the heads of legitimate organizations to beware of impositors, it seems judicious to make known that the sale of tickets to RKO-Keith's elsewhere than at the boxoffice is authorized and legitimate.

The innovation, it seems to me, should be helpful to the theater as well as to the unemployed anxious to turn an honest dollar.

A brief dispatch has just been relayed to this desk from the gentlemen up to their eyes in news in the city room that Harry Warner, described as general counsel for the Warner Brothers, yesterday confirmed the long persistent rumor that Dolores Costello Barrymore, who retired from the screen prior to the advent of her baby daughter, will return to active duty before the cameras in the near future, under a renewed contract, the terms of which were recently negotiated in Hollywood.

So that's why they came back from that South American cruise!

It is not difficult to determine when a star of the stage or screen, or both, has a following. If you are conducting a newspaper column—Heaven forfend—take a verbal punch at Rudy Vallee and see what happens!

But he is not the only one, apparently, whose every admirer is a belligerent defender. Winnie Lightner is like that, too. A number of objectors have taken this palpitating palladium to task because the Thursday summary of next week's attractions neglected to mention the boisterous Miss Lightner as the chiefest luminary of the vaudeville portion of the bill at the Earle beginning today.

Since bookings are often belated, it has been found expedient to limit Thursday's announcements to the feature pictures exclusively. However, since that irks so many of our readers—there are some, believe it or not—pedhaps we will change our policy hereafter. At any rate, Winnie Lightner is at the Earle in person, beginning today; Buck and Bubbles top the Loew revue at the Palance, and Claude and Clarence Stroud are the outstanding pair among eleven sets of twins at the Fox.

And that's not all. For the week beginning next Saturday, December 20, the Earle's headliner on the stage will be none other than our own Ann Suter, singing comedienne, who since her last appearance here at Keith's has spent several years touring England, the continent and the Antipodes.

Miss Suter is a real home-town girl and atlented no end, in addition to being probably the world's greatest correspondent—please note the two "r's!" I call my esteemed confrere, Mr. John Jack Jay Daly, to bear witness that Miss Suter has mailed the dramatic department of The Post a wider variety of photographs of herself from a greater number of far-flung outposts of civilization than any other actress on the boards—with possibly one exception. The last time we counted noses the motion picture editor had an equal number of Kate Smith!

A coupla grand gals—ask either of us.

Mr. John Irving Fisher, an excessively mean performer at the pianoforte and possessor of the longest record of consecutive weeks as master of ceremonies on a local stage of any of his associates in the craft, with the single exception of Wesley Eddy, dined last evening at the Washington Newspaper Club.

Business visit, so I hear.

I knew there was something else Ace Berry told me. From December 15 to 20, both inclusive, there will be in the Capital a sound truck that is being sent to every point in the country of any consequence by Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

This is in no sense a recording truck, like those circulated by the newsreels, for example, but a vehicle of some splendor that broadcasts music, speeches, excerpts from Radio pictures and other diverting items by means of an equipment of giant loudspeakers.

As I understand it, this perambulating contraption performs on the ground much the same function as that musical airplane that so many objected to did high over head. The commotions it emits, I suspect, are in no sense derogatory to RKO or any of its products.

Whether or not this mobile broadcasting plant, which it is said can be heard a mile on a clear day, will be permitted to operate on the thoroughfares of this city, I couldn't tell you. In case it is not, the residents of the smaller communities lying in these remote sectors beyond the District line will be regaled by its projected fussee.

The Film Board of Trade had itself a banquet in the Hotel Ambassador last evening, at which a majority of the industry's big shots in this vicinity nibbled at the hard rolls and celery. Details in other columns of today's issue, unless I am mistaken.

And they are opening Poli's, in case you hadn't noticed it!

Churches Will Make Yuletide Spirit Real

Many Congregations Will Add Gifts to Needy in Carrying Out Meaning of Great Festival—Special Services Arranged for Week.

Christmas in Washington this year will not be given over wholly to jollity and merriment. The Christian Church has not yet released its hold on the custom which originated with its King. And, as in former years, the festival will be variously observed, with religious devotions, with the singing of old carols, with the giving of plays and the presentation of pageants.

Many of the churches, following time-honored precedent, will begin Christmas Day with services of prayer and praise, and maybe with a message from the pulpit. Some of these churches hold this service at sunrise, or even earlier. More detailed information on this will be given on the Church Page next Saturday, as reports come in from the pastors.

In the Catholic churches there will be a midnight mass, celebrated on Christmas Eve and extending into the natal day itself. This is a gorgeous ceremonial, one of the most beautiful and impressive given in this worldwide church. At the Franciscan Monastery the midnight mass will be observed with a splendor that has made that institution very noted throughout the country.

Gifts to Be Bought.

Following the custom of many years there will be a Christmas giving service at the Central Presbyterian Church, on Thursday evening next. For many years the congregation of this church has united with the Sunday school in arranging a service whereby all the members of the church and Sunday school are invited to bring gifts to be sent to the missions and the mountain schools.

Toys, books, shoes, gloves, good clothing, canned goods and money are to be brought. This year the gifts will be sent to the mountain schools in Patrick County, Va.; to Banner Elk, N. C.; to Claudville, Va., and to Raebun Gap, Ga.; to the Presbyterian Orphans Home at Lynchburg, Va.; to the Grenfell Mission in Labrador, to the Centrl Union Mission of this city, and to the Salvation Army. In connection with this service, a play will be presented by the members of the Sunday school.

To Perform Play.

At Grace Lutheran Church the spirit of Christmas preparation will eb in evidence tomorrow with special sermons by the pastor, the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski.

Members of the Sunday school will present Christmas play, entitled "He Gave Himself," Sunday, December 21. The play has been written by and will be directed by a member of the school, Miss Emma Newton.

The customarr early morning Christmas service will be held Christmas morning at 6:30 o'clock. An elaborate musical program will be given at 8 o'clock on the night of December 28 by the choir, composed of 30 voices, directed by Mrs. Marion St. John Aldridge, assisted by Miss Florence Yocum, soprano, and John Martyn, tenor, as guest soloists.

To Sing Ancient Carols.

At 8:15 Friday night the choir of Mount eVrnon Place Methodist Church, will sing Christmas carols of the centuries, a carol of each century, beginning with the twelfth, being sung. Full copy of the text will be furnished the audience. The pastor, Dr. Shelton, will close the program with an illustrated lecture on "Christmas in Palestine."

In connection with services for Christmas Day at the Washington Cathedral, it is announced that through the courtesy of the Columbia Broadcasting System, the first hour of the 11 a. m. service, including Bishop James E. Freeman's sermon, will be broadcast over a Nation-wide network. Music appropriate to the day will be sung by the cathedral choir.

The annual service devoted to Christmas carols will be held Sunday afternoon, December 28, at 4 o'clock.

To Play "The Other Wise Man."

Luther Place Memorial Church, at Thomas circle, is preparing to make Christmas of 1930 one of the ntoable events of its history. It will hlod its white gifts for the king service Sunday evening, December 21. Realizing the depth of the need for Christmas cheer, the congregation is striving to have this service mark its richest effort in this direction.

On Sunday afternoon and evening, December 28, and on Monday and Tuesday following, at 8 o'clock, a well-trained cast will present again "The Other Wise Man," a dramatization by Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, of Dr. Henry Van Dyke's story.

For six years the congregation has offered this sacred spectacle to packed houses at every presentation. This year it proposes to present the net proceeds to the Gospel and Central Union Missions. While the receipts will come as an offering rather than through admission fees, it is expected the community will swell the fund which Luther Place seeks to raise for the suffering and unfortunate.

Pageant to Be Given.

Arrangements are being made by St. Paul's Lutheran Church to present a pageant entitled "The Light of Christmas" at the white gift service of the congregation on the Sunday night before Christmas. This will be followed by a candlelight vesper service.

Rehearsals for the Universalist National Memorial Church school Christmas play, "The Tree That Talked," will be held on Saturday afternoons at 1:30. The play will be given in connection with a Christmas party December 29.

The Alpha Christian Endeavor Society of the Ninth Street Christian Church, is planning a Christmas party for December 23, for the children of the Gospel Mission. "Why the Chimes Rang" will be the theme for the Christmas entertainment to be given Sunday evening, December 21. The proceeds will go to the charity fund. John Smith, who has put on many fine things at Ninth Street, has the direction of this program.

Will Aid the Needy.

The Christmas projects of the various departments of the Sunday school of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will be worked out at the opening services tomorrow. The beginners' and primary departments take care of the Christmas gifts for a mission Sunday school in the mountains of West Virginia. This year, because of the drought and the great suffering in that community, clothing and money for food are especially needed, as well as the usua ltoys, books, &c. The junior and intermediate departments will fill bags for the Central Union Mission. The senior department will take care of two families in Montgomery County.

The Dramatic Club will present a drama, "The Throne of David," at the church school Christmas service, in the church at 4:30 Sunday afternoon, December 21.

The Chevy Chase Baptist Church is planning a special Christmas service for Sunday, December 21, in the evening, and an early service Christmas morning.

Sentence Sermon

By The Rev. PERCY FOSTER HALL
(Rector of St. Paul's Church, Alexandria.)

ONENESS AND TWONESS.

ONE. A curious little word. Three letters. A great word in religion, philosophy, science, morals. God is one. The primal truth is religion. "Hear, O Israel. The Lord, thy God, is one Lord." In philosophy, the laws of thought are invariable. Logic is logic. In science, the universe is one. The law of gravitation holds beyond the Milky Way.

In morals, the Golden Rule will apply in all ages and in all lands. In theology three times one are not three but one. Athanasius saith "The Father is God; the Son is God and the Holy Ghost is God. And yet they are not three Gods but one God."

The arithmetic of Heaven. Genesis says, "They (two) shall be one." The arithmetic of marriage. In football, eleven are one; in baseball, nine are one. The arithmetic of athletics and of victory. When the allied armies became one, won was the World War. And the arithmetic of millions of bewildered, loyal Christians is

"We are not divided
All one body we."

The opposite of oneness is twoness. Oneness spells LOVE, PEACE, POWER, CONQUEST. Twoness connotes HATE, DISCORD, WEAKNESS, DEFEAT. Yet how we love twoness. Don't we? Think a minute. The aids to oneness are humility and love. The sources of twoness, pride and selfishness.

God and man are one. Yet Eden's tragedy was that man chose his own mind and his own way, and so became "afraid." Adam and Eve were one, till shame came. Then he said, "Not I, but she. We are two."

Cain said, "I and my brother are two. Our interests clash. He hurts my pride."

And all the way down the long story. Twoness is the name and source of all evil; of murder, adultery, theft, slander, covetousness. Twoness.

Bethlehem breeds oneness. "Peace on earth, goodwill." Calvary pleads oneness. He went there because He was the "friend of sinners," spoke well of Samaritans, and Gentiles, and said: "Many shall come from the East and the West."

It was a hard lesson for the early Church. Peter had to apologize for Cornelius, and Paul must fight to the death to let the Gentiles in.

We haven't learned the lesson yet. Are we on our way?

CHURCH WILL GIVE PASTOR WELCOME

Paul Myers, president of the board of ministerial pensions and relief of the United Lutheran Church in America, will make the address of welcome.

Plans continue for the reception of a large group of new people who will be received into membership at the 11 o'clock service on December 21, the group to be known as "Luther Place's Christmas Gift to the King." Two side tiers of pews will be rserved for those who have entered the fellowship of the congregation since April 1, other members and visitors occupying the central tier of pews and the gallery.

As the pastor calls the roll of the groups who became members in April, JJuly, October and November, the groups will arise one by one, and as they al latand the December 21 group will come forward to be presented to the congregation.

The rcruiting program at Luther Place Memorial is leading it toward the head of a list of 5,000 congregations of the United Lutheran Church in America, in the number of accessions between April 1 and Christmas. It wil rank among the first five congregations in the denomination, and may take first place.

The Strait-Ate Club, of Harrisburg, Pa., made up of two pastors of each denomination in Harrisburg, came to Washington last Monday to meet with its former member, Dr. Rasmussen, who entertained them at a luncheon in the University Club. The group of visitors spent the afternon studying the program at Luther Place, which, they felt, marks a new era in congregational upbuilding.

District Will Buy Plant of Laundry

Part of Municipal Center Is Included in Ground to Be Bought.

The District Commissioners yesterday approved the purchase of the Tolman Laundry main plant at 499 C street northwest for razing, to make way for the proposed Municipal Center. The price agreed on after much bickering between the District and the laundry proprietor is $85,000.

About two-thirds of the property on the site of the Municipal Center has been acquired by the District. Plans for the project are now being completed in the municipal architect's office and will be ready the first of January.

The District first offered only $60,000 for the laundry plant but later agreed to the increased price because of the amount of machinery that it contains, virtually all of which will have to be discarded. The laundry owner intends to erect a new laundry at once, it is said.

Bids Upon Stadium Exceed Allowance

Construction of Western High's Field May Be Deferred.

All eight bids for the construction of the Western High School athletic field and stadium will probably have to be rejected as they were well above the amount of money available, C. M. Brennan, chief clerk of the engineering division, said late yesterday.

The Fidelity Construction Co., of Washington, was found to be low bidder when the bids were opened yesterday afternoon. This bid was for $185,490, while the highest offer was $216,000 by H. B. Davis, of Washington. Only about $100,000 is available for the project. The job includes the erection of a steel framework with wooden seats for the grandstand.

SENATE GOES WRONG.

The House of Representatives responds to Nation-wide sentiment in refusing to accept the unwise proposal of the Senate to dole out food to farmers in the drought sections. The House also refuses to accept the Senate amendments to the bill making appropriations for expediting public works.

An authority greater than the Senate is prepared to act in defense of the Treasury. This authority is the combined will of the House and the President.

Senators of both parties have flagrantly ignored the state of the Treasury and have voted to compel taxpayers to support a dole to certain farmers who are hard pressed. Senators representing sections where other farmers are hard pressed have insisted that if one set of farmers shall be placed on the dole other needy farmers shall be treated likewise. There is reason and justice in their demand. And if needy farmers are to be fed from the Treasury, why not needy bricklayers and needy preachers?

The only way to prevent the broaching of the Treasury is to provide free lunches for everybody is to kill the Senate's vicious amendment. The House and the President may be depended upon to stop this nonsense.

A wholesome rebuke, administered by the coordinate branches of the law-making power, will serve to remind the Senate that playing politics with the unemployment situation is a losing game.

Several senators have openly advocated an increase of taxation. One of them, Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, modestly proposes to add $270,000,000 to the burdens of the taxpayers as a means of relieving the situation. Another, who resented the suggestion that politicians were playing politics at the expense of human misery, proposes to appropriate $250,000,000 for building county roads. Another wants a bond issue of $500,000,000 for rivers and harbors. Another would spend $425,000,000 on highways. Another offers the suggestion that $60,000,000 be given for "farm relief," while another would raise this to $100,000,000 and give it to war veterans. Still another senator would go in debt $3,000,000,000 and give it to the veterans. Eight senators propose expenditures that would aggregate $4,615,000,000.

When President Hoover objected to this proposed extravagance it was reported that "everybody knows that these bills will not pass." If the senators who propose these vast expenditures do so knowing that Congress will not approve of them, what is their action if it is not playing politics at the expense of human misery? They have either knowingly raised false hopes in the bosoms of their constituents, or they are really in earnest in attempting to raid the Treasury.

The people of the United States are patiently carrying heavy burdens and trying to relieve unemployment. They will not stand for increased taxation. They support President Hoover. The Senate, by the votes of both Republicans and Democrats, has gone wrong. It will be set right.

A MISCHIEVOUS TAX PROPOSAL.

In advocating a complete overhauling of the District's tax system Dr. Thomas Walker Page, economist and member of the Tariff Commission, makes a suggestion fraught with dangerous possibilities for local taxpayers.

Dr. Page would substitute an income tax for the present tax on intangible personal property. He would impose an inheritance tax on residents of the District and make the real estate levy a fixed tax. In addition he would abolish the present tax on tangible personal property and bring the business taxes "up to date." The tax on intangible personal property unquestionably is most difficult to collect. No doubt this tax is not returning the revenue it should. An income tax is easily collected, but income taxes as well as inheritance taxes tend to drive away desirable residents, and imposition of a local income tax invariably raises a "double taxation" cry.

If Congress were suddenly to show a change of heart with respect to the fiscal relationship, indicating that it intended to consider the question on its merits, it might be wise to consider the advisability of altering the District tax system. As matters stand today, however, any attempt to alter the system would inevitably result in the imposition of additional taxes. The House might approve the imposition of an income tax on the District, but it might not at the same time consent to the abandonment of the tax on intangible personal property. It is no secret that certain members of the House seek to bleed the District financially dry. The suggestion that the tax system be overhauled plays directly into their hands.

ALIEN CRIMINALS.

Secretary Doak's move to deport alien gangsters will be applauded throughout the country. Aliens who are taking advantage of America's hospitality to carry on rackets of every sort deserve no consideration or mercy. They ought to be sent back to their native countries and denied the privilege of ever entering the United States again.

The Department of Labor is planning to ask Congress for an increase of funds to carry on this work. The Senate has already indicated that it is in sympathy with such a movement. On suggestion of Senator Hayden it adopted a resolution, calling upon the Secretary of Labor for information as to the probable number of aliens who are in this country unlawfully, the number of such aliens subject to deportation under existing laws and what additional appropriations or changes in the statutes are needed to carry out that purpose. President Hoover in his annual message also advocated more strict rules for deportation of undesirable aliens. The question has a relationship to unemployment as well as to crime.

Apparently the first step necessary to make this program effective is a registration of all aliens. Senator Hayden estimated that at least 300,000 foreigners have entered this country unlawfully since passage of the immigration act in 1924. But there is no authentic information on the subject. The Government has no adequate means of checking up on undesirable characters who sneak into the United States. Until Congress provides for registration of aliens the attempt to rid the country of foreign gangsters, Communists and other parasites probably will remain ineffective.

The Labor Department's campaign is directed against all undesirable aliens. Does this include Communists who are sent here from Moscow in the interests of world revolution? Agitators of this kind may be more detrimental to society than thugs and highwaymen. How do they get in? Here is a problem that may well occupy Secretary Doak's attention.

DEDUCTIONS FOR DISTRESS RELIEF.

Representative Hawley's joint resolution authorizing corporations to deduct contributions to unemployment relief from their income tax returns is designed to stimulate a greater measure of relief work by private concerns. The resolution would be in effect only for the current fiscal year to meet the emergency that has arisen from unemployment.

Individuals are now allowed to deduct from their taxable income contributions to charity, educational institutions and hospitals, providing the gift does not exceed 15 per cent of the taxpayer's income. There can be no objection to extending this exemption to corporations when there exists an urgent need for funds to relieve the unemployed.

Relief from private sources is always better than a dole handed out by the Government. By using this means to stimulate a feeling of responsibility within the corporations the Government will lose but little revenue, and may give impetus to many relief organizations. This resolution was drawn up by the Treasury Department, and has the support of the administration and congressional leaders. Its enactment is desirable.

WHY DID THIS BANK CLOSE?

When a bank is closed following a run or an incipient run the question on every lip is, "What was the cause?" In the case of the closing of the Bank of the United States in New York Thursday morning no one seems to know the answer. The bank, with its 62 branches, had nearly 400,000 depositors, and two weeks ago its deposits were listed at $202,972,000. The suspension is the largest in the history of the State, and marks the first suspension of a New York bank since the present business depression began.

A few weeks ago it was announced that the Bank of the United States would be merged with the Manufacturers Trust Co., the Public National Bank & Trust Co. and the International Trust Co. Late last Monday night it was stated that officials of the four institutions had been unable to come to terms under which a consolidation could be effected and that the negotiations had been dropped. It is not unlikely that depositors in the Bank of the United States suspected as a result of the announcement that the officials of one or more of the banks were not satisfied with the financial position of the others, and that from this suspicion grew the movement to withdraw deposits that resulted in minor runs on several of the bank's branches on Wednesday. Fearing that these minor runs might spread, the directors in a meeting that extended through most of Wednesday night, decided that it would be best to close the doors of the institution and place its affairs in the hands of the State banking department.

It may be that the bank is solvent, and that its troubles came about because too great a part of its assets are of a "slow" character. If this be the case, depositors will get their money in due time, and the bank probably will be reopened.

During the investigation and audit the financial world will watch the New York bank situation carefully. The closing of the Bank of the United States caused little excitement. The stock market apparently was unaffected by the news of the suspension, and the action of the banks that are members of the clearing house association in announcing that they would lend depositors of the closed bank up to 50 per cent of their deposits at 5 per cent forestalled public apprehension that other banks might be in similar difficulties. Nevertheless, the suspension of an institution as large as the Bank of the United States is disquieting. The case will add interest to the prospective congressional investigation of banks and banking.

DEATH OF SENATOR OVERMAN.

Lee Slater Overman, who died in Washington yesterday morning, was one of the grand old men of the Senate. Elected senator from North Carolina in 1903, his record of 27 years' continuous service was exceeded only by that of his colleague, Senator Simmons, and matched only by that of Senator Smoot.

Of recent years, because of failing health, Senator Overman participated infrequently in debates, but he was a constant attendant at all sessions, where he watched carefully the progress of legislation, and his counsel was widely sought, not only by members of committees to which he was assigned, but by the Senate as a whole.

It was during the war that Senator Overman was given the greatest opportunity to exercise his rare political and legislative talents. One of the men called upon by President Wilson to play a role of prominence in those turbulent days, he drafted the Overman act, which granted to the President extraordinary powers for the prosecution of the war. He was active in the fight to pass the espionage act and he played a prominent part in the investigation of German propaganda. For years Senator Overman was ranking member of the committees on appropriations, judiciary, rules and military affairs. At the time of his death he was ranking minority member of the committees on rules, judiciary and appropriations.

Courtly, dignified, handsome and courteous, Senator Overman was the true Southern gentleman of the old school in every sense of the phrase. The Senate chamber will seem strangely altered with another occupying the chair in which, day after day, sat this veteran statesman.

GAMBLING IN FUTURES

By THOMAS F. WOODLOCK, in the Wall Street Journal.

Recrudescence of the old superstition concerning "short selling" in the commodity markets is always to be expected in circles where Senators Caraway, Brookhart and the like enjoy reputations for statesmanship, but it is disquieting to be told that their views find support in quarters which should be better informed. Intimations that the Farm Board and the Department of Agriculture are flirting with the idea give rise for serious concern for, with backing from such sources, Congress might not improbably decide to take a chance and try it out. The results would be disastrous, especially to the producer.

Our principal agricultural crops are usually garnered within a period of three or four months but their consumption is spread over twelve months. Somebody must, therefore, own and "carry" them between the time of harvest and the time when they are consumed. Whoever owns and "carries" them must bear the carrying charges and must further assume the risk of price changes between harvest and use—unless he can find insurance. The main function of the "futures" markets is to provide this insurance and it is an absolutely necessary function in modern economy. And it is the speculator who furnishes it.

So, it may be laid down as a general principle that the wider the market for commodity futures and the more speculation there is in it the cheaper is the price-insurance.

This is as nearly certain as anything can be, and if it be not true we are forced to the hypothesis that the speculator-group as a whole makes money by its speculations, and this is contrary to all observed and observable facts.

If this be true, how ridiculous is the politician's concept of speculation and in particular of the short seller, when compared with actuality! Apparently he sees in his imagination a multitude of leeches swollen to bursting with wealth sucked from the farmer—a mere crowd of parasites giving nothing for what they get. But we have a right to expect better things from the Farm Board and the Department of Agriculture, and it is to be hoped that we shall get them. No doubt we shall.

The country has embarked upon an experiment for the relief of the farmer, the result of which is that it has undertaken to "hold"—presumably for better times and prices—a quantity of wheat and cotton. It makes little or no difference where the actual title to this may rest; it is the risk of the United States Government if the experiment fails. Having started it we must go through with it. Of great importance is it that in course of carrying it out we do not damage our machinery for orderly merchandizing of these products, and that the ordinary ethics of trade shall be observed.

An interesting situation exists in the cotton market. The Staple Cotton Cooperative Association operating in the Mississippi Delta and producing long-staple cotton, finds itself with 80,000 bales of the 1929 crop on hand. It has announced a policy of selling these and its receipts from the 1930 crop "as rapidly as buyers will pay full market prices," i. e., current prices. Cotton sold at these prices will, of course, represent a loss to most producers. Therefore, the association proposes to purchase futures as fast as it sells its cotton and to hold these futures for the benefit of its members until prices recover to the point of being "legitimate." The money to margin these purchases is to come from the Farm Board, which has committed itself to "margin 100,000 bales of cotton to almost the price of an outright purchase." The American Cotton Cooperative Association (the main organization) has for some time followed and will follow the same policy.

SEASON'S END.

Oh, there was little laughter as the sailors came from sea,
The last gay outing ended and the last white sail let down,
For winter days are dreary and the ships must lonely be,
And the sailor boys be lonely when the blizzards come to town.
"So it's trim, boys, trim!
Though we're heavy-hearted men.
If the good Lord let us live,
In the spring we'll sail again."

The season's end is doleful as we put the ships away;
It's rather bitter business stripping sticks of canvas bare;
When winter's in the offing, sailors haven't much to say,
For they're parting with their best friend and I think too much they care.
"So it's pull, boys, pull!
Till in air she's left to swing.
If the good Lord let us live,
We'll go sailing in the spring."

"Hey, Billy, quit your sniffles! We have done this thing before.
It's a good five months to April, but perhaps we'll live it through.
It is summer for the water, and it's winter for the shore,
And a lonely time is winter for the likes of me and you,
But we'll leave her snug and trim
And a last farewell we'll give,
And we'll sail her in the spring

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

When I read that woman's magazine article, I thought of sending it to you—not because it seemed true, but because it was written in the sassy style you like. Now you tell me you read it before I did and thought of sending it to me with your indorsement.

I'm sorry you agreed with it, for it isn't right. The woman has made her mark without a college education, and therefore reasons that any woman is better off without one.

College, says she, robs a girl of the natural charm of dumbness and leaves her all full of ideas and big words and conceit and similar things that scare men away.

Her idea is that a girl's chief business is to attract men and that the best equipment for the job consists of good looks, swell clothes and a dumb-Dora conviction that brains are a male monopoly.

By way of answer, let me assure you first of all that little fresh-water colleges for girls, like the one you are attending—where the student body is composed of well-bred, good-looking, unspoiled youngsters whose parents for the most part are making sacrifices to keep them there—do not as a rule turn out high-brow graduates so full of knowledge that they no longer seem feminine.

In short, you won't get enough education to hurt you.

As to the charge that men prefer pretty little swell dressers who have no brains, I wish to answer for my sex that it all depends on the kind of men.

Stupid youngsters proud of their muscle prefer dumb girls because the other kind makes them squirm with a sense of inferiority.

Old men with wrinkled necks, out girling while their fat wives sleep at home, prefer dumb ones because no others will tolerate them.

Vain and stupid men—and this includes many who have money—prefer stupid girls because they can not be happy without regular flattery and no girl possessed of good sense could stoop to flatter them.

But it is not true—not one bit true—that sane and manly men prefer dumb girls. Dumb girls bore them—irritate them—almost nauseate them.

Find a man who has a keen mind in a sound body—a wholesome, sensible, regular-guy man who plays hard and works hard and climbs higher every year, and without an exception you have one who desires for his pal a feminine, good-sport woman who has a sense of humor and brains all over the place.

Don't let anything in print fool you. Every man worth killing is proud of a woman who has brains and ashamed of a dumb one.

I don't mean to imply that a college education can make a dumb girl intelligent or lack of it make a bright girl dumb, but merely to assure you that a little learning won't handicap you either in driving a Rolls or washing dishes in a three-room flat. Love,

DAD.

PRO AND CON

At the Gates of the Treasury.

New York World.

Without even the formality of a roll call vote the Senate has chosen to ignore the President's warning and to increase from $25,000,000 to $60,000,000 an appropriation providing relief for farmers who suffered in last summer's drought. This merely starts the ball rolling. Other proposals to increase the President's budget estimates are pending in both houses. Mr. Hoover, in fact, reports that bills have been introduced which would authorize a total expenditure of $4,500,000,000, mostly under the guise of giving relief of one sort or another. This estimate plainly includes bills which are duplicates of one another, as well as bills which have been introduced merely for the sake of a gesture and without the slightest hope of favorable action. Nevertheless, a grand total of four billions and a half gives a clew to the present mood of Congress. The slogan of Buy Now has communicated itself to members of both houses in the form of sudden plans for lavish spending. It is already clear, with the new session less than two weeks old, that a vast amount of log-rolling lies ahead, that the Senate's action in increasing the appropriation for drought relief is merely a prelude to battle.

The President Speaks.

Indianapolis News.

In the old, but by no means forgotten, days men used to "flay" or "read the riot act" to one another. The President in an entirely parliamentary way, "read the riot act" to Congress, or, perhaps more accurately, to certain members of that illustrious body. It was, of course, certain that when new ways were open for the spending of public money, some members of Congress would yield to the temptation to spend much larger sums than were actually needed. It is not surprising therefore that the President should find that some "are playing politics at the expense of human misery." He pointed out that "prosperity can not be restored by raids upon the public treasury."

Ambassador Gibson Lets Cat Out of the Bag—No Power Intends to Disarm.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Seeing that Ambassador Hugh Gibson has lost his power of reassuring diplomatic speech and confesses that the work of the preparatory disarmament conference "falls far short of our hopes and expectations," the next thing we know open-minded League of Nations adherents will be admitting that the United States, in its so-called isolation, has done and may hereafter do more for world peace than is possible in any European alliance. Inasmuch, also, as the Geneva foozle is the outcome of six years or so of study by picked international intellects, I should think it is about time for our Government to use its own intelligence.

What the Geneva fiasco means is that the great powers of Europe, and the little powerlets, too, do not feel prepared to disarm, have no well-defined moral urge to disarm, and, in fact, are so war-minded to begin with that they will not be in fit condition for whole-hearted peace for decades to come.

Ever since President Wilson's proposals were gassed by secret treaties following the World War I have felt ugly at the thought of Uncle Sam as a participant in European politics. According to the way I look at it, the whole business is a game of blindman's buff in which Uncle Sam would always be "it."

Ambassador Gibson having made a clean breast of it, no doubt many who have been league enthusiasts will become reconciled to the idea that Uncle Sam can do more for world progress as a shining example at home than as a sucker abroad.

Friendly Feelings and Mutual Politeness Between Public and Police Help to Enforce the Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reading in this morning's paper about Maj. Pratt's reprimand of one of his cops who lost his head and made a foolish arrest of a citizen who talked back at him, I hope you will let me say a word, pertinent or otherwise, to the occasion.

Friendly feelings ought to exist between the force and the public. They are both of them against the law-breakers, and the public can do a lot of good in giving the law a chance if it will only remember at all times that policemen are trying to do their duty.

My experience is that the public at large has a higher opinion of the police than it used to have.

Considering the duties the police have to perform you should not expect to find them always ready with the kind of persiflage employed at an afternoon tea party. It is up to the public as well as to the police to set the example of politeness.

For its good influence on law enforcement, courtesy is something which no good scout should forget in his dealings with the cops. Whatever politeness the public bestows on the cops will not be wasted.

Original Design of State, War, Navy Building Was Identical With Treasury Building.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The facts relative to the State, War and Navy Building were recently given on this page, but must have escaped one whose inquiry appeared last Friday. The original design was to provide a three-part architectural unit, having the White House, central, flanked by the Treasury and the State Buildings, of identical design, in reverse. The Treasury was erected first, and is a gem of classic grace, pure in style and the peer of any building anywhere. When the other was erected the whim of an architect prevailed, so that instead of a balanced unit of unparalleled beauty, which would have been less expensive, the present exterior was cloaked upon the original ground plan. The President has recommended the restoration of the plan and Congress has appropriated the necessary funds for the work. It should be undertaken at once, so that the completed restoration may be a factor in the bicentennial celebrations that will take place in 1932, in honor of the birth of Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with Dr. Henry Ward Bleacher's defense of the rabbit ball, perhaps an extract from a National Geographic Society article, "The Sources of Washington's Charm," by J. R. Hildebrand, may be of interest.

In a description of the varied activities of the United States Bureau of Standards, Mr. Hildebrand recalls the time when a sample baseball, the newly born rabbit ball, was sent to the bureau to determine whether it had unduly helped Babe Ruth's home run record or not.

"Erudite physicists and chemists took that ball to pieces," he says, "used microscopes, hair-trigger scales, and mysterious acids, and solemnly gave the important decision that it was the hitter, not the ball, who was doing it."

Dogwood Alley in Potomac Park Would Add to Its Attractiveness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Alfred Sandboy's suggestion that dogwood trees be given a place in the decorative scheme of Potomac Park pleases me very much. I am one among thousands of Washingtonians who delight in this riverside beauty spot, and there are thousands of tourists who would consider a visit to Washington incomplete if denied the pleasure of motoring along the Potomac Park driveways. The dogwood trees are 100 per cent American and are quite as attractive as the charming Japanese cherry trees.

I am very sure they would add to the enjoyment of Potomac Park visitors.

ILLNESS OF WITNESS DELAYS SMITH TRIAL

HART ENDS TESTIMONY

Illness of a star defense witness yesterday again halted progress of the R. H. Smith Co. trial and prevented C. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the company, from taking the stand in his own behalf. Court was adjourned an hour and a half before the usual time.

The witness is Emory L. Coblentz, Frederick, Md., financier, and president of the Central Trust Co., of Maryland. Mr. Coblentz was to have testified concerning the financing of certain building projects in connection with the Smith Co. Had he testified yesterday, Mr. Pitts would have followed him on the stand.

On trial with the former chairman are C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., also former officers of the company. The indictment charges conspiracy to embezzle funds of the firm and to conceal records.

Defense May Rest Tuesday.

Frank G. Raichle, defense attorney, said yesterday that Mr. Coblentz and Mr. Pitts would very likely be the last two important witnesses to be called by the defense. He said that a few minor witnesses might be called to link up certain phases of testimony already given. Wilton J. Lambert, of defense counsel, indicated also that the defense would probably rest some time Tuesday.

Yesterday's testimony was confined to defense efforts to break down, piecemeal, Government testimony concerning the alleged embezzlements. It is the contention of the defense that some $500,000 of the items named in the bill of particulars were used by Mr. Pitts, but that their use was entirely legitimate and that the funds so used were earned by him. The other half million or more dollars named in the bill of particulars, they contend, were not used by any of the defendants, but were parts of transactions carried out in the regular course of the company's business.

H. O. Hart, defense accountant, concluded his direct testimony, tracing additional items in the bill of particulars through records placed in evidence. Each of these items, he said, was properly entered and cleared.

Witness Remains Unshaken.

Many of the payments to Mr. Pitts, the witness said, represented dividends due him as proceeds of 7,979 shares of Smith Co. preferred stock, of which there were 300,000 shares outstanding. It was also shown that all of the common stock of the company was owned by Mr. Pitts and Samuel J. Henry, its former president. Mr. Hart further declared that he had carefully examined the petty cash records of the firm and had found them to be in order.

On cross-examination, the witness remained unshaken, and was dismissed after brief questioning by Nugent Dodds, assistant attorney general.

Frank G. Cunningham, clerk of the court, was called and identified certain court records concerning bankruptcy hearings in the case of the Consolidated Hotels Corporation, a Smith Co. subsidiary.

Describes Clipping Coupons.

Two witnesses, Ralph A. Xander, of the Commercial National Bank, and Lewis E. Thomas, former treasurer of the Smith Co., testified concerning two items in the bill of particulars. Regarding one of these, Mr. Xander identified records of his bank covering the account of the Stoneridge Building Co., which showed that a cash item identical with one in the bill had been deposited to the company's credit March 6, 1928. Mr. Thomas described clipping coupons from bonds belonging to Mr. Pitts in July, 1929, the total of these coupons equaling another item in the bill.

Most of the afternoon was taken up by Mr. Raichle in reading from minute books of the Smith Co. These minutes were those of directors' and stockholders' meetings, at which both Mr. Henry and Mr. Pitts were present. In several instances, Mr. Raichle read that Mr. Henry had nominated directors to be officers.

In answer to an objection from Neil Burkinshaw, assistant District attorney, Mr. Raichle said that he was reading these items to show that Mr. Henry was not prevented by a conspiracy, as he had charged, from taking a major part in the affairs of the company. Mr. Henry had stated, on cross-examination previously, that such a conspiracy had existed and that he was unable to "horn in with a spear."

In case Mr. Coblentz is unable to testify today, it is expected that a few minor witnesses will be heard.

Catdom's Elite Revel In Show's Spotlights

Columbia Fanciers Give Exhibition for Benefit of Poor Children.

The aristocrats of the Capital's catdom displayed their graces yesterday in the annual show of the Columbia Cat Fanciers, Inc., at the Lee House, for the benefit of the children of the Emergency Home of the Central Union Mission. Nearly 200 cats of high and low degree were benched in the big Virginia room at the hotel. In the afternoon a bus load of children from the Emergency Home descended on the scene and joined the throng viewing the exhibition of feline charms.

The children were guests of honor and cats were released from their cages to perform for them. After a distribution of candy and other goodies, it took the united efforts of the children's chaperons, Mrs. Mary Hantzmon, manager of the show; Mrs. Evelyn McCoy, secretary of the affair, and Mrs. Amelia M. Olmsted, chairman of the show committee, to unravel the tangle.

Cats of champion caliber from a score of cities were contered in the 100 classes listed for judging. Mrs. Gertrude E. Taylor, of Detroit, president of the Cat Fanciers Association of America, did the judging and made awards in more than 50 classes at the session. The exhibition will continue this morning, this afternoon and tonight.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John C. Palmer before an improvised altar banked with white lilies. The drawing rooms were decorated with ferns, smilax and yellow and white chrysanthemums, and a stringed orchestra played.

CONGRATULATIONS seem to be in order for William S. Paley, of Columbia, the youngest and least known, of the big radio executives, for his capture of seven of the largest concert bureaus in the United States and enough famous songbirds and instrumentalists to keep his stations broadcasting continously for the next ten years.

Where before Columbia was shy on high grade musical talent "Bill" Paley now has so many stars of the first magnitude at his comand that he may have Galli-Curci telling bedtime stories for want of a better spot for her on the program.

Praise for Paley's coup from Otto H. Kahn, who thus far has almost exploded when anyone mentioned radio, causes us to wonder if the Columbia executive might not next go after the heretofore elusive Metropolitan Opera House performances.

At any rate, Paley, like "Old Man River," "jes keeps rollin' along." Only he "plants cotton." And every so often he plants a little "gun-cotton" like that which he set off under the concert bureaus this week.

Amos n' Andy, whom an Englishman described as those "amusing American negroes who advertise a toothwash" are to be heard in a special broadcast to London New Year's. However, since England deletes advertising there will be no reference to the "toothwash."

BETWEEN halves of the Army-Navy game today Secretary of War Hurley will ask listeners to have a heart and pay the Salvation Army unemployment fund for their "radio tickets."

When new announcers are tried out they are asked to say quickly: "Is this a zither?"

Program directors who are doling out large doses of inferior music under the impression that is what the public wants should profit by what Walter Damrosch told the New York advertising men:

"It is not true that the majority of the listening public is not enamored of the finest music," Dr. Damrosch said. "If my four years of broadcasting have taught me nothing else, they have brought out that fact very definitely. Give the people the best and they will learn to appreciate it. Teach them that music is a language they can understand and they will love it and revel in it."

ANOTHER foreign country will be visited in the Washington Gas Light Ensemble travel series tonight when Rudolph Schramm, the new conductor, presents the following all-Russian program at 6:15 o'clock.

Excerpts from the Caucasian sketches, Ippolitov-Ivanoff; "Russian Lullaby," Irving Berlin; Prelude, piano solo by Rudolf Schramm, Rachmaninoff; "Danse Russe Trepak," Tschaikowski; "Andante," from the Fifth Symphony, Tschaikowski, and "Song of the Volga Boatmen," Russian folksong.

A microphone which the speaker may disregard entirely was used here when Sergius P. Grace, of the Bell Telephone laboratories addressed the Washington Board of Trade. Placed in the breast pocket of the coat, the new type "mike" caught his voice through chest vibrations. Its main advantage was that instead of the speaker having to stand still directly in front of the microphone of the public address system in the hall he was at liberty to move about at will. It can also be used in radio broadcasting.

Dr. J. T. Read, Columbia University, will speak for the National Coal Association in the "Romance of American Industry" series tonight (WMAL, 7:15 p. m.).

THE songs heard over the air most last week were: "Three Little Words," 44 times; "Cheerful Little Earful," 43 times, and "Loving You the Way I Do," 29 times.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

Time to think about making the kiddies laughter ring out on Christmas morn! (says Dare).

Paris, December 12.

MAKING gifts for the children serves a double purpose, one, of economy, the other of being able to give them special things that would be difficult if not impossible to find ready to buy.

And as to pleasing them, these gifts often please them more than the expensive ones that either bore them or don't justify their expense in entertainment. Not that one should not buy gifts for the little ones, oh no! But one should not be discouraged if the budget doesn't seem to allow quite as many as one would wish.

And you don't have to sell yourself the idea, either, nor the kiddies. Their little egotistical prides delight in showing off their Christmas toys to other children, to be sure, but little minds do not care for the expensiveness of a toy and do care for its play value, or its oddness.

So cast about in your mind and in attics full of trunks for the wherewithal—drag forth old and forgotten toys, broken ones, wheels from this and wheels from that, and get busy with needle, thread, paints and hammer. You will find, perhaps to your surprise, that toy after toy will emerge, quite as many and quite as new as anything that you would buy if you had just oodles and oodles of money to spend.

• • • •

And then there are some really delightful toys for kiddies that Clever Fingers can make, all described to you in our new leaflet for which you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope right this minute. There is a darling Kris Kringle made from a pine cone or two or three, with a toy pack full of miniature toys, all of which you can make, for instance. Then there is jewelry for dolly and little sister herself, made of colored button molds and beads, and oh, ever so many cunning things that you can make for the kiddies! Address that letter to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

• • • •

Saturday is relaxation day in this department, you know—most everything but Fashuns is liable to find its way into here—is that right? For instance, the handsome Swede who guaranteed to take off the extra pounds that drape one's ageing figger with assorted knobs and bumps, 'member I told you about this a while back? Well, he has taken several of 'em off, and he isn't a Swede, but a Dane—and according to him, that makes a-1-1-1 the dif-ference.

By the way, he comes in on the "She Fell to Pieces" program, yelped from his broad writing station Dare every so often.

• • • •

Have you seen the new and lovely-lady-ish way to be talcumed? Yes, with an atomizer, honestly! And a smart looking one too, a real decoration in the modern manner—square and squat and of black glass. Maybe it saves the talcum from going on in chunks, maybe it's just new—but it's nice, oh very!

• • • •

And tomorrow we have again the weekly Dare fashion letter. Do look for it in the big Sunday Washington Post.

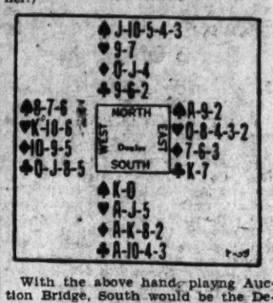
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)



With the above hand playng Auction Bridge, South would be the Declarer with a No Trump contract (three No Trumps at Contract Bridge).

West would open his only long suit—Clubs—and lead the fourth best card of that suit. If the Eight had been the Nine or Ten, in other words, if the suit had been headed by Queen-Jack-Nine or Queen-Jack-Ten, he would have led the Queen. With the Five led, dummy would play the Deuce, East the King, and South the Ace.

It is important to differentiate between this case and the common one in which an Ace is held up until the third round of an adverse suit. That is done when the Declarer has no other stopper in the suit and wishes to exhaust the partner of the leader so that he can not continue the suit if he obtains the lead. But in this case the Declarer has another stopper in the suit; the Nine and one other in dummy and the Ten and two others in closed hand constitute a second stopper.

If South did not play the Ace on the King and East continued the suit, Declarer playing small from his own hand once more would make only his Ace; West would win the second trick and discontinue the suit.

Winning the first Club trick, Declarer should lead his King of Spades, followed with the Queen if the King won. Seeing five Spades in the dummy, East probably will not overtake with the Ace. In that case, the Queen winning and the South hand having no more Spades, the North hand would be put in with a Diamond and the Jack of Spades led, thus forcing the Ace and establishing a suit. As the dummy has another entry in Diamonds, the two Spades can be cashed and this assures Declarer of at least four Spade tricks, one Heart, four Diamonds and one Club.

When East wins with the Ace of Spades, if he chooses to lead Clubs two Club tricks can be taken, leaving the remaining tricks for the Declarer. If he chooses to lead Hearts, Declarer can win with the Ace, cash his Spades and will have a losing card for the thirteenth trick, but in the meantime he will have scored four-odd. If Declarer allows East to win the first trick and East then leads Hearts, game can not be made.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the "Playing Problems." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"Playing Problems" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"Playing Problems," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high priced text books, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address Milton C. Work, care Washington Post.

ACIDOPHILUS MILK.

(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

The following are the directions for preparing acidophilus milk in the home.

After boiling water is poured over the top of a can of milk the can is cut about halfway around with an opener which has been previously boiled. Neither the can nor utensils to be used should be dried. The plug of the culture tube is removed carefully and the mouth of the tube passed through a flame. After the lid of the can is opened just sufficiently to permit the entrance of the mouth of the tube the culture is poured into the milk. The contents of the can are stirred with a spoon which has been boiled in water. The top of the can is then pressed down and covered with a clean dish. The can is kept at a temperature as near 100 degrees Fahrenheit as possible for about 24 hours or until the milk has curdled. The milk may be incubated in a fireless cooker. After the milk has curdled a spoonful of this milk is transferred to another can of milk, the same precautions being observed as in the use of the culture. This process is repeated from day to day.

With great care it is possible in this way to carry the culture from day to day and to have a fresh supply of acidophilus milk every day that will contain a large number of viable acidophilus bacteria. The curdled milk may be diluted with fresh milk if the product is too concentrated to be palatable. If the product acquires an off flavor or odor, it is contaminated and should be discarded and a new culture obtained. No harm can result from allowing the milk to remain in an open can.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to pot the inclosed plant for house use. It has been growing in my garden all summer and even now is not injured by the cold weather. Also tell me its name; I do not know the plant. MRS. W. H. B. B.

The leaf and blossom you inclose were from the nicotiana (flowering tobacco), a garden annual. It would be useless to attempt to lift this plant, as it would not live in the house.

Please tell me how to rid my garden of soft snails. I am still seeing their silvery tracks. Also, please tell me the name of the inclosed leaves. MRS. F. F.

You can make traps by perforating the upper edges of empty tin vegetable cans. Lace soft twine through the holes so they cross at right angles, fill the cans with water and sprinkle some dry breakfast food over the tops of the strings. Submerge the cans in the soil until the edges are level with the surface. The snails will be attracted by the cereal and in attempting to creep on the strings will fall into the water and drown. If you care to write again inclosing a self-addressed envelope, I shall be glad to tell you of a proprietary preparation which will get rid of the snails and thus save making traps. The leaves you inclosed were from the euphorbia (snow-on-the-mountain).

Please tell me the name of the plant from which the inclosed leaf was taken, also the care of the plant. MRS. C. A.

Your plant is a Christmas cactus (epiphylium). Keep the plant in a warm, dry place. Give it a moderately rich soil and all the sun possible and at all times see that it has plenty of fresh air. Except when in flower it will not tolerate much water. The buds are apt to dry off if given too much water during dry weather.

Please tell me when to plant some seed from a yellow iris. What is the proper care of iris in general. I do not know the plants sufficiently well to distinguish between the different varieties. MRS. L. S.

It is not practical to attempt to grow iris from seed. As a class all iris require a sunny situation, a fair amount of moisture and a well drained soil. It is best to lift and divide them at least once in three years

Please tell me the cause and remedy for the condition of my phloxes which you will see upon examining the inclosed leaves are diseased. ELIZABETH H. W.

Your plants are covered with mildew and are also attacked by red spider. Better spray the plants with Bordeaux mixtures. Spray the roots at this time and again before growth starts in the spring.

Please tell me how to get rid of ants which have attacked my house plants, also whether they are a serious menace to plants in general. H. L. P.

Ants sometimes damage plants by nesting in them and by their galleries opening up passages of decay into the interior of the sound parts, causing the death of the plant. Sometimes they are injurious through colonizing and protecting aphids. Often, however, they are merely annoying, attracted to plants by the presence of aphids or other sucking insects. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the name of a proprietary preparation which will aid you in getting rid of the ants. I do not know your plant from the description given.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph.D.

THE family name "Barker" is of English and ultimately of Scandinavian origin. It was first applied to persons who stripped trees of their bark for the tanners, and it may therefore be translated "the bark-stripper," "the bark-preparer," and "the bark-dealer." Not infrequently, however, "Barker" represents the Anglo-French "Berquier," which means "the shepherd." The Latinized form "Barcarius", is sometimes found in old registers. A certain Alan le Barkere and a Robert Barcarius are mentioned in the Hundred Rolls. An English document dated 1306 mentions the name of Osbert le Barker.

The family name "Barkus" (also spelled "Barkas" and "Barkis") is of English origin. It is a corrupted form of "Bark-house," and implies that the persons who were first so called lived in or near a house where bark was stored for tanning purposes. This name does not seem to be found in the earliest records. An English church register of the year 1774 mentions the granting of a marriage license to a certain George Barkas.

The family name "Lenz" has come down to us from two quite different German sources. In most cases it represents a shortened form of "Lando." "Lando," in turn, is generally a shortened form of the earlier "Landoberht" which may be translated "land-bright" or "land-famous." Some times "Lenz" is a modern diminutive form of "Laurentius." "Laurentius" (English "Laurence" and "Lawrence") is of Latin origin, and means "he who comes from Laurentum." "Laurentum" (a town in Latium), is derived from the Latin "laurus," meaning "the laurel tree."

Jean's Santa Claus

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Jean Melba, a small town girl from Kelser, Conn., who sometimes thinks she is in love with Phillip Baldwin, an ardent suitor who promises to appear Christmas morning with a marriage license. Losing her Kelser stenographic job, Jean looks for work in New York, planning to live with Mollie Wilder, a more sophisticated friend. To her dismay, Jean learns that Mollie has married and left town. The situation is saved by Sandy Clause, a handsome but enigmatical young man who protects her from a master's advances, and since he has lost her traveling bag in the shuffle, arranges for Jean to spend that night at the apartment of Marcia White, whose quasi-hospitality does not blind Jean to the fact that her abode is no haven of safety. Sandy leaves but Jean's fears are indorsed by the appearance of two sinister men, Slim Diggers, and Fargeson, alias Sampson. Jean flees the apartment and observes Sandy returning. The next day he gets her a job with the I. P. P. P. and learns that Fargeson was murdered the night before in Marcia's apartment. Sandy tells Jean he did not return, although she knows she saw him and he later tells her he did come back—but not to Marcia's apartment. The I. P. P. P. is the Institute of Practical Philanthropy which Sandy manages; it aims to fulfill the wish of an eccentric but benevolent millionaire to encourage motherhood ideals among little girls by giving them Christmas dolls, to be known as miniature babies. Jean maps out a campaign to give every poor little girl in New York a miniature baby, and also locates Mollie, whose marriage has ended disastrously. The two girls live together. In the meantime Lionel Gilman, Sandy's assistant, takes advantage of the latter's absence in Boston to make love to Jean. Phil Baldwin arrives in town to look over the situation and when Lionel and he start fighting Jean realizes she can never care for either of them. Sandy returns from Boston and accidentally meets Jean on Fifth avenue where she is staring covetously at an ermine wrap in a show window. Jean discovers little Ellen, daughter of Fargeson, and coming home one night finds Mollie mysteriously disturbed. Soon after, while taking Sandy on a visit to little Ellen, Jean learns that Marcia is the child's mother.

Marcia accuses Jean of the murder; the latter tells Sandy that Marcia is lying, is rebuked by Sandy for attacking Marcia's character—and slams out of the office.

Still furiously angry with Sandy, Jean writes Phil suggesting a reconciliation. A little later, when Mollie observes Lionel calling on Jean to keep a date with her, Mollie admits that he is her husband. Phil writes from Connecticut that he is willing and eager to marry Jean on Christmas morning.

During a chilly encounter with Sandy, Jean tells him she is planning to quit her job and leave New York immediately after Christmas.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

December 13.

Nine working days to Christmas. • • • How long it seems; and yet before I realize it, those nine days will have flown and the memorable New York interlude will be over. • • • Some day, perhaps, I will feel that the experience was worth while. • • • Just now I am sick of it. • • • Just a few weeks ago I was in Kelsey, the office force of the Red Diamond Novelty Company. • • • I can hardly believe I am the same person. • • • Certainly I have had enough adventure to satisfy what craving I had. • • • And adventure of a sort I shouldn't have chosen if I had my way about it • • • in some ways it seemed like a dream • • • Sandy, Marcia, Fargeson, Diggers, Lionel, Ellen • • • imaginary characters in my little play. • • • And yet as real and as vital in my life as was Phil and the crowd back home. • • • Only Mollie and Phil got hold of my old world to the new. • • • They are the only characters common to both. • • • But it's almost over now. • • • In less than two weeks, there will be only Phil and the substantial, if unexciting, life of Kelsey. • • • I had my session with Sandy yesterday. • • • He was awfully sober and business like, • • • I thought, too, he was a little sad. • • • He asked me if I would stay on after Christmas with an increase in salary. • • • There was a moment when I was leaving that almost got me. • • • I forgot all about his defense of Marcia; I forgot everything but his haggard look and the hurt in his eyes and wanted to go to him and tell him it didn't matter. • • • But I couldn't somehow. • • • I don't hate him any more, but I can't pretend I've forgotten.

It was typical of Jean's placid existence before she went to New York that she should assume each day that the exciting portion of her adventure was over. Day after day she wrote in her diary as if there were nothing more to think about save the uneventful interim until Christmas and her return to Kelsey. And though the next day brought fresh problems and further complications, she told herself once more the adventure was over, that it was now only a question of waiting.

When, therefore, she received a telephone call from Lionel shortly after she had gone back to the factory in the afternoon she anticipated nothing beyond a mildly interesting conversation, a report, perhaps, of his progress with Mollie.

Recognizing his voice, he said casually: "So you're working Saturday afternoon, too?"

"Listen, Jean. • • •" There was an odd note in his voice that caused her to suddenly lean toward the mouthpiece, expectantly • • • "I'm not at the office; I'm using a public phone • • • Can you come to the office at once • • •?"

"Why • • • of course. But why?"

"Sandy • • • I can't talk about it over the phone. Something's happened. I'm not sure what it is, but he's like a mad man. Will you come right up • • • •?"

"You know I can, but • • • I don't understand. Does Sandy want me to come to the office?"

"No • • • but you might help. Listen • • •" his voice was suddenly a hoarse whisper • • • "Marcia was with him most of the morning. You never heard such storming. What about I don't know, but she left him in a fine state. I tried to talk with him, but he ordered me out of the office. But some one must see him, or • • • I tell you, he's fit for murder now. Won't you come up, Jean • • •?"

Jean stared at the wall before her, trying to piece his nervous sentences into something tangible. What did Lionel want her to do? She understood enough, however, to realize that something was seriously wrong.

"I'll come, of course," she told him, presently. "But what am I expected to do when I get there? If Sandy refused to talk with you, he'll probably throw me out the window."

"No, he won't! He'll listen to you, Jean. You know he will. Please • • •"

She left the factory at once, walking to the subway with quick, nervous strides. Lionel had appealed to her, she decided, on the theory that they were still good friends. Lionel knew nothing of their break. But why had he thought it necessary for some one to talk to Sandy? If Marcia had left him in a temper, there was nothing she, Jean, could do about it. But one thing Lionel had said rang in her ears • • • "I tell you, he's fit for murder • • •"

Surely, Lionel did not think that Sandy was likely to grow violent—quiet, good-natured Sandy, who was rarely angry. Perhaps he had said something in Lionel's presence, threatened. • • •

Entering the building, she was conscious of a sense of impending trouble. Sandy would resent her presence. Certainly he would not permit her to interfere in his affairs. Nor was there any reason why she should. She was, she told herself, a fool for letting Lionel persuade her to come.

Lionel was standing by his desk, swinging the little knife on his watch chain nervously. When he saw her, he made a little gesture with his hands and shook his head slowly.

"You're too late," he said despairingly. "He went off five minutes ago."

"But—what is it, Lionel? Where has he gone?" She searched his grave countenance for a hint of what was in his mind. "Why are you so concerned? Sandy's sane. Surley there's nothing I could have done ——"

"You don't know," he declared. "And I'm not so sure that he's sane. I've never seen him behave so before. You should have seen him when Marcia left his office. He stood in that door there with his fists clenched and his face blood-red."

Jean said irritably: "You've been talking like a child since you called me at the factory, Lionel. Can't you tell me what happened? You've impressed me sufficiently with the fact that Sandy was angry. But is that all ——?"

"You don't understand," Lionel cried helplessly. "You couldn't understand unless you had seen him. Angry? I tell you, Jean, he was out of his mind. I don't know what Marcia said to him. She talked at the top of her voice, but you can't distinguish words out here. She was in there all of two hours. They'd talk fairly quietly for awhile. Then Marcia's voice would rise again. • • • And once there was a noise as if Sandy was moving his desk."

"Moving his desk? Why should he do that?"

"Oh, I don't know. But it sounded like that."

"How long ago did Marcia leave?" Jean asked.

Lionel looked at his watch mechanically. "A little before 12. It is almost 2 now. If only you. • • •"

The Telephone on Lionel's desk rang. He lifted the receiver and answered. Then: "Oh • • • hello, Dad. • • • I'm sorry, but I've been detained at the office. • • • If • • •"

Jean waved a hand to attract his attention. "Tell him you're on your way. You can't do any good hanging around here."

Lionel stared at her for a moment, then nodded, reluctantly. "Listen, Dad, tell Mother I'm leaving the office at once. But Mollie won't be able to come with me. She • • • she's attending a bridge party. I'll go back for her at 6 • • •"

He put the instrument down and turned to Jean again. "I don't dare suggest it," he told her, "but I wish Mollie would give up her job. I'm having the devil's own time explaining to the folks why she's never available until after 6 in the evening."

Jean smiled sympathetically. "You are having a struggle of it, aren't you? But keep your courage up, big fellow. Mollie was as radiant as a spring bride this morning. There must be some reason for it."

"Do you suppose she really cares for me • • • at all, Jean?"

"Of course she does." Jean declared convincingly. "To tell you the truth, Lionel, I think Mollie's experiencing a sort of rebirth. Women are all alike at heart, and the maternal instinct is the greatest thing in a woman's life. It mellows her, smooths out the little eccentric kinks, and • • • she sees things differently. • • • Be patient, Lionel, and give her time. Mollie is well worth winning back • • • if you can manage it."

"Lord! Don't I know it! She's wonderful • • •". He suddenly sobered. "Are you going to stay here?"

Jean nodded. "For an hour anyway. You run on. I think you've let your nerves get the best of you. Sandy's all right."

• • • •

But when Lionel had gone and she was alone in the office, the force of the fear he had felt but had not been able to explain dawned upon her. It may have been the silence, or the conspicuous emptiness of the big room in which she sat. For the first time she seemed to understand that what Lionel had seen in Sandy's face had, in combination with the circumstances immediately preceding, given Lionel ample cause for alarm.

What had occurred between Sandy and Marcia? What could Marcia have said or done to affect Sandy so? Had he finally investigated the charges Jean had made in Marcia's presence and found them to be true? But nothing could explain such a violent mood as Lionel had observed.

The telephone bell broke upon her thought rudely, causing her to start nervously.

"Hello——"

"Is Mr. Clause in?" It was a man's voice.

"No. May I take the message?"

"Are you his secretary?"

Jean hesitated. Then, "Yes——"

"Can you get him right away?"

"I—I'll do my best; yes——"

"Well, this is police headquarters. Tell him a Miss Marcia White was just shot to death in her apartment on 114th street, and we found his card and telephone number in her purse. • • • Get it?"

"Why • • • wait • • • you say she was • • • shot to death ——?"

"That's right. And we want him to come to headquarters the minute you find him——"

Jean pushed the telephone away from her slowly. "Oh • • • Sandy!" The words were like a sob. • • • Sandy • • • • you • • • you couldn't • • •" And suddenly she buried her face in her hands.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Noted and passed on: Buddy Rogers will get that airplane he wants for Christmas. His friend, Richard Arlen, practical joker, has bought for Buddy a dilapidated, engineless, wartime "Jenny," a crate, in fliers' parlance.

Mary Duncan.

The telephone number of a Negro night club here is 7777.

Jack Oakie's mother keeps clippings of everything written about him, even the few adverse comments.

A screen vampire one would least expect to be athletic is Mary Duncan. She plays in many Hollywood tennis tournaments, and quite well.

Since George Gershwin came to town to write for the talkies he has been turning down invitations nearly every night to play "Rhapsody in Blue."

Arthur Stanley Jefferson's screen name is Stan Laurel.

Turns Executive.

Douglas MacLean, from whom not much has been heard in the last two years, has become an executive in one of the large studios.

The former comedy star attempted to produce his own pictures and, like Charles Ray, Harry Langdon, Raymond Griffith, Natcha Rambova and others, failed. Only a few, among them Pickford, Chaplin, Lloyd, Fairbanks, have been successful in the dual role of producer-actor.

A small percentage of the 25,000 in Hollywood who are earning, or trying to earn, a living by acting are stars. The number, by actual count, is 44. A year ago there were nearly twice that many.

It is not an indication that the star system is passing; rather, that the position is becoming more difficult to maintain, and doubly so to attain. Personalities strong enough to sell pictures will always be necessary.

Clara Lucky?

In some respects Clara Bow is a lucky girl. She can romp through one escapade after the other and never get scratched.

If her popularity with movie fans has decreased in the last two years it is not because of her mischievous pranks, but because the films starring her have been pretty poor ones. Stars, you know, are judged cinematically by the quality of their pictures.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

PREVENTING FATIGUE.

Many children's irritability, apathy and poor appetite are found upon examination to be directly caused by a condition of chronic fatigue.

The recommendations which the doctor makes on such occasions will be of no help unless they are faithfully carried out by the parent through days and weeks and months.

The child who has been suffering from chronic fatigue needs above all things to get enough sleep. Short periods of rest during the day, especially just before meals, are advisable.

At a certain summer camp it was found that the children ate and digested their food much better when they were made to lie down for 20 minutes just before the noon and evening meals.

Meals for the tired child should be planned with especial reference to balanced nourishment and digestibility. This often means extra work which must be undertaken by the busy mother as part of the conscientious performance of her duty.

In some cases it is advisable for school hours to be curtailed. With older children, home work should be cut down to a minimum or eliminated altogether.

Everything possible must be done to arouse the child's interest in active out-of-door play.

Lastly, he must be protected from anything which might cause worry and depression, and from emotional burdens of all sorts.

Situations which give rise to such destructive emotions as jealousy, rage and feelings of inferiority, must be avoided. The benefits of the wisest physical routine may be entirely vitiated by bad emotional attitudes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WRITES ON ERYSIPELAS.

W. O. C. asks for an article on erysipelas. He wants especially to know how it is contracted and if it is contagious.

Erysipelas is a very old disease and in its history has changed its character materially. One of the changes relates to its contagiousness. Once a very much dreaded epidemic disease, spreading over the country somewhat as influenza did in 1918, it has now dwindled to such small proportions that some health departments do not require it to be reported.

It is caused by one of the streptococci. Clinically, it is peculiar in that it spreads widely along the skin surface, causing redness and local swelling, but having almost no tendency to cause abscesses or to produce pus. Although the cocci do not spread beyond the skin vicinity, they secrete poisons which are absorbed and cause high fever, rapid pulse, delirium and other constitutional symptoms. The cocci get into the tissues through wounds. Sometimes the entrance wound is found with difficulty. A person with erysipelas acts as though he were very gravely ill, as sometimes he is, but the rule is that the danger of fatality is less than it seems to be.

There is an erysipelas antitoxin and it is reasonably satisfactory. In some cases it acts in the same magic fashion as we expect diphtheria and scarlet fever antitoxin to do in suitable cases. The development of this antitoxin is one of the achievements of medicine. As this remedy became available the use of ichthyol fell into disuse. The latter was so unpleasant and generally objectionable that nurses, patients and physicians were glad to usher it out the back door.

At one time erysipelas was a very great menace to women in childbirth and to persons who had been operated on. Cases of this disease were not allowed in surgical hospitals or maternity wards. No physician attending erysipelas was allowed to operate or to attend maternity cases. The contagion was believed to cause either septic fever, suppuration or erysipelas. There has been reduction in this danger and the precautions taken have been changed somewhat.

POISON IVY TREATMENT.

REPLY.

Send 10 cents and a stamped, addressed envelope for "Some First Aid Procedures," No. 14 of the How to Live With Series. The best preventive measure is avoiding the weed. Second in rank is thorough washing of the exposed skin with warm water and soap, or with gasoline.

DEPENDS ON CONDITION.

J. L. writes:

1. Is it safe for a man who has a murmur of the heart to get married?
2. Will his children inherit it?

REPLY.

1. It is. Whether marriage would be wise depends on the condition of his heart.
2. No.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

This date will contain an element of unexpected luck, but will prove to be rather "nervy" and unsettled. A different mental outlook will be born out of the day's happenings.

Children born on this December 13 will be capable of lifting themselves by their own merits to positions of honor. Having a restless and creative mind, they will be in search for knowledge. They will be slow to anger, but hard to appease.

If you be a woman, and your birthday is on a December 13, you are fitted for one of the "mothering careers," which include medicine, nursing and housewifery. You would be happy and efficient in any vocation where you could serve for other people, and administer to their comforts. You have the gentle, sympathetic touch, which is so appreciated by those in trouble, and you know how to say the right thing at the right time. You are very unselfish, and No. 1 is the last preson you think of, and not the first. There are times, when you do not sufficiently stick up for your own rights, and your sacrifices and services are wasted on ungrateful people.

If you are of the masculine sex, you are rather too diffident and considerate in the practical affairs of life. You are extraordinarily apt in arbitration for others and in settling differences, but you do not seem to be able to apply the same judgment and force to your own affairs. You are not fitted for a commercial life, or sedentary work, and you should be successful in some agricultural pursuit. You are very fond of animals, and you know how to handle them. You have homely and simple tastes, and the comforts and pleasures, which you receive within the home are satisfying, and you seek few interests away from your own fireside. A formal social life frightens and bores you.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

SHE HAS MENTALITY.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am coming to you not for advice, but for an opinion. A different opinion, and perhaps a wiser and certainly a more mature one than my own.

I am 23—I've led a rather sheltered life, which means that while I've always been free to come and go pretty much as I please, still I've had the protection of a home and family. I've been going places with the male of the species since about the age of 16 and have met nearly every known variety in that time. I've been "in love" four or five times and have experienced breathless infatuations at least twice as many times.

Some two or three years ago I decided that I want to be married, some time, because I feel that I have no other interest strong enough to enable me to lead a comparatively happy life without marriage. Now the question is this: Is it possible to know or understand love before marriage?

It seems to me that love is something that is built up by long years of mutual liking, respect and hardships and happiness endured or enjoyed together. How, then, is it possible to say beforehand that you do or don't love another person? I have found in my own experience that I can get along without any man, when I make the effort. One year a man may be everything to me—and the next just another person going along like the rest of us. I feel that I could have married any one of the men I have liked especially well and lived happily with him for years to come.

Am I right or is there something that I have missed? I do want to be married. Life without it will be endurable and even pleasurable, I know, but for me it will be not nearly as full or complete. ANNE.

You write a most interesting letter, do you know it? You have a keen mind and a gift of expression that I possess. You will make life very interesting for some one! And you guessed right. You could indeed have gone along very happily with one of the men who "clicked." Married you would have proceeded to the business of "hardships and happiness endured and enjoyed together," and by now would be utterly absorbed in junior's diet.

Love is a sense of deep attraction, affection and respect made glamorous by a thrilling sense of discovery and a soothing sense of having arrived. When you feel it again, sign on the dotted line. You will live happily and intelligently ever after.

The fact that you can go along without any man at all need not disturb you. That is a characteristic of superior women. They are quite capable of hectic emotion. And quite capable of complete indifference to the gorgeous sex. Equal parts emotion and mentality, my child. You will find marriage quite enthralling, despite the fact that you are not a mere bundle of helpless emotion. Pick your man and fear nothing.

POST COOKING GAME ENGROSSING WOMEN

PRIZES ARE ATTRACTIVE

Hundreds of Washington housewives and those in the immediate vicinity of the Capital set themselves about the pleasant task of unscrambling the Post Scrambled Recipes in last Saturday's Post with hope of winning some of the attractive prizes offered in this unique contest.

By every mail the letters came pouring in containing the solutions until the desk of the writer detailed to handle it looked as if some of the mail intended for Santa Claus had found its way there instead.

The old nursery rhyme declares:

Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall
Humpty Dumpty had a great fall.
All the king's horses and all the king's men
Couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again.

That may be very true but the women readers of The Washington Post proved to their own and others' satisfaction that while they might not be able to unscramble eggs it was a simple enough task to put the recipes published in last Saturday's Post in this contest together again.

Contestants Too Hasty.

A really surprising number of women through haste in answering, matched up the ingredients in such a way as to divulge the fact that if they had taken a little more time they might have had a better chance to win.

The decision of the judges on the entries received up to 6 p. m., Thursday will be published in The Washington Post of Saturday next.

Checks will be sent to the winners in time to be very useful for Christmas spending money.

Three more scrambled recipes are printed in today's Washington Post. Put on your thinking caps, Washington women and those outside the city who read The Washington Post, and send in your solutions.

Please observe the rules of the contest closely. Neatness as well as accuracy and novelty of presentation of answers will count in the awards of the prizes.

Each entry must be accompanied by the full name and address of the sender.

Many amusing letters were received with the entries. One housewife wrote: "I never knew until I tried to fit those ingredients into their proper dishes how rusty my culinary knowledge had grown. I think it is a most entertaining game and even if I do not win this time I intend to try and try again until I am successful."

From a suburb of the city came this letter: "I am so grateful that women outside of Washington have a separate division of their own in this contest. My whole family is watching my first entrance into any newspaper contest with the keenest interest."

Who Are Not Eligible.

It is emphasized that no women who earn their living, in whole or in part, as teachers of domestic science or cookery and dietitians are eligible to receive these awards. Entries from girls under 18 years of age also will not be accepted.

As announced in the advertising columns in the full-page announcement of this contest The Post can not undertake to return any entries or to engage in correspondence on the subject. It is also pointed out that you need not purchase The Washington Post to compete, for solutions may be sent in on separate sheets of paper other than the recipe blank printed in The Washington Post today. Be sure and put the name of the recipe you are trying to put together at the top of each sheet.

Judging from the hundreds of letters received in the contest all feminine Washington as well as many territories outside of the Capital are interested in this novel cooking game. Letters came from all types of Washington women showing how closely the women's pages of the daily and Sunday Washington Post are read by the women of the city.

Great appreciation was also ex-

Makes Up Half of Dish Eaten by People of Country; Now Ever Fresh.

HOW TO ROAST CUTS

The Christmas roast pig of song and story will appear on the tables of Washington homes during the holiday season, judging from the increasing use of pork.

It is amazing to learn that pork makes up nearly half of the meat eaten in the United States. Although most of the pork reaches the consumer as cured ham, shoulder, bacon and other preserved products, modern refrigerating methods make possible an abundant supply of the fresh meat at all seasons.

The Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture in a bulletin entitled "Pork in Preferred Ways" reminded the homemaker success in preparing pork cuts depends on regulating the heat so as to cook the meat well done to the center of the piece and at the same time to keep the outside from becoming hard and dry. Moderate cooking temperature is best after the surface has been seared to develop rich flavor. It is neither necessary nor desirable to add water to pork during cooking. Hams, shoulders and loins have sufficient fat on the outside to baste the lean meat, and so do not dry out when roasted fat side up at moderate temperature in open pans without added water. To prevent chops from becoming hard and dry it is necessary to cover them closely after browning and finish the cooking at very moderate heat. Broiling and pan broiling are not successful methods of cooking pork chops.

Pork should always be served well done. Thorough cooking is necessary, because pork sometimes contains the trichina parasite which, if not destroyed, may cause illness. Since this organism is killed when heated to 137 degrees F., there is ample margin of safety when pork is cooked to the well-done stage, 182 degrees.

Boned hams and shoulders, stuffed with well-seasoned bread crumbs and roasted to a turn, are easy to carve, and are attractive when served either hot or cold. As a luncheon or supper dish, cool roast pork is excellent in thin slices with a colorful garnish. Since its flavor is often as delicate as that of chicken, every bit of cooked lean pork can be utilized in the making of delicious sandwiches, salads and many other dishes.

Tasty Baked Ham Appeals At Yuletide

There is something homey and charming about serving Christmas dinner at home with all the family seated around the festive board, indulging in the home-cooked Christmas delicacies. Because food has always played an important part in the Christmas preparations, it is well to give thought to the planning of this meal.

Almost every one had turkey for Thanksgiving, for this year they were very low in price and particularly young and tender. Then, of course, there was the usual cold turkey, turkey hash and, finally, turkey soup announced the "end of Mr. Turkey." So for Christmas plan a meat as tender and delicate in flavor as the turkey, but by far less wasty—a meat that every one is sure to enjoy—a ham.

FOOD STANDARDS OF U. S. EXPLAINED

STAMPS INDICATE GRADE

The answer to the question from housekeepers how they can use Federal standards for food products when they are doing the marketing for their families has been answered by Miss Caroline B. Sherman, of the division of economic information of the Department of Agriculture.

Miss Sherman said in a recent statement on the subject:

"In answering the queries from consumers, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics divides the list of standards of direct interest to consumers into three fairly well-defined groups. One group includes those that can be readily used by the individual housekeeper under certain conditions, because of the device, or stamp or certificate or other visual indication of grade; a second group includes those that are so marked on some wholesale markets and so can be used by the cafeteria manager or other consumer who buys in quantity on those markets, and a third

MAKING OF CANNED GOODS IS WATCHED

Manufacturers and Government Are Keen in Measures for Safety.

PEAS TO BE DISCUSSED

Utmost care is used in preparing canned goods nowadays for commercial use and the Government insures the safety in their use by a constant watch and insistence upon certain standards.

The food and drug administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will hold a hearing in Washington on Monday, when tentative standards for canned peas, peaches and pears will come up for discussion.

Under an amendment to the food and drugs act, approved July 8, 1930, and commonly known as the canners' bill, the Secretary of Agriculture is empowered to establish reasonable standards of quality, condition and fill of container for the various classes of canned food with the exception of meat, meat products and milk. The Secretary is also authorized to prescribe proper designations for those canned foods which fall below the established standards. These designations will also come up for discussion at the hearing, which will be held at 10 a. m. in the conference room of the new Department of Agriculture Building. The hearing will be continued as long as may be necessary to afford full discussion of all the matters coming up for consideration, says W. G. Campbell, director of regulatory work. Several thousand notices are being sent out to those interested, whether canners, distributors or consumers, and the administration is announcing the hearing in the trade and general press.

New Era in Food Legislation.

The passage of the canners' amendment, says Mr. Campbell, marked a new era in pure food legislation in that the amendment is the result of a demand from the industry for Government regulation. The avowed purpose of the legislation is to promote fair dealing in the interest of the consumer by giving to the American housewife fair warning on the outside of the package whenever the quality, condition and amount of food in the container is not that which she reasonably has a right to expect. Among the shortcomings dealt with in the tentative standards Mr. Campbell mentions the following: Improper state of maturity, blemishes, extraneous material, inedible portions of the raw material, abnormal colors and flavors, excessive trimming, small size or lack of uniformity in the units, excessive amount of liquid, and containers insufficiently filled.

Previous standards in the trade have depended upon expert judgment for evaluating many of these shortcomings, but the food and drug administration has believed from the first that in a standard which has

Roast Loin of Pork And Candied Potatoes

Have the butcher crack the bones of a pork loin roast so that it can be carved in slices between the ribs. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and rub with flour. Lay the loin, ribs down and fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Sear the meat for 30 minutes, or until lightly browned, in a hot oven (480 degrees Fahrenheit), then reduce the temperature rapidly to very moderate heat (300 to 325 degrees), and cook until the meat is tender. A loin weighing from 4 to 5 pounds will probably require from two to two and one-half hours when these oven temperatures are used.

A roast-meat thermometer can be used in a loin just as in a ham. Stick the thermometer into the meat so that the bulb reaches the center of the thickest part of the roast. The loin will be done when the thermometer register 185 degrees.

Serve roast loin hot with candied sweet potatoes or glazed apple rings, or chill and serve in thin slices with a colorful garnish.

Vegetable Soup Made With Vitamins Intact

1 cup diced carrots.
1 cup chopped onion.
1½ cups chopped celery.
1 cup diced turnips.
2 cups diced potatoes.
2 quarts meat stock.
1 cup tomato juice.
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.
6 tablespoons butter.
3 teaspoons salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.

Brown all the vegetables, except the potatoes, in the butter in a skillet for about ten minutes. This helps develop the flavor. Then place the contents of the skillet in a saucepan. Wash out the particles of browned vegetables clinging to the skillet and add to the stock in the saucepan. Boil 20 minutes; then add the potatoes and the tomato juice. Cook 10 to 90 minutes longer. The potatoes are added last, because they do not require much time to cook. If added with the other vegetables, they would be overcooked.

Pineapple Is Served With Sweet Potatoes

3 medium-sized sweet potatoes.
1 can crushed pineapple.
¼ teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons melted butter or other fat.

Select a dry mealy variety of sweet potatoes and cook in the skins in water to cover. When tender, scrape, cut in slices of uniform thickness and place in a shallow greased baking dish. Pour the pineapple over the potatoes, sprinkle with salt and add the fat. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes, or until light brown on the surface and the sirup of the pineapple has become thickened. Serve from the baking dish.

Watercress or Butter Sandwiches.

Watercress sandwiches are made of watercress ground fine, creamed with butter, and spread on Graham bread. Parsley, with a few drops of lemon juice, may be used instead of watercress.

OVEN TEMPERATURE DOMINATES BAKING

Heat Brings Out 5 Changes in Batters and Doughs, Expert Says.

THERMOMETER IS BIG AID

Bread, the staff of life, is one of the most important concerns of the homemaker. Many housewives still prefer to make their own breadstuffs although the modern bakeries anticipates every possible want in the realm of things which can be made from flour.

America is more fortunate than it realizes in the high grade of the flour which is available for the skillful hands of home makers and the great commercial bakeries whose output runs into thousands of loaves of bread and kindred articles a day.

Recently Charlotte Chatfield, associate home economics specialist of the Department of Agriculture, made a report on the subject of home making which contained many valuable hints on the use of flour.

Baking Temperatures.

The heat during baking brings about five important changes in batters and doughs. It hastens the action of baking powder or other chemical leavening agent in forming gas. It causes some of the liquid in the mixture to change to water vapor, which aids in leavening. It hardens the proteins, particularly the gluten in flour and the albumen of egg, cooks the starch, and browns the crust.

The chief knack in baking, then, is to regulate the temperature so that the bread or cake will set as soon as enough gas and water vapor have formed but before they have time to escape or condense.

The correct temperature for baking depends on the kind of leavening, on the proportions of ingredients, and on the size and shape of the product. So far as possible these points are considered in giving temperatures for each type of baked stuff. Large, compact masses take longer to heat through than small, flat ones, and should therefore be baked more slowly. A large loaf cake, for example, needs lower temperature and longer baking than a layer cake.

Thermometer Will Aid.

For most products, if the temperature is right at the start, it need not be changed during baking. A reliable oven thermometer or an automatic temperature regulator that has been tested is the surest means of knowing when the temperature is right. A suitable thermometer may be found at relatively low cost and used in any type of oven.

Especially in baking cakes, the oven door should be opened only when necessary and the pan should be moved as little as possible while the mixture is setting.

If baked at the right temperature, cakes and quick loaf breads may generally be considered done when they shrink from the pan, but for safety they may be tested with a clean straw or toothpick.

When the pans containing cakes in loaves or layers are taken from the oven they should be turned upside down until the cake cools partially and becomes firmer. Cake is too soft and hot for handling when it first comes from the oven. It should be removed from the pan, however, before it reaches room temperature or has a chance to sweat.

Breaded Pork Fillets Served With Watercress

Cut two pork tenderloin strips crosswise to make six fillets 1½ to 2 inches thick. Pound each fillet down to about one-half inch in thickness. Beat one egg with one tablespoon of water. Mix three-fourths cup of dry sifted bread crumbs with three-fourths teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Dip the fillets into the egg mixture, coat them with the bread crumbs, and let the coating dry for about 30 minutes. Brown the fillets lightly in 2 tablespoons of fat in a heavy skillet, pour off excess fat, cover the skillet closely and continue to cook at a moderate heat for 20 minutes or until the meat is tender. Serve hot with a garnish of watercress and thin slices of lemon.

Candied Sweet Potatoes Popular Any Time

6 medium-sized sweet potatoes.
1 cup corn syrup.
½ cup sugar.
½ teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons butter or other fat.

Partially cook the sweet potatoes in boiling water, cool and skin. Cut the potatoes in halves lengthwise, or in three pieces, if the potatoes are large. Put in a greased baking dish large enough for just one layer, not packing too closely.

Make a syrup by boiling the corn syrup, sugar, salt and fat until fairly thick. Pour the syrup over the potatoes, and bake in a very moderate oven for one hour or more. Turn the potatoes carefully as they are cooking.

WOMAN EXPLAINS FOOD STANDARDS

group includes those that can be used through the expenditure of considerable thought and care on the part of the customer, especially if she buys in large quantities. It is possible that only those with whom buying is a business and those housekeepers who have an especial aptitude for or interest in such work will wish to undertake to use the standards in this third group until their applicatoin has been further worked out with the consumer especially in mind.

"In the first group are beef, turkey during the holiday season, eggs, butter and cheese. Canned chicken and other canned chicken products might be roughly included, since those put up by a large number of firms now bear a label denoting wholesomeness if not quality grade, and this is now true of certain dressed rabbits.

"Much effort has been directed by some of the meat specialists of the bureau to teaching housekeepers and other customers how to choose meats of good quality. Lectures, demonstrations, exhibits, pamphlets and posters were used in this campaign. The interest of the housekeepers and their apparent need, along with other factors, stimulated these men to develop a method by which even those housekeepers who are not apt pupils can now choose their cuts of beef with confidence. They devised a roller grading stamp, to be used with ink that is harmless and that usually disappears in cooking. This stamp is moved with an undulating movement over those parts of a carcass that later become retail cuts.

"The stamp repeats the class and grade names in such a way that they appear on each retail cut and give the customer the information she needs regarding its quality. It is different from the purple stamp used in the Federal meat inspection work to show that the carcass has been inspected for diseased condition. The grading work takes place later and is of an optional service. It is especially designed to aid in the merchandising of meats under exactly the true grade names, so that when a housekeeper says she wants a good grade roast or steak she can be sure of getting one of good quality. In fact, this service has been developed with the millions of American housewives particularly in mind."

Waffles Are Popular Throughout the Year

1 cup milk.
1 1-3 cups sifted soft-wheat flour.
2 tablespoons fat
1 to 2 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 tablespoon sugar.
½ teaspoon salt.

In mixing, fold the beaten white of egg into the batter after all the other ingredients have been added. Have the waffle iron hot enough to brown the waffle quickly, and well greased unless it is the electrically heated aluminum kind. In that case add an extra tablespoon of melted shortening to the batter.

Glazed Apple Rings Served With Hot Pork

Cook together 1 cup of water, 1 cup of sugar, and one-eighth teaspoon of salt for about 10 minutes and add 2 tablespoons of butter. Wash, core, and pare four large, tart, firm apples, and cut them crosswise into three or four thick slices. Place the apple rings in a single layer in a buttered shallow pan. Pour the hot sirup over the apple rings, cover, and cook slowly in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until the apples are tender. Remove the cover from the pan, continue to cook the apples until the sirup becomes thick and slightly browned, and turn the slices occasionally. Serve the glazed apple rings with hot roast pork or chill them and serve with cold cuts.

You May Still Make Eggnog These Dry Days

6 egg yolks.
½ cup sugar.
6 egg whites.
4 tablespoons sherry flavoring.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 cup heavy cream.

Chill all the ingredients throughly. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar gradually, beating thoroughly to keep mixture thick. Let stand in the refrigerator until chilled. Add flavoring and salt. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into the egg yolks. Beat cream until stiff and fold into the egg mixture. Pile in sherbet cups and top with a cherry.

Fried Chicken Served In Maryland Style

Select young chickens weighing 2½ to 3 pounds. Clean, singe and disjoint. Sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Dip in beaten egg mixed with a little cold water and then in fine bread crumbs. Melt enough fat in the frying pan to half cover chicken. Cover pan and fry on both sides until a delicate brown. This will require 25 to 30 minutes. Remove chicken to platter and keep hot. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons of the fat. Add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth. Add 2 cups milk and salt and pepper to taste. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Pour around chicken and serve with pieces of broiled ham and corn fritters.

Meals Quickly Made Are Very Helpful to Shoppers

Hot Biscuits Are One of Tricks of Trade in Getting Meals in Hurry; Several Means Are Offered for Persons Needing Quick Service.

By ANNA B. TOWSE.

Already the merchants are warning that there are only a few shopping days before Christmas. After you have spent a day shopping in the Christmas crowd the pursuit of gifts seems a most exhausting experience. During this busy season there will be days when you will not want to spend much time getting meals.

Every woman has a few quick tricks up her sleeve when it comes to getting meals in a hurry. Hot biscuits are one of the quickest tricks. Most women can stir up a batch of muffins in five minutes. Of course, the quicker these breads are mixed up the better the biscuit.

No one would suspect that a dessert like orange custard has been a rush order. Orange custard is partly prepared in the morning because the custard part of the dessert has to be chilled. Paring and slicing the oranges is all that has to be done at dinner time.

We always indorse the can opener but at moments like these you just can't get along without it. Since so many dishes for dinner and supper require milk be sure to have a supply of evaporated milk on your pantry shelves. There is nothing more exasperating than running out of milk when you are trying to prepare a tasty and nutritious meal in a hurry.

Cooking of Wild Game No Problem to Home Chef

By ANNA B. TOWSE.

Along about this time of year the outdoors man gets a queer itching of his trigger finger. He may shoulder his gun and with his trusty dog at his side set off for the fields, to come home with a brace of quail or prairie chickens.

Although the sport lies in the hunting rather than the eating, the successful sportsman enjoys sharing the spoils of the hunt with his friends. And it is the skillful home chef who knows how to prepare game dishes.

Every cook has her own methods for preparing game for the spit or kettle. A housewife living at the edge of the game reserves of Colorado recommends a paraffin bath for the duck. Dry pick it first. Next submerge the duck in boiling hot paraffin and let it cool. The down and pin feathers can then be easily scraped off.

After the duck is drawn, rinse inside and wipe it inside and out with a wet towel. Do not wash it unless you have broken the gall bladder. To tone down the wild game flavor place an apple or onion inside, leaving it there over night. The apple or onion is then discarded.

Besides hot paraffin for removing feathers there is a rosin process. A hunter, of course, doesn't mind getting his fingers all gummed up but a housewife might. Rub rosin (powdered) well into the down before any of the feathers are removed. Dip the duck in scalding hot water. This causes the rosin to melt a little. Then the feathers can be peeled off.

Another delicious game dish is rabbit baked in milk. Milk cooked for a long time has a tendency to curdle. In using evaporated milk for the baking of the rabbit, add the water first, let it cook until nearly done, then add the evaporated milk.

Peanut Stuffing—For Roast Duck.

1 cup fine bread crumbs.
½ cup finely chopped peanuts.
½ cup evaporated milk.
2 tablespoons melted butter.
Onion juice.
Salt and pepper.

Bread Sauce—To Serve With Roast Grouse.

1 onion stuck with 6 cloves.
1 cup evaporated milk.
1 cup water.
½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
2 tablespoon butter.

Cook bread crumbs with all the ingredients except butter about an hour in a double boiler. When ready to serve, remove the onion and cloves, add butter and beat thoroughly. Pour around roast bird, then sprinkle the whole with bread crumbs browned in butter. Yield: 2 cups.

Rabbit—Baked in Milk.

Clean rabbit and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Let stand in salted water several hours. Drain, sprinkle with salt and roll in flour. Brown in bacon fat (generous amount as in frying chicken) in deep skillet or Dutch oven. Add ½ cup water, cover and cook slowly until almost tender. Add ½ cup evaporated milk and finish cooking. Two tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar may be added for flavor just before removing from fire.

Venison Pot Pie.

2 tablespoons bacon fat.
1 onion, minced.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 cup boiling water.
1 cup evaporated milk.
3 cups left-over venison.
3 cups boiled potatoes.
Rich biscuit dough.

Cook onion in bacon fat five minutes without browning. Add salt and flour. Stir to a smooth paste, add boiling water, boil one minute, then add evaporated milk. Pour over layers of diced venison and potatoes in a buttered baking dish. Cover with biscuit dough and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) until brown. Yield: Eight servings.

practically the force and effect of law, methods for the exact measurement of these defects must be established wherever possible, using intelligent consumer and expert judgment of the trade as reference points.

Accordingly, during the last six months chemists and canned goods experts of the food and drug administration have examined hundreds of cans of the products under discussion coming from all of the producing areas in the United States. As a result of these researches, amplified, says Mr. Campbell, by the splendid cooperation given by the canning trade, by Washington consumers, and by the Bureau of Home Economics, tentative standards for peas, peaches, and pears are being sent out with the notice of the hearing. The food and drug administration is also proposing a designation for the substandard products.

This is a composite of many suggestions by canners, distributors and consumers. It calls for the words, "Below U. S. Standard. Legal—Wholesome," and, in addition, definite information as to just how and just how much the product falls below the standard. The designation is to be in a border of specified width, and the quoted portion must be in type of definite kind and size for various sizes of container.

The administration hopes that the discussion and comment at the hearing will make it possible for the food and drug administration to prepare the standards for the above products in final form for promulgation by the Secretary of Agriculture in time to permit them to be applied to next year's pack. This means that the standards should be issued in final form at least 90 days before the canning season for that particular product starts in any section of the country.

Add the artichokes or radishes, or substitute for them 1 cup of sliced Brazil nuts or toasted almonds. Add soy sauce in sufficient quantity to give the desired flavor and then salt to taste. Serve with hot flaky rice.

AMATEURS TO GIVE PLAY 'COCK ROBIN'

Mystery Story Underlies the Performance of Little Theater Group.

ALL "SETS" HOME-MADE

"Cock Robin," a play within a play, has been chosen by the Montgomery Players, Little Theater group of the northern suburban section, for their second presentation of the season.

The performance will be given at 8:20 tonight in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

The work of Elmer Rice and Philip Barry, this mystery play, which has enjoyed successful presentation in New York, is being produced with a cast of the Little Theater Players' seasoned performers.

Some Who Are in Cast.

Doris Dewey Day, who starred last season in "The Mollusc," has a prominent part in "Cock Robin." She will represent the Somerset section in the production. The Montgomery Players undertake to cast their productions with adequate representation from all sections of the county from which they draw members.

Pauline Whitacre, of Woodside, and Jessie Kimpton, of Forest Glen, are to play opposite Mahlon Selby, of Cabin John, and Maj. Lee S. Tillotson, of Chevy Chase.

Unlike many similar organizations, the Montgomery Players, organized a year ago, has "paid its way" from the beginning and has had enthusiastic support.

All the sets of their productions are designed and constructed by members of their own group. The sets for "Cock Robin" have been made under the direction of Irving M. Day and Raymond L. Sanford, construction of the various pieces having been contributed by H. G. Myers, of Leland. For the last two weeks the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School has been a busy workshop.

Staged by Members.

Following a practice of having the productions directed by members, Mrs. Raymond L. Sanford is directing this play. The costumes are being accumulated by Jane Plummer Rice, well-known theatrical coach. Mrs. Morris Edwards is in charge of the committee on stage properties.

Prominently cast in the play are Carey Quinn, of Battery Park; Martha Roberts and Irving M. Day, of Somerset. Hubert Teitman and Augustine Winnemore, of Chevy Chase, and Lea Willson, of Edgemoor, also have responsible parts.

"Cock Robin" is written along the line of sustained suspense and little therefore can be said of the story. The play requries two distinct sets, showing the theater, in which the play has its locale, from front and backstage views.

U. S. Trial Sought For Liquor Agents

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 12.—Federal Court here will not only be asked to have transferred to it the charge against Frank Debord, Federal prohibition agent, who was indicted Monday in Amherst County in connection with the fatal shooting of Ernest C. Grant, of Big Island, but a similar application is to be made on behalf of Talley Stinnett, another officer named in the Amherst indictment. Stinnett avers that he went with the party, having been deputized by Debord.

The shooting occured November 12 on Snowden mountain, Amherst County, and the two men with V. O. Smith, were indicted Monday. Debord's attorney has applied to Federal authorities for transfer of his case and it is indicated that the Stinnett case will take similar procedure.

Grant was killed in the mountains, having been shot before or after a prohibition raid. He was left in the mountains and his dead body was not discovered for three days.

It will be to your advantage to watch the Real Estate offers in Post Classified Ads.

Ormond, Fla., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, playing golf at 91, and his old crony, Gen. Adelbert Ames, sitting home at 95, looked at life differently today.

"I must give away some dimes after that splendid shot," said the former oil magnate zestfully, after a 125-yard drive off the first tee during his daily golf round.

Mr. Rockefeller then presented shiny coins to his playing companions, Mr. and Mrs. David H. McConnell, and called over three visitors and two newspapermen, who received similar gifts. In his modest home across the Halifax river, Mr. Ames, oldest living general of the Civil War, and who was Mr. Rockefeller's golfing partner for years before he recently became afflicted with eye trouble, sat thinking in a more dejected mood.

"There's no use living to be 95," said Gen. Ames, resignedly but not at all cynically. "You can't eat candy any longer, can't see or hear very well, and you become more or less a curiosity."

Then he turned to his former favorite pastime—golf—and said he would not play this winter because of two major operations last spring.

Both men were reminiscent today, but in different ways. Mr. Rockefeller recalled his school days and made an apology for being a few minutes late for his golf game.

"I should have an excuse from Johnny's mother," he said, "saying 'please excuse Johnny for being late. He got wet in the a. m., and sick in the p. m.'"

Mr. Ames was reminiscent over his younger life. The first of his 17 winters spent in Ormond, his first visit to Florida in 1864 with the Union Army and his boyhood in the '40's.

Missing Girl, 18, Writes to Family

Mary Lee Hicks Declares She Took Position as Governess.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 12.—Miss Mary Lee Hicks, 18, attractive Handley High School junior, missing three weeks, is in Philadelphia, according to a letter received from her today by her grandfather, Edward Hicks, which said she had left Winchester with a man, his wife and two children and intended to go abroad with them as governess for their children.

She did not give their names, how she happened to meet them or where they were stopping in Philadlphia. Miss Hicks said she was well and that no harm had befallen her.

She said her reason for writing was that she had read newspaper stories of her disappearance. Miss Hicks lived here with her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Bayliss. She said in the letter she had known the family with whom she left here for some time.

Man Held in City For Toledo Police

Accused of Jewel Robbery and Assault With Gun in Ohio.

Benjamin Myerson, alias Joe Berger, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday and was ordered held under $75,000, pending arrival of Toledo, Ohio, police. Myerson is said to have been wanted in the Ohio city on a charge involving a theft of jewelry valued at more than $250,000.

The man, according to police, was arrested last Saturday at Fourteenth and E streets following the broadcast of a lookout.

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Joe Berger is wanted here in connection with the assault upon Karl Irwin, Toledo diamond merchant, shot down in his office in the Second National Bank Building in May, 1930. Berger, who was arraigned in Washington today under the name of Myerson, has been in custody on various occasions since the attack upon Irwin, but has always escaped.

AMERICANS SCORED BY SINCLAIR LEWIS

MENCKEN ALSO PRAISED

Stockholm, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Sinclair Lewis formally accepted the 1930 Nobel prize for literature today, meanwhile jabbing right and left at certain American institutions and Americans.

The creator of "Babbitt" and critic of things particularly a part of American life was careful to say that his remarks should not be regarded as "attacks."

Speaking to anaudience that crammed the Stock Exchange hall and accorded him a tremendous ovation, Mr. Lewis vigorously defended himself against charges of being a literary "anarchist."

Intellectual Standards Hit.

"I can not imagine these two," said Lewis, "being present at the serenely Athenian dinners of the American academy, a perfect example of the divorce in America of intellectual life from all our standards of importance and reality."

All the people in the world don't like his books, Mr. Lewis told his audience.

"One good pastor in California, after reading my 'Elmer Gantry' desired to lead a mob and lynch me," he related.

"I have for the future of American literature every hope, every eager belief," he said. "We are coming out of the stuffiness of safe and sane and incredibly dull provincialism."

If the Nobel award had gone to some other American author, all would not have been happy then, Mr. Lewis said.

Theodore Dreiser Praised.

"Suppose you had taken Theodore Dreiser," he said. "Now, to me, Dreiser more than any other is a man marching alone. He has cleared a trail from Victorian and Howellsian timidity and gentility in American fiction to honesty, boldness and passion of life.

"Without his pioneering, I doubt if any of us—unless we liked to be sent to jail—could seek to express life and beauty.

"Yet," Mr. Lewis said, "had you given the prize to Mr. Dresier you would have htard groans from America. You would have heard that his style is cumbersome, his choice of words insensitive, his books interminable and his men and women are often sinful, tragic and despairing instead of being forever sunny and full of song, as befits authentic Americans."

He listed Eugene O'Neill, Sherwood Anderson, Upton Sinclair and Joseph Hergesheimer as probably unpopular choices for the Nobel award in America.

"Wicked Colleagues" Cited.

"Yes," Mr. Lewis sighed, "they are all wicked, these collesgues of mine. You would have done almost as evilly to have chosen them.

"But as an American of 1930—not 1880," he continued, "I rejoice that they are my countrymen, and I may speak of them with pride, even in the Europe of Thomas Mann, H. G. Wells, John Galsworthy, Arnold Bennett and Lion Feuchtwanger."

Some particular attention in the speech was directed at "a learned and most amicable old gentleman who has been a pastor, university professor and diplomat."

"I chiefly know him for his pleasant essays on the joys of fishing," said Mr. Lewis. "From these I learned that there is something important and spiritual about catching fish—if you don't need the fish."

This man, Mr. Lewis said, "stated publicly that in awarding the Nobel prize t oa person who has scoffed at American institutions as much as I have, the Nobel committee and the Swedish Academy insulted America."

Fire Kills Mother; Child Wanders Far

Rural Tragedy Revealed by Harrowing Flight of 5-Year-Old.

Franklin, W. Va., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—A 5-year-old boy clad only in underclothing tramped 4 miles in sleet and snow to the home of neighbors near here today and said he had "lost" his mother. The neighbors carried the child back to his home and found his mother and her daughter had been burned to death in a fire that destroyed their dwelling.

The victims of the fire were Mrs. Fred Simpson, 33, and her 3-year-old daughter. Authorities believe that Mrs. Simpson had carried the boy out of the house when she discovered the fire and returned and died with the younger child.

The son, Jesse, said his father, from whom Mrs. Simpson was divorced recently, was at the house last night and that the man appeared angry, according to the authorities. The Simpsons had not lived together for several years.

Cathedral Worker Dies Under Trailer

Is Believed to Have Been Overcome by Carbon-Monoxide Gas.

Morris J. Farrell, 50 years old, colored, an employe of the Washington Cathedral, was instantly killed yesterday when run over by a trailer on Mount Vernon road, Arlington County.

Farrell, who lived in Scotland, Md., was aiding in the transportation of a large bush from Prince Georges County to the cathedral grounds. He was walking behind a truck. It is thought that he was overcome by carbon monoxide gas and fell under the trailer.

Policemen Hugh Jones, John R. Burke and Jack Conway, of the Arlington County police force, notified Coroner H. B. Swain that the death was accidental.

Mr. Lauber was certified by the Civil Service Commission as being the first on the list of eligibles obtained by a recent examination. The Goofus Roach

The Goofus Roach has a stealthy approach
As he wears rubber heels on his shoes;
He sings Mammy songs
Which he often prolongs
By crooning as if they were Blues.

He worked out a plot when the weather was hot
To spend all his time on the ice,
Which made him rheumatic
So he lives in the attic
And straightens his limbs in a vise!

ARMY-NAVY PRIMED FOR CHARITY CLASH TODAY

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Charity will do a big business in New York between Friday night and Sunday night and, while there are indications that some of the local Samaritans have fallen to glaring at one another for love of their fellowmen, still the three big productions should be successful, which is the object of the piece, after all.

In a general way, it appears that some political rivalry exists between Mr. Grover A. Whalen, the late police commissioner and His Honor, the Mayor, James J. Walker. Mr. Whalen is in charge of the Army-Navy football game of Saturday afternoon at the Yankee Stadium for the Salvation Army. Mr. Walker is running a game of his own sponsorship Sunday at the Polo Grounds, between the New York Giants and a pick-up team of Notre Dame alumni.

The receipts of both shows will be devoted to the relief of the unemployed but, owing to the superior social character of his offering, Mr. Whalen's game has been receiving more publicity than the mayor's. I hear it said that Mr. Whalen wants to be mayor of the place and, while the situation may not be quite as bad as that, anyway, there is a conflict between the two men and their respective football games.

HIS CONTEST OUT-SWANKS MAYOR'S

Of course, Mr. Whalen's production is certain to outswank Mr. Walker's. He will have a showy delegation of brass-hats from the Army and Navy to adorn his ringside boxes Saturday afternoon and the corps of Cadets and regiment of Midshipmen as well as the pent-house aristocracy of the two avenues, Fifth and Park. Furthermore, his seats are selling on a scale from $5 to $50, with receipts already in excess of half a million, whereas Mr. Walker's best seats are retailing at a maximum price of $6.

Then, also, the New York Giants, who include Benny Friedman and Chris Cagle in their playing staff, are owned by Mr. Tim Mara, the bookmaker who recently sued Gene Tunney on a claim that he had done something toward obtaining Mr. Tunney's chance for the heavyweight championship.

But, regardless of their reasons for interesting themselves in the Army-Navy game, the socially refined element will present a much more showy ensemble at the Army-Navy game than Mr. Walker's people can hope to duplicate the next day. Mr. Mara is what he is with apologies to nobody, but it will be readily understood that he is neither a general nor an admiral.

The Army-Navy game will not be an entire success. There are many tickets of $20, $30 and $50 denominations still unsold and a gentleman working on the production states that the gross receipts probably will not exceed $600,000, whereas the gross capacity, including the radio rights, sold for $150,000, is estimated at $1,100,000.

The deficiency may be charged in part to an attitude of noncooperation at the Military Academy early in the promotion. Gen. Smith had good professional reasons to disapprove the game with the welfare of the cadets in mind and Maj. Ralph Sasse, the coach, also resisted until he got the orders to prepare the team for the game which, being a good soldier, he obeyed. The general changed his mind so abruptly that I suspect that he, also, received orders to approve the game which, being a good soldier, he obeyed.

WEST POINT ATTITUDE TO BLAME

But even after the game was agreed upon, the West Point people assumed an attitude of participation without cooperation. Perhaps they resented Mr. Whalen's intrusion into their undertaking. Although it must be said for Mr. Whalen that he wasn't looking for trouble. On the contrary, he moved in and organized the show with something of the tireless energy of the late Tex Rickard when it looked as though the demand for the game was going to die away in rather querulous newspaper talk.

He has worked hard, giving a lot of time to a job that nobody else in town seemed equal to, and even though the original idea was not his

Sacrifice Fly Ruled Out Of Scoring

Balls Out of Parks to Be Judged When Leaving Field.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The sacrifice fly was legislated out of existence today by baseball's joint rules committee, meeting in the Hotel Commodore. From now on, when a batter lifts a lofty fly to the outfield and enables a runner to advance a base, he will not be credited with a sacrifice and he will be charged with a time at bat.

Proponents of the change insisted the sacrifice fly had no place in the rules. They pointed out that in most cases batsmen had no intention of lifting a high fly to the outfield so the runner could advance a base. Instead most of them were swinging for home runs or a hit of some description. Therefore, they argued, he should be charged with a time at bat just as he is when he lifts a fly which does not permit a runner to advance or which comes with the bases empty. There being no sentiment on the other side the rule was adopted.

Ball Judged Where It Leaves Playing Field.

Another important change limits the runner to two bases when the ball bounces off the playing field. This rule was designed to prevent "trick home runs" made when the ball took a hop into the stands.

The National League rule saying that a ball shall be judged fair or foul where it last leaves the playing field and not where it is last seen was given American League approval and thus becomes a standard regulation.

The pitching rules, especially in respect to the stance the hurler should take before delivering the ball, were clarified.

The committee also decided to revise and clarify the rules in general much as the football rules committee recodified the football regulations.

The sessions of the rules committee closed the annual major league midwinter meetings. Most club owners and managers had left for their homes tonight, although a few planned to remain over for the Army-Navy football game.

Wooster Given Place On 1931 Navy Schedule

Wooster, Ohio, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Wooster College announced today it has scheduled a football game with the United States Naval Academy to be played at Annapolis next November 28. It will be Wooster's first Eastern football trip, and its first game with a big institution since it played Ohio State in 1924 and 1925.

Former Stanford Star Sues Pros for Salary

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—George Bogue, former Stanford University half back, has filed suit for $1,355.20 against the Chicago Cardinals professional football team, alleging it was unpaid salary. Bogue charged the Cardinals paid him $595 on a $2,500 contract and then sent him to the Newark, N. J., club under protest and at a reduced salary. Newark, he said, paid him $549.80.

Officials of the Cardinals said the Newark club had assumed Bogue's contract.

19 States Represented In Army-Navy Line-Up

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Nineteen States, one territory, and the District of Columbia are represented by the 25 cadets and midshipmen who either will start or are being considered as probable starters in the Army-Navy football classic in the Yankee Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Ed Herb, who shares with Bill Frentzel, of Danville, Ill., the choice as starting right half back in the Army back field, comes from Manila in the Philippine Islands, where his father serves with the American forces. Pennsylvania has three representatives on the two teams, Illinois two and Wisconsin two.

S. Conference Would Curb Scouting

Visits to Prep, High Schools by Officials to Be Banned.

Committee Favoring Ban on Spring Grid Practices.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Moving over a charted course, delegates to the Southern Conference convention at University of North Carolina sailed through their open session today with no hint of dissension to stir the calm waters.

Selection of dates for various conference tournaments was followed by granting permission to Alabama "to lick the stuffin' out of Washington State" in the Rose Bowl game, as C. L. Hare, faculty chairman, of Auburn, put it in making the motion.

W. C. Byrd, coach at Maryland, reporting on the application of Davidson College, Furman, Oglethorpe and Loyola, of New Orleans, asking for admittance to membership in the Southern Conference, said the committee did not feel it was in a position to make recommendations and suggested the executive committee consider it.

The committee making recommendations to admittance to the conference and making by-laws reported favorably on a motion by Forest Fletcher, faculty chairman of Washington and Lee, that spring football practice be abolished. Southern coaches at Durham last night voted against this.

Modification of Scouting Recommended.

The committee also reported favorably on the proposal by L. C. Glenn, faculty chairman of Vanderbilt, that no member of the athletic staff or employe of an institution be permitted to visit preparatory or other schools for the purpose of recruiting prospective athletes.

It declined, however, to recommend Mr. Glenn's proposal that scouting be prohibited.

All these matters are to come up again in open session tonight after the banquet and are to be voted on tomorrow. The question of the junior college transfer made its appearance, but the conference decided to appoint a committee to give it consideration and report next year.

Dates and places for conference tournaments were set as follows:

Indoor track meet at Chapel Hill, March 7.

Outdoor track meet at Birmingham, May 15 and 16.

Swimming meet, Atlanta, March 26 and 27.

Golf tournament at Athens, Ga., April 30 and May 1 and 2.

Boxing tournament at Charlottesville, Va., "the last of February or the first of March."

Belgian Claims Mark For 500-Meter Swim

Brussels, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Belgian, Louis Van Parys, today claimed to have beaten the world's swimming record for 500 meters, breaststroke. His time was 7 minutes 37 4-5 seconds. The former mark was set by the German, Rademacher, at 7 minutes 40 1-5 seconds.

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 12.—At a meeting of the Cornell University Athletic Council last night the elections of A. F. Ranney '32 of Putney, Vt., as captain of the cross-country team, and of G. E. Kappler, '32, Medford, N. Y., as soccer captain, were ratified, letters and numerals were awarded in cross-country, soccer, track, and freshman football, and the indoor track schedule was ratified.

Cross-country C's were awarded to 8 men, and soccer letters to 13. Twenty-four members of the freshman football squad received numerals. In track, sophomore numerals were conferred on 10, and freshman insignia on 12, while 5 sophomores and 10 freshmen received cross-country numerals of their respective classes. Twenty freshmen soccer players were awarded numerals.

MERCURYS CHALLENGED.

The Centennials, who copped the 150-pound section championship in The Post's 1930 Capital City Football League, have challenged the Mercurys, title winners of the unlimited division in the same circuit, to a game. Manager Leroy Allison, of the Mercs, is asked to communicate with "Senator" Reed, of the Cents, at Columbia 3314.

McNALLY USES HEAD.

Joseph H. McNally, part owner of the New York Giants, is a convert to the belief that necessity not only is the mother of invention but the father of inspiration. Crossing the Long Island Railroad tracks near Bluepoint, N. Y., McNally's automobile skidded, straddled the rails and refused to budge. When he heard a train whistle he hurriedly gathered a pile of leaves and lighted a fire, which brought the train to a stop 250 feet from the car.

Wood, Harvard Quarter, Elected 1931 Grid Captain

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 12 (A.P.). The Harvard football team today elected Barry Wood as captain of next year's eleven, thereby placing him on equal footing with his arch-rival quarter back, Albie Booth, who was similarly honored recently by his Yale teammates.

This pair of outstanding signal callers were rival captains three years ago as freshmen, and Wood's team won when he drop-kicked an extra point for a 7-6 victory. They have clashed twice since, as varsity players and Wood has had a vital part in the Crimson's 1929 and 1930 victories over the Eli teams directed by Booth. Their most important competition will be put on next fall here in the stadium.

Wood, a Phi Beta Kappa man, and the most versatile athlete Harvard has developed in almost a decade, was chosen from a field of eleven juniors eligible for the honor. His election was said to be unanimous.

He is ranked No. 1 by the New England Lawn Tennis Association. He has won four major letters at Harvard—two in football, and one each in baseball and hockey. Wood was an all-round athlete during his prep school days at Milton Academy.

Penn's Athletic Council Ousts Wray as Grid Coach

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—"Lud" Wray, head coach of the University of Pennsylvania football squad, around whose head raged a storm of criticism as a result of the season's showing of the team, is out. His scheduled three-year tenure was terminated late today, in a brief statement issued by John Arthur Brown, member of the executive committee of the university's council on athletics.

It said:

"The council on athletics in the University of Pennsylvania announces that J. R. Ludlow Wray will not coach the football team next year or the year after."

There was no announcement of a successor, and it is believed that no one has been selected. Many names have been mentioned, including those of Glenn Warner, head coach at Stanford University.

Pennsylvania this season won five games and lost four, to Wisconsin, Notre Dame, Cornell and the Navy. After the Wisconsin game, Rolf Carlsten quit the team following a wordy row with Wray.

After the Navy game, the Pennsylvanian, the student Daily Pun charged there was a lack of harmony between the players and the coaching staff. Warren Gette, a half back, said he would not play football again under Wray.

Thomas S. Gates, president of the university, issued a statement that matters in connection with competitive athletics, and specifically football, were under investigation and that a report would be made later.

Yesterday after a meeting of the executive committee and the football committee of the athletic council, it was reported that Wray had been asked to resign.

Wray, after the announcement was made, had little to say, except to resort to a biblical quotation. "'Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof,'" said Lud. "I have plenty of plans and they are now under way."

Dave Barbee, whose hitting featured the Pacific Coast League play-off and who led the circuit in home runs the past season, has a queer complex. He goes like a champion for a time, then slips, gets tired of the town and wants a change. When Dave went to Portland he was weak on a curve ball and the pitchers curved him off the Beavers. He went on an orgy of hitting for Seattle, slumped and was sent to Hollywood, where he found himself and tore the cover off the old apple.

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Army and Navy football squads, camped close to the scene of their first battle of the gridiron since 1927, made ready for their colorful clash in quite different ways today. The Cadets did little work at Briarcliff. They made the most of what amounted to a day off by loafing about, napping and otherwise indulging themselves in idleness which was more of a treat than some form of entertainment.

The Midshipmen, on the other hand, visited the Yankee Stadium for a lengthy practice period and worked as hard as if the game was a week away. Nothing was left undone which might add to the perfection of their various assignments.

Bill Ingram, usually serene and uncomplaining, had a scowl on his face, as he stalked across the soggy gridiron of the stadium. It was raining. "My backs are too light," he said, "to be good mudders. They depend on their speed in getting off and need firm footing to be at their best. If it keeps on raining they will be at a disadvantage."

Players Show Vim And Vigor.

The players were less concerned. They ran around in the soft going with all the vim and vigor they showed on their home field earlier in the week. Their confidence of beating the Cadets was not to be dampened by a little rain.

Only part of the gridiron was undressed for the last workout of the Midshipmen. The tarpaulin was left on the infield, which is more tender to rain than the rest of the field and so soon as the practice was over the whole gridiron was carefully covered with a canvas jacket while bundles of straw were added for further protection.

The Navy squad, headed by Commander Reinicke and Bill Ingram, left their camp at the Hotel Commodore at 1 o'clock in three buses. On arriving at the Yankee Stadium the players engaged in a stiff drill for close to an hour. Nothing was overlooked even to ten minutes of limbering up calisthenics under the direction of Rip Miller.

Most of the time was devoted to a dummy scrimmage with emphasis on plays designed to carry an element of surprise to their Army opponents. Every formation was run off at least once. Ingram also called for a long passing drill in an effort to get the backs accustomed to handling the wet ball and the receivers to catching it. Spike Webb remarked that the boys have had little wet-weather practice this fall, as rainy days have been a novelty at Annapolis since September.

Bowstrom in Form As Punter.

Kicking was not neglected. Both Bowstrom and Hagberg did a lot of punting to familiarize themselves with the air currents in the stadium. Both made plenty of distance and particularly Bowstrom, who got off several punts of 50 yards in spite of the wet ball. The Navy will hold its own in kicking.

When "enough" was called Ingram repeated his announcement in Annapolis that the starting backs will be Dale Bauer, Bullet Lou Kirn, Johnny Gannon and Charley Hagberg. But Tom Hurley, Rusty Williams, Joe Tschirgi and Campbell will see action.

Tschirgi, still favoring slightly the ankle injured in the Ohio State game, was the happiest boy on the squad on the way back to the hotel. He has been promised his chance, which has been doubtful, and he made no effort to conceal his delight.

Seven of the eleven players of the starting line-up will be graduated in June. Gannon, Bauer, Hagberg, Stephanides, Bowza, Strom, Gray and Byng will wind up their football careers against the Army and so satisfy an ambition each one has cherished.

Up at Briarcliff, the Cadets also were in high spirits but spent most of the day lolling about, even sleeping. Maj. Sasse suggested before leaving West Point that they forget their text books and most of them did, even though several are worrying about examinations, which run along to December 23, fearful lest they be included among those who will be dropped from the roll. Between 60 and 80 Cadets are discharged after January 1 each year because of scholastic deficiencies.

Reveille, usually sounded at 5:50 o'clock each morning, was delayed until 9 o'clock, and after breakfast Maj. Sasse took the Cadets for a walk. Early in the afternoon he called for a short formation drill, but in sweat shirts, not uniforms. "It's too late now to put on any pressure," he remarked. "They know their assignments and they need rest more than anything else."

Sasse Predicts Hard Game.

Maj. Sasse was not willing to make any prediction but said: "We know that we have a hard fight on our hands and my only regret is that we must take the field under the handicap of several injured players who will be missed. I guess we need our full strength, judging by Navy's play against Penn, but we will be short of that. Still the boys are confident

SAILORS AND MERCURY CLASH

Tomorrow's Winner Plays Apaches for District Title.

TOMORROW will be Navy Day at the Silver Spring field when the Seaman Gunner Eleven stacks up against the Mercurys, unlimited section champions of The Post's 1930 Capital City football League, as more than 300 sailors from the navy yard, naval hospital, navy radio station and naval air station, together with the 80-piece Navy Band, will be on hand for the game. The kick-off will take place at 2:30 p. m. sharp.

Unusual interest centers in the clash, as the winner will meet the Apaches for the District title at Griffith Stadium on December 21.

Although the Mercurys boast an undefeated record and an uncrossed goal line, while the the Gunners have suffered a single defeat in eight starts, the Sailors, on the whole, have compiled the better record.

Northern Eleven Beaten.

Numbered among their victims are theNortherns, 6 to 0; Seat Pleasants, 12 to 0; Quentins, 20 to 0; Virginia Athletic Club, 18 to 4; Fort Myer, 20 to 0, and oFrt Washington, 19 to 0. The St. Mary's Celtics plastered an 18-to-0 set back on them. The Seaman Gunners also played the strong Lebanon (Pa.) team to a 0-to-0 score.

The Mercurys, on the other hand, have trounced the Alpha Delta Omegas, of Alexandria, 13 to 0; the Marions, 12 to 0, and St. Stephen's, 7 to 0, and have played scoreless draws with the Quentins, Seat Pleasants and Broklands.

REDS RELEASE WILLIAMS.

Deciding one coach is enough, the Cincinnati Reds have given Otto Williams, who had been stationed at first base last season, his unconditional release.

SAN ANTONIO STAR WEDS.

William Hargrove, pitcher of the San Antonio Indians, and Miss Rachel Ann Vent, of San Antonio, were married at New Braunfels, Tex., October 19. After a honeymoon motoring through Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri they will be "at home" in Wheatland, Mo.

HEADS YORK CLUB.

J. H. Schmuck, former owner of the York Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League, has been elected president of the newly organized York Baseball Club, Inc., which has assumed control of the franchise. Daniel E. Stetler is secretary and Norman Metzenhelder, treasurer.

REFUSES JOB.

Although Charles Gerlach was reelected president of the Allentown Eastern League Club, he insists a new man must be selected before the season opens, as his business interests will not permit him to devote the necessary time to baseball.

MAY GET SUNDAY GAMES.

Jessup, Pa., a few miles from Scranton, may see New York-Pennsylvania games on Sunday next season. A new park has been built at Jessup and it is understood local officials will offer no objections to the Scranton team playing there. Sunday baseball has been forbidden in Scranton for years.

JIMMY HITS 'EM HARD.

No right-handed batsman in the American League hits a ball any farther than Jimmy Foxx, of the Athletics. In fact, Jimmy has driven the ball farther in some parks than has Babe Ruth. Anyway, Jimmy is the only batter who ever has hit a ball over the left field stand at Comiskey Park, Chicago. The ball landed on top of the roof of the upper tier and bounded out of the park, a drive of more than 400 feet.

CHENE WINS JEFFERSON PARK SPRINT FEATURE

Choice Given Great Ride By James

Poison Ivy Finishes First to Score in Opener.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Over a heavy track, C. V. Whitney's silks were borne to victory by Chene in the feature, the Martha Washington Purse, at 6 furlongs, here today. The filly was ridden by Apprentice E. James, who is leading the jockey list for the $500 prize offered by the association.

Chene was the favorite and her victory was due largely to the good ride put up by James. Bob Rogers was second and Chianti third.

The field got away to a good start, and Timon rushed to the front and attempted to make a runaway race of it by taking a long early lead.

Bob Rogers moved up very fast around the turn, while James eased back on Chene. Bob Rogers took a brief lead in the stretch, but when abreast of the furlong pole James brought Chene up on the outside and, closing gamely, won by half a length. Bob Rogers beat Chianti a length and a half.

The winner paid $6.40.

Poison Ivy Scores By Head Margin.

Maidens of all ages competed in the opening event, a 6-furlong gallop, and it was won by the mud-running Poison Ivy, with Eye White second and Dilettante third.

Eye White led to the final sixteenth, where Poison Ivy took command to win in a drive by a head. The time was 1:16 4-5, and the winner paid $6.20.

The Enterprise Stable's Zalla, ridden by Murphy, proved much the best of the field in the second event.

The daughter of Zev broke absolutely last but before the field had gone a furlong she was in front and from the far turn to the finish drew away to win by five lengths. She is a superior mudder, as attested by the fast time over a heavy track, she having stepped the quarter in 0:24, the half in 0:48 and finishing out the 6 furlongs in 1:15.

Brown-Eyed Mary Captures Sprint.

T. Moran's Brown Eyed Mary, ridden by the Negro rider, R. Simpson, easily won the third race, a sprint at 6 furlongs, and paid her backers 4 to 1. Falmouth Belle was second and Gallopette third.

Brown Eyed Mary followed the pace set by June Night to the stretch where she took the lead to win by three lengths. Falmouth Belle beat Gallopette a length for the place.

Frank Fullen ran a great race to land the purse in the fifth over a good field of platers. Madcap Marvin was second and Eager Play third.

Frank Fullen was away last and trailed far back for the first half mile then began to move up and slipped through on the inside to win, going away by half a length. Madcap Marvin beat Eager Play half a length for the place. The winner paid $14.60 and the time was 1:50.

Aviator took command on the stretch turn and easily held race safe. It was Jockey James' second score of the afternoon. The winner paid $12.40.

ARMY GIVEN REST WHILE NAVY DRILLS

and that means much. It should be a good fight."

He admitted that some doubt still existed about the starting back field but said that in all probability it would be composed of Bowman, Kilday, Fields and either Stecker or Herb. Stecker's passing hand is still troublesome. Frenzel is likely to see action but repeated that Sebastion is definitely out.

Both teams are using much the same offensive system based on the double wing back formation but differ in the development of plays from this formation. The Army sticks pretty closely to the Warner plan but the Navy varies this with one wing back in motion part of the time.

Maj. Sasse is counting on Price, one of the best tackles in the country, stopping Gannon on that reverse play from a double pass which so bewildered Penn last Saturday, but the Midshipmen have other plays to fall back on if that particular one is stopped.

The Army has the better record on games played this year but the Navy comes up to this game at its peak, which is considered a balancing factor.

ALCOVANS VS. DEL RAYS?

G. P. O.-FEDS TO DRILL.

MARDIE was allowed to drop back after the start, but closed with a rush on the inside. MY SWEETS can do better. PETABIT did not like the going.

CHENE got away slow and was raced around turn, came to the middle of the track and won going away. BOB ROGERS displayed good speed, raced TIMON into defeat and held on gamely. CHIANTI was kept in the deep going all the way and ran a good race. TIMON had early speed, but weakened badly in the stretch. JACK HASKELL did not like the going. SESQUI was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:42. Off at 3:44½. Winner, Mrs. W. J. Potter's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRANK FULLEN, $14.60, $6.20, $4.60; MADCAP MARVIN, $7.80, $4.60; EAGER PLAY, $8.60.

FRANK FULLEN broke very slow, but worked his way up on inside all the way and, finishing fast, won going away. MADCAP MARVIN followed pace closely and ran a good race. EAGER PLAY moved up very fast in stretch and took a brief lead, but weakened badly in last sixteenth. DELMONICO ran a good race. DUELIST had plenty of early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:11½. Off at 4:13½. Winner, J. Helan's b. h. AVIATOR came around field on turn, opened wide lead and won nicely in hand. FAIR FOLLY was badly messed about all during the running and with better handling would probably have won. REIGH OLGA was badly interfered with going to the first turn. MISS MARYLAND closed a big gap. GRAND DAD ran well for six furlongs.

ZAHN, at home in the going, opened wide lead in last half mile and won galloping. VILLAGER closed a big gap. BONFILS ran a good race. DANTE finished fast. BARDALID had no mishap.

B. FRANKLINS BEAT BLISS FIVE, 29-13

400 See Electricians Outclassed; Keefer Is Star.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN tossers made an auspicious entry into Washington Collegiate Conference competition last night by decisively defeating the Bliss Electrical quintet, 29 to 13. The contest was staged at the Silver Spring Armory and wil witnessed by more than 400 fans.

Off to a slow start in the first quarter, the Franklins opened up in the second period and, with the Singman brothers and Keefer bombarding the hoop from all angles, ran up a 17-to-4 lead at the intermission. The Bennies increased their advantage in the third quarter, but in the last allowed their opponents to outscore them from the floor.

Keefer High Gun for Winners.

Capt. Dick Keefer, of the winners, tossed five double-deckers to carry off high scoring honors. The all-around work of Lester and Milton Singman also stood out for Benjamin Franklin. Zerkle was outstanding for the Electricians.

own, he has done more than one else to produce the Army-Navy football spectacle. This may help to elect him mayor some time.

ARMY IRED BY WHALEN IN 1929

The Army was slightly annoyed at Mr. Whalen last year when, as police commissioner, he was not exactly alert to furnish a police escort for the West Point Team in their bus ride to the Yankee Stadium for their Notre Dame game. This resentment may have figured in the Ghandi attitude of the Military Academy, but probably the real trouble was that West Point was coerced by Annapolis and the newspapers.

However, the officers of the Military Academy have changed their demeanor of late. At first the game was to be merely an exhibition, a postseason, informal football show with no bearing on the old Army-Navy rivalry. But then the Army sent scouts to the last two Navy games, and after the Navy licked Penn last Saturday the ballyhoo began to resound at West Point, culminating in a collegiate football furore when the general and all the other officers marched into the mess hall and exhorted the Army to lick the Naval Academy.

Maj. Sasse, who hadn't wanted the game and thought it an unfair imposition on his players, got up and yelled that the Navy had been spoiling for a fight for years and that the Army was going to give it to them. If the players take the field in this grim mood some casualties may occur and the Army-Navy game may never be repeated in this generation, but there are a lot of officers who think it shouldn't be repeated for a long time, anyway, because the rivalry is too bitter.

The Navy comes up with a psychological advantage. The Midshipmen lost their football objective when some of their officers, without consulting them, broke an old agreement with the Army and involved the Naval Academy on the wrong side of a political controversy.

There are elements of revenge on both sides, but the Midshipmen, with their mediocre record for several years, have a chance now to redeem the Naval Academy's prestige in one game with the team that lost to Notre Dame by a missed drop-kick for a point after touchdown with a soggy ball.

SAKS VS. ST. MARTIN'S.

Saks Clothier basketers will meet the St. Martin's quintet tomorrow night in the Saints' gymn. The game will start at 7 o'clock.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE remarkable achievement of Miss Helen May Martin is one of the most amazing on record. Beethoven before his death, became stone deaf, and some of his best works were composed when he was unable to hear them, but Miss Martin has been blind and deaf all of her life. She depends entirely on her sense of touch while playing. Her pleasure comes from impression through the vibrations produced by the piano. She renders with ease such compositions as Chopin's Preludes in C minor and D flat major, Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," and Handel's "Largo."

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK, Dec. 12.—Jefferson Park offers the best card of its current meeting tomorrow. The track is heavy and the weather cloudy. The feature is the Lake Charles Handicap at a mile and 70 yards for all-age horses, with a purse of $1,200, fifth on the program. There are two other features, the Slidell Handicap for 2-year-olds and the Bob Shave Purse for all-age horses, each with $1,000 purse.

GALAHAD is selected to win the Lake Charles. He was winner of the Thanksgiving Handicap at this track on the opening day of the meeting. He likes this track and is at home in the mud. DARK ABBOT should be the contender. Thursday's race in which he distanced Thistle Fyrn, First Mission and Storm showed him up. He led all the way on a track not fast, in 1:46 3-5, a mile and 70 yards. BATTLE AX has had a breathing spell from racing and should be in the money. Eight horses have been entered for this handicap. GALAHAD has top weight, but 114 pounds will not stop him. He should win in a gallop.

FIRST RACE—The first race is for 2-year-olds. NERVATOR should repeat. He won easily a week ago, beating The Duke and quite an array of others, including Chilly Flight. LIGHT MINT, a recent winner, should be the contender. KENTUCKY BILL ran a good race December 2, finishing second to Generola, and appears dangerous in this field. All NERVATOR will have to do is to repeat his last race.

SECOND RACE—MY HOBBY should repeat in the second race. He beat JAR and POLY among others in his last start, on a slow track, 1:15 1-5. He picks up 3 pounds off that race. NICHELSON is a beaten favorite, but a fast sprinter, and should be the contender, with JAR, which ran second to MY HOBBY last out, also dangerous. JAR is evidently not up to his best form. He won a long string of races early in the year and is getting ready for a comeback.

THIRD RACE—BILL MORRIS, invincible in the early spring against the 2-year-olds at the New Orleans tracks, but which failed in his start at this meeting, should show some of his former speed in the Slidell Handicap for juveniles, third on the program. He failed to get in the money his last start, the race being won by DONNY JOHNNY, which appears the chief contender in this race. IMA DREAMER, a winner at this meeting and second to DONNY JOHNNY last out, should hold the others safe. JAZ AGE, a recent winner, may figure in the race.

FOURTH RACE—SUPREME SWEET should win back in the fourth race, for all-aged horses. She beat MARTIS a length and a half in her last race, and MARTIS looms as the contender in this event. Both can go on a heavy track. RUEFUL should get the show money. IRISH is coupled with SUPREME SWEET as the superior Stable entry. Seven are listed for the race.

SIXTH RACE—HAM, which has won his last two starts, should make it three in a row by winning the sixth race, which is a mile and a quarter, a furlong farther than his last, when he beat John T. D. and Vorpeil by many lengths. But he will have a harder race today, for HERENDEEN will make a more dangerous contender. The latter won his last race from Broker. He is undertaking to give HAM seven pounds. The distance suits HAM and his last race was a shade better. KING KELLY is on edge and may be the third horse.

SEVENTH RACE—The seventh race has eighten horses, including six on the eligible list. TORCHER is selected to win. This old plater runs best on heavy track. He was favorite last out, but failed to show, the winner of the race being Col. Campus. FAIR GOLD has a chance among these platers and may get the place. HAZEL DENSON should get third money if she runs up to her recent races. She ran second to Herb Ashby in her last start.

Field of 100 Expected In Y. W. C. A. Swim

Nearly 100 girls and women are expected to participate in the annual 15-mile swim conducted by the Y. W. C. A. to get under way next Monday at both of the Y pools.

Among the early entries received was that of Mrs. Julia Lee Denning Barnes, one of the outstanding winners in the 1929-30 swim. Other mermaids include Grace Truscott, Rosalie Dunbar, Mary Allen Hood, Dorothy Thomas, Louise Martin, Virginia Tastet, Carmen Haider, Helen Sheppard, Adelaide James and Elizabeth Walton.

Rules of the race permit the 15 miles to be covered in a period extending over two months. Contestants are allowed to swim as little or much as they please toward the compiling of their 15 miles.

G. U. FIVE DEFEATS GETTYSBURG IN DEBUT, 35-27

Second Half Rally Brings Victory

Work of Scalzi on Defensive Features Contest.

Score Tied, 10 to 10, at Half; Yearlings Beat Central.

GEORGETOWN University Basket Ball Team got off to a shaky start last night at Tech High School Gym when Gettysburg was turned back by the score of 35-27.

Scalzi's long potshot, coming shortly after the start of the second half broke a deadlock of 10-10 and paved the way for a Georgetown drive which saw the Hilltop courtment headed but once when Haas, of Gettysburg, put his team in the van at 15-14 by his deadly foul shot work.

Georgetown was unimpressive almost throughout the fray, exhibiting little or no organized teamwork and depending almost entirely on individual brilliance. Scalzi, while his goal accounted for the breaking of the tie at the half, was especially erratic in his long shots.

The bright spot of the game was the feat of Morris and Shea towards the close of the game. Morris showed great speed in dribbling the entire length of the floor and tossed to Shea who "snow birded" the ball for the basket.

Georgetown Freshmen, playing their first game of the season, defeated Central High School last night at Tech High Gym in a preliminary attraction to the G. U. Varsity-Gettysburg game.

Coach Freddy Mesmer used his entire squad to turn back the high school boys. Central was outweighed, outsped and generally outplayed.

Carolan showed up well for the Frosh, his passing and shooting being of high caliber. He scored 12 points.

Rice, of Central, looked impressive in the first half, scoring three field goals, but he was bottled up well toward the close of the game.

G. U. and Gallaudet Face Second Games Tonight

Capital college basket ball teams engage in two games tonight. In the only one scheduled for home consumption Georgetown will oppose Baltimore University at Tech High School, beginning at 8 o'clock. Gallaudet will participate in the other game, meeting Drexel Institute at Philadelphia.

Both Georgetown and Gallaudet opens their seasons tonight, and with usual first-night nervousness eliminated both expect to flash a faster brand of ball.

The Georgetown-Baltimore clash should develop warm competition. From what is known of the teams at this early stage of the season, it looks like an even match. Gallaudet meets an unknown quantity in Drexel at Philadelphia, but should put up a strenuous argument for the decision regardless of Drexel's strength. The Blue is a veteran team.

Preceding the Georgetown-Baltimore game the Hilltop freshmen will play the Eastern High School five, beginning at 7:15 o'clock.

Western Bows, 20-13, To Swavely Prep Five

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Dec. 12.—Swavely Prep staged a scoring spree in the last half to overcome the lead of Western High School and gain a 20-13 victory on the basket ball floor here this afternoon.

Western enjoyed a 10-7 lead at half time but was held in check in the final periods, scoring only three more points while Swavely tied the score in the third quarter and forged ahead in the final period.

Alger's shooting was the bright feature of the game. He accounted for three field goals and a foul goal. Fox scored two of Western's four field goals.

PONTIAC VS. APACHES.

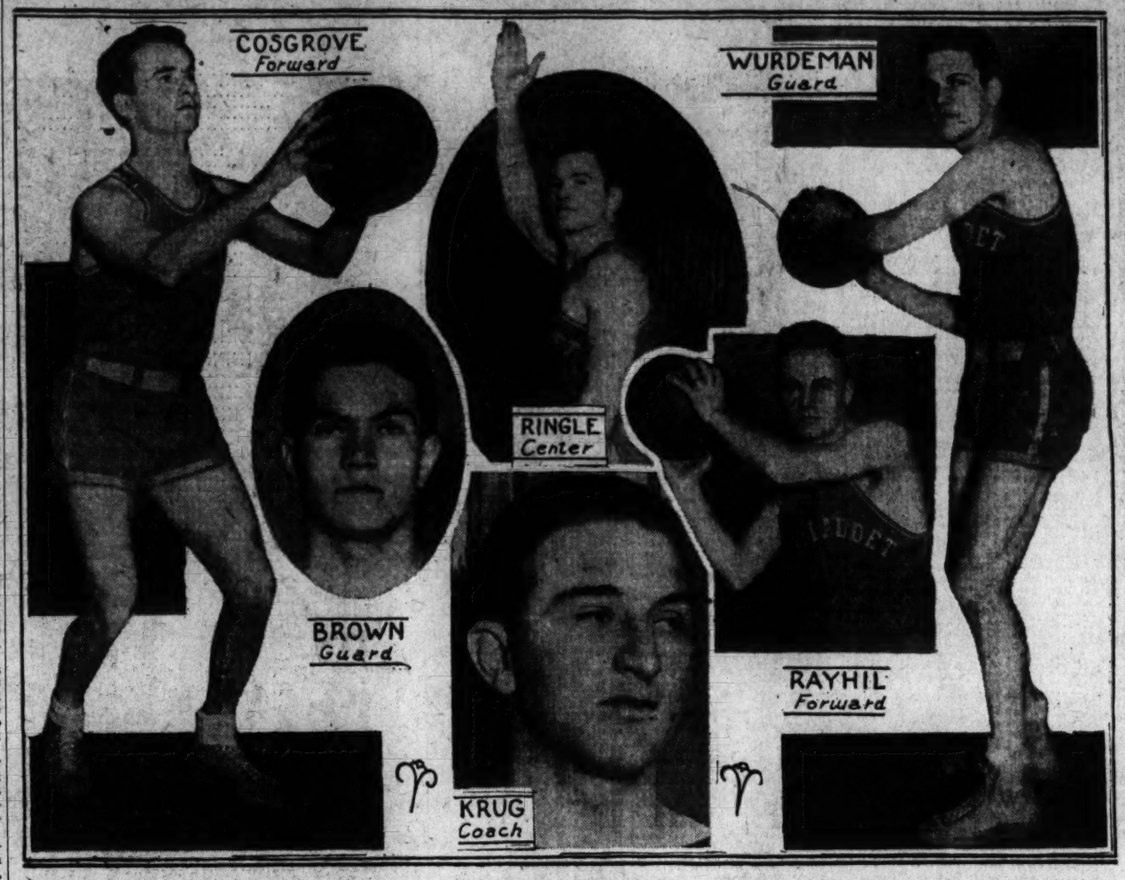
VETERAN PLAYERS CARRY GALLAUDET BANNER



Gallaudet College reasonably anticipates a successful basket ball season. It boasts all of last year's regular quintet and some promising newcomers. Pictured above are a group of Coach Krug's dependables who will bear the burden of the 1930-1931 schedule.

WASH. STATE STRONG ON DEFENSE

'Bama Must Batter Down Powerful Line to Win.

PULLMAN, Wash., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—If the University of Alabama football team hopes to conquer Washington State College in the annual tournament of roses game at Pasadena, New Year's Day, it will have to batter down one of the greatest defensive machines in the land.

The Cougars marched through their long and hard schedule without a defeat to capture the 1930 Pacific Coast Conference grid championship and it was a rock-bound defense and not a rip-roaring offense that carried them into fame.

Only 32 Points Scored Against Cougars.

Washington State was the toughest team in the Coast Conference to score against. Only a total of 32 points were tallied against the Cougars in nine games, including an intersectional tilt with Villanova.

An odd feature of the record is that the College of Idaho, a small school in the Northwest Conference, did the heaviest scoring against the Cougars. The Idaho eleven piled up twelve points on two touchdowns in the opening game of the year, while Coach Babe Hollingbery had his first, second and third teams sitting on the bench.

Southern California, Oregon State College and the University of Idaho managed to register a single touchdown each against the W. S. C. defense in conference games.

California, Montana and Washington failed to score in their clashes with the Cougars.

Probably the most remarkable defensive feat in major football this year was accomplished by the Cougars when they held Washington and Villanova from penetrating inside their 40-yard line.

Y. M. C. A. PLAYS MONROE.

The Y. M. C. A. Big Five will play its first game tonight at the Y against the strong Monroe A. C., entrants in the Community Center League. The game gets under way at 8 o'clock.

Following the tilt the local Y wrestlers will take the mat against the Hagerstown Y. M. C. A. grapplers. Four bouts will be staged.

Extension of Bear Hunting Season in Virginia Sought

Special to The Washington Post.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Dec. 12.—Exclusion of bear hunting from the order for closed hunting season, now in effect in the valley counties, will be recommended to the commission on game and inland fisheries by chairman A. Willis Robertson when it meets in Richmond December 18, Maj. Robertson stated in a letter today to Clerk of Circuit Court J. Robert Switzer.

Mr. Switzer, in behalf of a number of bear hunters in Rockingham, requested a modification of the closed hunting order so that bear, which are numerous in the mountains, can be hunted through January. Many farmers in the Brocks Gap section fear if the bruin is not hunted this and next month he will come down from the mountains and make raids on barnyards, killing sheep and hogs and attacking cattle. The drought, it is declared, has not affected the number of bear in the mountains.

There are half dozen bear hunting clubs in Rockingham County, and these not only act as a barrier to raids in the valley by the bruin but give chase to them when they do make the raids on barnyards.

Maj. Robertson, after hearing the bear hunting case presented by the Rockingham hunters, declared he will recommend the lifting of the ban on bear hunting all over the State, as he could not make an exception of Rockingham County. He said the reason that bear was included in the closing order was to stop hunting altogether so as to give game, decimated by the drought, a chance to recoup in numbers.

Fifteen Candidates, Including Five Holdovers, Seeking Berths on Team; Squad "B" Also to See Action in Games.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 12—Eighteen basket ball games will furnish the activity for the Episcopal High School courtmen this season. The schedule opens officially on January 10, when Technical High School tossers, of Washington, invade the locals' gymnasium for a contest.

Coach Fleming has 15 boys on his varsity squad and the team was rapidly rounding into shape for the campaign.

Five boys from last year's varsity five are seeking positions. They are Charlie Hancock, of Lynchburg, Va., captain of the team, a three year player, who jumps center; "Acy" McDonald, of Asheville, N. C. and Billy Cleveland, of Alexandria, forwards; and "Czar" Train, of Savannah, Ga., and "Al" Orrick, of Washington, guards.

Others on the squad showing exceptional ability at the indoor game are the Taylor Twins, Robert and Stewart, of Baltimore, Md., forwards; Peter Williams, of Pittsburgh, forward; Neal Robertson, of Louisville, Ky., center; Charlie Hooff, of Alexandria, Va., and Tom Evins, of Atlanta, Ga., guards; Stapleton Gooch, of Tampa, Fla., forward; John Mapp, Cambridge, Md., center; and Francis Smith, of Jacksonville, Fla., a forward.

John Mizell, a member of the varsity football team, considered an excellent basket ball player, is expected out for the team in the next week. He is recovering from a gridiron injury.

Squad "B" Team to See Court Action.

A new plan has been decided upon by the Episcopal athletic authorities and that is the arranging of an attractive schedule for the B squad team. More than 30 players are seeking berths. They will open their season on January 13 mixing with the Friends School cord busters.

As is the usual custom, the basket ball season ends for the Maroon and Black courtmen with an engagement against their traditional rival, Woodberry Forest, at Orange, Va., on February 28.

The schedule follows:

December 19, Emerson, practice. January 10, Technical High; 14, Swavely at Manassas; 17, Eastern High; 21, Georgetown Prep; 24, Gilman Country School at Baltimore, Md.; 28, Technical High School, away; 30, Augusta Military Academy at Charlottesville; 31, Virginia Episcopal at Lynchburg, Va.; 31, Class High School at Lynchburg (pending). February 4, Central High; 7, St. Alban's; 9, Shenandoah Valley; 11, St. John's Academy; 14, Eastern High School; 18, Western High, away; 21, Swavely; 25, Emerson; 28, Woodberry Forest at Orange, Va.

"B" SQUAD SCHEDULE.

January 13, Friend's; 24, Landon Preps; 31, Alpha Delta Omega of Alexandria. February 10, Landon Preps, away; 13, Friends, away; 18, Washington and Lee, "B" Squad.

Apache, Celtic Stars Talk on Radio Tonight

Player-coaches and managers of the Apaches and St. Mary's Celtics will talk over Station WJSV at 6:05 tonight on the outlook for the clash of the intercity rivals here tomorrow. Jerry Carroll, former Georgetown U. captain, and Seymour Hall, of the Apaches, will speak along with Rube Hayman, former Virginia U. star and Charlie Corbett, of the Celtics. Jack Tulloch, sports editor of the Alexandria Gazette, will be master of ceremonies.

NORTHERNS VS. JUNIORS.

The Northern 125-pound football team, claimant to the Prince Georges County championship in their weight class, and the Virginia Juniors, who claim the northern Virginia title, will meet tomorrow afternoon at Shipyard Field, Alexandria. The attraction will get under way at 12:30 o'clock.

APACHE A. C. WILL RISK RECORD

Alexandria Celtics to Seek First Victory Over Champions.

FOR more than five years the Apache A. C. eleven has not been defeated by a team in this vicinity with the exception of the Mohawks. This is the record that the District champions will be defending Sunday when the St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, invade Griffith Stadium for a clash at 2:30 o'clock.

While the Apaches feel that they reached their season's peak in that spectacular 12-6 victory over the Mohawks last Sunday, they escaped without a major injury and will take the field in top shape for the renewal of the Alexandria-Washington rivalry.

Reports from the Virginia city indicate that the Apaches will have to be at their best for the contest. Players who were ailing at the time of the previous Apache and Mohawk games are now recovered and Manager Charlie Corbett has rounded up as much new talent as Seymour Hall, the Apache contact man, would allow.

Eligibility Lists For Game.

In fact, Hall was watching out for the Apache record when he signed the Celtics for a second clash and made them adhere to an eligibility list. However, this arrangement gives the Celtics all the players who were in action here before and in addition several others. These "others" are the ones that Alexandria is pinning its hopes of victory on.

In the first Apache-Celtic game, the Little Indians beat the Celtics to the jump, slipping over a touchdown before the Alexandrians got their full strength into the game. After that score, the Celtics had the edge.

Coach Rube Hayman says that the Celtics will start their strongest lineup, which will include Les McMenamin, star full back, who has recovered from an injured ankle.

The Apaches will have had three drills under the lights at the stadium when game time rolls around. Coach Jerry Carroll, aided by Ty Rauber, has been polishing the work of the Indians.

JELLEFF FIVE WINS.

In a free-scoring affair Jelleff A. C. basketers opened their 1930-31 season with a decisive 56-to-44 win over the Boys Club's Optimists last night in the Boys Club Gym. Peruzzi, with twelve double-deckers, led the winners. Vermillion, of the Optimists, shot nine field goals to take second scoring honors.

Cross-Country Champion A "Nurmi" to Middle West

EAST LANSING, Mich., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Nurmi of Middle America.

That's what they're calling Clark Chamberlain, Michigan State College distance star, since he won the intercollegiate cross-country run at Van Cortlandt Park, New York, in near record-breaking time.

Chamberlain is Coach Morton F. Mason's latest distance prodigy. Mason, a former crack star at Oregon State, last year put the midget Lauren P. Brown, against national competition, but he didn't fare as well as Chamberlain.

The national cross-country winner has been running only two years. He never ran a race in high school and when Mason first looked him over he shook his head sadly and said something about "grasshopper legs."

To overcome Chamberlain's fault of lifting his knees high in the air Mason had him run behind Brown. With the danger of being spiked by Brown, Chamberlain remedied his fault.

Chamberlain has no dieting rules. He eats anything desired. The coach says that Chamberlain is naturally a nervous little fellow and a particular diet might put him on edge.

He is a small man. His weight varies from 115 to 125. But, in the words of Mason, he is one of the greatest distance prospects of recent years.

Chamberlain ran on the Michigan State team last year which trailed Maine for the national championship. He also ran on the American track team last summer which defeated the British squad at Chicago.

BOXING MEET SOUGHT BY VIRGINIA

Cavaliers Make Bid for Fifth Conference Tourney.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Southern Conference will be invited by the University of Virginia to hold the fifth Southern Conference boxing tournament in the Memorial Gymnasium here.

James G. Driver, athletic director, who is representing Virginia at the conference meeting in Chapel Hill this week, was instructed to make this request by the University Athletic Council, at a recent meeting. The motion was introduced by Robert Rainey, of Oklahoma City, Okla., twice boxing captain and conference welterweight champion.

Virginia was the first Southern Conference member to adopt boxing and the first to make it a major sport. Five years ago the conference was asked to sponsor it in a tournament here. The tournament has been held in Memorial Gymnasium each year since. Virginia won the first team championship, then North Carolina won twice in succession. It is now held by Florida.

Tourney Bigger Each Year.

Each year the tournament has increased in interest and larger crowds have been attracted. For the last two years the number of teams competing for the Southern Conference title has been larger than that at the intercollegiates in the North. Last March twelve teams competed in the tournament, representing Clemson, Duke, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana State, North Carolina, Sewanee, Tulane, Virginia, V. M. I., V. P. I., and Washington and Lee.

Tarheel Grid Stars May Play for Charity

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—December 27 in Yankee Stadium, New York, probably will see Strud Nash, 1930 Tarheel football captain, and Jim Magner, star half back, on one side of the football line-up in an all-star charity game.

They have been invited to play by Stumpy Thomason, former Georgia Tech star, who is now playing professional football. They'll probably accept the invitation.

Fives Eleven Won 15, Lost 1, Tied 2 in 1930

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 12 (A.P.). The Charlottesville Fives, known over most of the Eastern States, as the hardest of all the midget teams to beat, have closed their season for 1930 with a record that shows they won fifteen games, tied two and lost one. The boys, who represent the Charlottesville School for Boys, coached by Robert Osborne, lost to only the Barium Springs Orphanage, North Carolina, on Thanksgiving Day.

In their 8 games, the Fives scored a total of 536 points against 135 scored by their opponents. They went scoreless in only two games, one when they were defeated by the North Carolina orphanage, and the other when they played the Newport News Blondy Boys to a 0-0 tie.

Fifty-nine boys were used in the games played by the varsity Fives, and 35 played in 13 games played by the second team. The second team won 12 games and lost 1. Coach Osborne tries to allow every boy in the school to participate in the games played by his team, at some time during the season.

10-Club Circuit Plan Of Middle Atlantic

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 12.—A proposal to enlarge the Middle Atlantic League from an eight to a ten-club circuit is of such paramount importance, Charles Holloway, president of the Wheeling Club, stated, that he has asked President Elmer Bailey of the league to call a meeting soon in Pittsburgh to act upon it.

Charleston and Huntington W. Va., have indicated their desire to join the league, Holloway said. The proposed enlargement has the endorsement of the league rules committee, according to Holloway, a committee member.

Holloway said the league also should consider permitting each club to keep its own gate receipts instead of operating on the guarantee basis as at present. He added, however, that this plan would, no doubt, meet the opposition of the smaller clubs. Holloway named Wheeling, Johnstown and Cumberland clubs as the only ones boasting surpluses.

Because of the stimulating effect of night baseball, Holloway said, the league at its annual meeting will show a surplus for the first time in its history.

Alexandria Sports

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 12. — Orrel Mitchell's Gonzaga High School basket ball team will be here Saturday night for a game with the St. Mary's Lyceum Club. In the preliminary attraction the Lyceum Buddies will mix with the Als A. C., of Washington.

Both games will be played in Armory Hall and the first attraction starts at 7:15 o'clock.

The St. Mary's Celtics gridders held a two-hour practice session last night in preparation for their battle Sunday with the Apaches, champions of Washington, at Griffith Stadium. Coach Hayman reports the entire squad is in good shape. Lee McMenamin, star full back, has completely recovered from a sprained ankle and will be at his old post.

The annual "Pep" Club banquet was tendered the high school gridders last night in Lee Camp Hall. Principal Moncure presided as toastmaster. Short talks were made by Coaches Given and Wilson.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

FRED RICE, who gained recognition throughout the East as a basket ball coach while at Catholic University, may return to the coaching game as mentor of the Columbus University quintet.

Rice resigned as Catholic U. coach last spring after eighteen years at the Brookland institution. Pressure of outside business was his reason.

But Rice now is being tempted. He is a professor of law at Columbus and Columbus is struggling to crash big-time basket ball circles. Rice, at Brookland, always liked to take hold of an inexperienced squad and try to develop a winning combination.

The boys at Columbus, extremely ambitious, hope to gain Rice's aid. And Rice, loving the game as he does, may not need a lot of persuasion.

Western Maryland's Record Speaks.

Maryland College has compiled the third best football record in respect to wins and losses in the Nation. Coach Dick Harlow's teams have won 43, lost 7 and tied 2 since 1924.

Only Tennessee and Utah possess better records for this period. The Vols have won 48, lost 4 and tied 4, while the Rocky Mountain champs have won 36, lost 5 and tied 3. Notre Dame is fourth on the list with 48, 8, 2. The next six in the order given are Pittsburgh, Southern California, Stanford, St. Mary's of California, Alabama and Army.

Western Maryland's defensive record stands far above the rest. The Terrors' opponents have scored but 176 points against them.

But one thing detracts from the Western Maryland record. The Terrors have not been campaigning in such strong competition as the others.

Georgia Tech has asked George Washington for a basket ball date sometime late this month. G. W. has offered to play on either of two dates and is now awaiting a reply from the Tornado athletic department.

It is possible that the Atlanta quintet will appear here twice. Benjamin Franklin University has made overtures for a game on December 28 or 30. Tech plays the Arundel Boat Club of Baltimore on the twenty-ninth.

Local Rivalry Seen Aid To Basket Ball Here.

It seems from here that the 1930-1931 college sport season can be made the most notable in years if the older institutions make room on their schedules for the youngsters of the new Washington Collegiate Conference.

Whether they'll admit it or not, the older schools want to make basket ball pay for itself. One of the best means of succeeding in this is to insure lively interest on the part of the fans. Intracity competition naturally will generate such interest, but first there must be intracity competition.

The conference teams are more than willing to play but they are having a difficult time winning recognition of their challenges. Thus far only Catholic U. and Gallaudet have arranged games with conference teams.

DUKE COACH STRESSING DEFENSE

Rogers and Croson, Cocaptains, Show Best Form.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 12.—While Duke's basket ball team used speed and deception, with a strong offensive attack, in winning second place in the Southern Conference for the last two years, in rebuilding his five for the coming season, Coach Eddie Cameron is stressing the defensive, with a slower, more cautious offense.

The two main cogs of the Duke Team this year are the cocaptains Rogers, forward, and Croson, center. They have been under fire in intercollegiate competition for two years and are showing up well in practice this season. Carter, a forward, who played some last year, seems to be waging the best battle for the post opposite Rogers.

However, two sophomore forwards, Horne, 6 feet 3 inches tall, and Capelli, a midget speed demon, who were regular forwards on the frosh outfit last year, are waging a hard fight and will see action.

Shaw Appears Best Of Four Guards.

A veteran guard, Shaw, seems to They have been under fire in intercol- and will be on the first five if he continues to show well. There are four outstanding guards in Shaw, Robertshaw, Colley and Cochrain, sophomores. The latter three will fight it out for the other berth.

Coach Cameron will have reserves during the season. While the veterans will probably make up the first team, a second five composed of a speedy bunch of sophomores will see action.

With the opening game listed for next Friday night, the Devils are being pushed for the fast Villanova Team, one of the best fives in the section of the country. The game will officially open the new gymnasium.

Susquehanna Five Clashes With Alumni

Special to The Washington Post.

Selinsgrove, Pa., Dec. 12.—Former stars of Susquehanna will meet the present varsity outfit tomorrow night in Susquehanna's first basket ball game of the season. Foremost among these is Miller Gerhardt, guard on last year's team. Luke Rhoads' last year's manager and also a good basket ball player, will be in the game.

Rogawicz, a star of yesteryear, will also put in appearance. "Roggy" nearly defeated the varsity last year scoring five field goals. "Tommy" Thomas and "Red" Haney, who comprise the athletic staff at Mifflinburg High School, will also return. Wilfred Groce, Pete Bolig, Johnny Auten, A. Bingaman, Ted Kemmerer, Ralph Witmer and Foster Benfer will all get a chance to break in.

The varsity has been practicing daily for over a week and competition is keen for the positions. Among the forwards who show promise are VanNuys and Rubis, two new men. In addition to Rummel, last year's forward, and Scharfe the following freshmen and sophomores are competing for a position: Keller, Worthington, Slotterback and Brininger.

Lipton Would Bar Metal Masts in Next Contest

Southampton, England, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Sir Thomas Lipton said upon his arrival here today he would rechallenge for the America's Cup as soon as the New York Yacht Racing Association settles upon the rules governing the race.

"I'd challenge tomorrow if I knew what the rules were to be," he said. "I hope they bar metal masts. I don't want a metal mast and I hope they make them illegal for the next race which probably will take place in 1932, if the rules are settled upon."

STOCKS LOSE GAINS AFTER INITIAL RALLY

SOUTHERN RAILWAY UP

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The stock market mustered enough courage to advance during the early hours of today's trading, but finally lost heart and closed lower.

Bonds steadied in large turnover, but corn and cotton were soft, the latter losing 65 cents to $1 a bale. Recent support for wheat was maintained.

The average decline of exactly a point in 90 stocks was sufficient to put the composite in new low ground for the year. Of the three component groups, industrials and rails made new lows, utilities held a point and a half above the old minimum. The market was quiet throughout and sales dropped sharply from yesterday, totaling 2,024,520 shares.

Prominent equities, for the most part, maintained a fairly good tone, despite the late reaction, and much of the softness was of the spotty variety.

Oil Shares Decline.

Oil and motion picture issues had to absorb rather active selling. Nearly a score of the former, including Standards of New York and California and Texas Corporation, penetrated previous resistance points. Standard of New Jersey sagged under 50 and was off more than a point net. Paramount lost two to in a large turnover.

The drop in bar silver to a record low, the weakness of cotton and offers of copper at 10½ cents by the custom smelters indicated that rough places in the commodity situation had not been entirely ironed out. Furthermore, there were reports that further cuts might be made in California crude oil prices if curtailment was not more successful.

In addition, the weekly retail and wholesale trade summaries were rather negative, and hence incentives for much of a rally in stocks were lacking. At their best prices the leaders were a point or two higher but the shorts refused to be drawn in and the market slipped from early afternoon until the close.

Various Uncertainties Cited.

Dun's review said various uncertainties were keeping the business situation obscure, adding that "the persistence of commodity price unsettlement remains an unsatisfactory aspect" and that only "isolated instances of steadiness" had developed. Holiday shopping has been retarded in some sections by unseasonable weather, Bradstreet's pointed out, asserting that the volume of December trade equaled the value of a year ago at only a few centers.

Two and a half per cent call money was a surprise. The rate had held at two since September 29 and renewed at the old figure today, only to move up shortly afternoon. The rise was generally attributed to withdrawals by banks seeking to increase their holdings of cash. Firmer money would be normal at this time of year, for the Christmas season naturally brings the largest demands for currency.

Weakness of bar silver was said to have contributed to the decline in cotton, particularly in Liverpool, where business from China has been brought to a standstill because of the break in the metal. The December contract here sold as low as 9.70 cents.

Wheat Prices Unchanged.

Corn's net losses ranged from ⅝ to 1 cent, reflecting increased receipts in Chicago and large Argentine exports. Wheat closed virtually stationary. There were reports of cold weather in the Southwest and a better export demand was noted.

Bethlehem Steel was heavy in the late trading, sinking 2 points to a new low. Rails showed some irregularity.

One or two point losses in Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific and New York Central were offset by advances in Rock Island, Southern Railway, Frisco and Pennsylvania.

U. S. Steel Off Slightly.

United States Steel, one of the stocks to rally two points, closed fractionally lower. General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Kennecott, Radio and American Can closed steady to firm, but American Telephone Turned a 2-point advance into a similar loss during the last half hour.

Conspicuous weakness was shown by the "A" stock of Burns Bros., a New York City coal company, which broke 28 points. The selling was said to represent forced liquidation. Anaconda Copper, Paramount, Fox Film, Eastman Kodak, Transamerica, Standard Oil of New York, Standard of California and Texas Corporation lost 3 to 2.

Foreign exchanges eased. Canadian dollars were quoted at slightly firmer rates, but leading Europeans sagged. The Spanish peseta lost more than a third of a cent.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—An early advance in cotton was followed by renewed weakness today under a renewal of liquidation and Southern selling, which sent prices off to new low records for the season. New December contracts sold off from 9.95 to 9.70 and May from 10.54 to 10.30 and the market closed at these figures, with the tone barely steady at a net decline of 13 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 5 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. A full response to the latter was prevented by some overnight selling orders, but they were quite promptly absorbed by covering, while there was some buying for a rally after the extended declines earlier in the week. This demand was sufficient to send the market about 8 to 10 points net higher, but after advancing to 10.00 for new January and 10.28 for March the market again weakened.

The failure of the buying to broaden more importantly on the early rally in view of the supposedly improved technical position of the market, was evidently a disappointment to some of the early buyers and there was some reselling, while there also seemed to be a little more selling by the South. Some stop orders were uncovered as prices broke through the low level of the previous day and the pressure continued in the late trading with new January selling at 9.75 and March at 10.03. Closing quotations were near the lowest prices of the day on most positions.

The further decline in the market for bar silver came in for considerable comment as contributing factor in the decline and there may have been some disappointment over the figures of the New York Cotton Exchange service placing consumption in this country for November at 421,000 bales compared with 444,000 in October and 542,000 in November. This report, however, indicated a daily rate of consumption in November slightly higher than that in October, and the features most generally mentioned in connection with the decline were the continued Southern selling and the recent falling off in trade demand.

Liverpool cables said that hedging was light in that market with prices higher before the local opening on covering and continental buying. Exports today, 59,411. Making 3,555,591 so far this season. Port receipts, 49,267. U. S. port stocks, 4,148,603.

SIGNS OF RECOVERY DEVELOP IN BONDS

Several Second-Grade and Convertible Rails Score Pronounced Advances.

FOREIGN GROUP SOFTENS

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—After a four-day period of steadily declining prices, signs of an upturn developed in the bond market today.

Attracted by the high yields afforded by issues that have been unduly depressed, buyers were more active than they have been some weeks in accumulating domestic corporate issues. The railroad list, which had led the decline, was the chief beneficiary of buying interest and gains in some instances were as large as the recent daily dips.

A few utility and industrial issues joined the advance but buying was of a highly selective character and bidding was cautious. Selling pressure was considerably lighter, however, and the average declines were more moderate than in recent sessions.

Turnover of $12,000,000.

The turnover held at the highest level of the fall season and for the second sucessive day exceeded the $12,000,000 mark.

The bond market totally ignored the advance in call money to 2½ per cent for the first time in three months, regarding it as indicating only a temporary firmness in the money market. United States obligations were actively higher, and the average gains were 3-32ds of a point—the best since the group reached a new high level for the year a month ago.

Most of the large gains in the rail group were registered by convertibles and second-grade issues. Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1949 and 1950, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Rock Island 4½s and Chesapeake Corporation 5s advanced 1½ to 2½ points.

Many Second-Grade Rails Lose.

St. Paul 5s of 1975 rebounded 2½ and Erie llen issues gained 3 points. Lehigh Valley 4s rose 4, Western Pacific first 5s, 4½, and Frisco 4½s were up 1½. Many second-grade issues, which as a group have followed the trend of shares closely, moved into new lows for the year.

The downward trend of foreign loans was featured by the reaction in Italian bonds. In an unusually large turnover the Government 7 per cent loan dipped 3 points and closed 2¼ net lower, at a new year's minimum. Other Italian bonds—municipals and industrials—declined about 2 points each.

The German group was again soft. The 5½s sagged a point, and there were larger declines in bank issues and some of the industrials. Firmness of Argentine obligations was in sharp contrast with softness in other Latin Americans. Bolivian 8s reacted 12 points on a few sales and the 7s dropped to a new year's low at 39, off 5 on the day.

WASHINGTON GAS CO. PLANNING ADDITIONS

3,000,000 Cubic Feet Daily to Be Added to Output by January 15.

NEW "SET" COMPLETED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Improvements which will enable the local plant of the Washington Gas Light Co. to produce 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day more than the present output will be completed on or before January 15, according to Walter M. Russell, chief engineer of the company. The present figure of daily production has been reliably estimated at 26,000,000 cubic feet.

Work has been going on under Mr. Russell's supervision to improve and modernize the three largests "sets," or gas making machines, for the past several months. To date, one new set has been completed, adding approximately 1,000,000 cubic feet to the company's capacity. Improvements, for which an expenditure of $100,000 was provided, are being made on the eastern plant of the company near Anacostia bridge.

Following reports yesterday of completion of a merger between Fairfield-Western Dairy, of Baltimore, with National Dairy Products Corporation, officials of Chevy Chase Dairy, local company, also reported sought by the corporation, said last night the matter was still in formative stage and that so far as they knew, no progress had been made.

Breuninger to Be Board's Head.

Mr. Breuninger, one of the founders of the corporation and its first president, stated that its work had grown to the point that it required more time than he could possibly devote to it. He said he desired to be relieved of the presidency effective January 1, 1931, so that he could give more attention to other business. The directors expressed their appreciation of Mr. Breuninger's service in connection with the progress of the company; accepted his resignation with regret and requested he remain with the organization as chairman of the board, to which he agreed. He was unanimously elected to this office.

An election to fill the presidential vacancy resulted in unanimous choice of Mr. Carr, a vice president of the corporation. Mr. Carr, eminently qualified for this position, is a realtor, builder and appraiser. He was recently elected president of the Real Estate Board and at present is a director of the Board of Trade, having held this position since 1921. He is assistant real estate appraiser for the American Security & Trust Co., local assistant appraiser for the New York and Prudential Life Insurance Co.'s. He has been a member of the board and appraiser of the Perpetual Building Association for nineteen years, is a member of the advisory council of Riggs National Bank, and an expert real estate appraiser for the Department of Justice in the local Federal building program. A member of the board of managers of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co., he is also a former treasurer, director and appraiser of the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co.

At a recent meeting of directors of the corporation a semiannual dividend of 3 per cent was declared on the preferred stock to owners of record as of December 20, payable December 31. The Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty Corporation is now located in its own building at 1610 K street northwest.

Emerson Bromo Seltzer Dividend.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of Emerson's Bromo Seltzer, Inc., the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share was declared on the preferred Class "A" common and Class "B" common, payable January 2 to stockholders of record December 15. The Class "A" stock of this corporation is listed on the Washington, Baltimore and New York Curb Exchanges. This issue was brought out in October, 1929, by the Century Trust Co., of Baltimore, and Waggaman, Brawner & Co., Inc., of this city, the latter being represented on the board by Maj. Ennalls Waggaman.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of Continental Trust Co. a dividend of 1½ per cent was declared, payable December 31 to shareholders of record December 26.

Directors of the United States Savings Bank have just declared their regular quarterly dividend of 7½ per cent, payable December 31.

Addressograph Merger Plans Meet Approval

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Stockholders of Addressograph International Corporation today approved the proposed consolidation with American Multigraph Corporation and approved an increase in capital stock to 1,000,000 shares from 750,000. A cash dividend of 35 cents was declared by directors for the final quarter this year, placing the new stock on a $1.40 annual basis. The new rate is equal to $1.40 on the old Addressograph stock, which was receiving $1.50 annually. The dividend will apply to all stock to be issued in connection with the merger.

The merger plan calls for formation of a new company, the Addressograph - Multigraph Corporation, 1.4 shares of which will be exchanged for each share of American Multigraph. Addressograph International stock is to be exchanged on a share-for-share basis.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Commercial failures during the past week totaled 562, a decrease of 36 from the previous week, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. Improvement was shown in the East, the South and on the Pacific coast. Defaults with liabilities of more than $5,000 each declined to 365, against 379 in the previous week. Insolvencies for the corresponding week of 1929 totaled 514, and those with liabilities of more than $5,000 numbered 285.

A sharp reversal of trend from the firmness of last week developed in the hide markets this week, Dun's says. The setback, however, was at least partly accounted for by the fact that the takeoff involved in the latest brisk trading was of less desirable quality. The willingness of tanners to purchase gave some encouragement, and the somewhat better reports on leather conditions in New England were considered moderately stimulating. The improvement in that section has been mainly in upper leathers, and it is felt that January will bring an increased production of shoes.

Harriman & Co., members of the New York stock and curb exchanges, today issued a statement that they are in no way connected with the firms included in the consolidation of Brown Brothers & Co., W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., and Harriman Brothers & Co.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., is adding machinery to the Dixie plant at Gadsen, Ala., and will increase output to 7,000 tires a day from 6,000. The working force will be increased by about 400 men.

Cotton goods were inactive today in the gray goods division with prices easier. Moderate sales of bedspreads and curtain materials for future delivery were made. Flat and Canton crepes were being sold more freely for cutting. Burlaps continued easy. Wool goods were very quiet.

Raw silk futures closed irregular; sales 350 bales, December 234. March 234, May 233. Open market quotations (60-day basis), Shanghai steam extra 260. Canton double extra A, 14-16s, 185. Japanese crack double extra, 275.

Harry M. Adams, president of the Western Pacific Railroad, said that the road's traffic continued to hold up well during November. Local loadings were ahead of 1929, he added, but due to slackening in westbound traffic, the total number of cars handled was about 40 under last year. Mr. Adams said it was too early to estimate the results for December, but the road probably will be unable to close the year with a balance for stock.

The cotton market has been weak and unsettled during the past week with prices reaching the lowest levels touched by futures here since the early years of the World War. Buying, apparently, has been confined to covering or scale down buying for trade or investment account, while there has been Southern selling as well as a considerable volume of liquidation, presumably of old long accounts. The pressure has not been particularly heavy or aggressive and the selling has been in comparatively small lots for the most part but the market has appeared to lack support and prices have yielded quite readily with December contracts selling off to 9.70 and May to 10.30, making declines of about $9.00 to 9.50 per bale from the high prices touched on the rallies of late last October.

Stockholders of United Electric Coal Companies, which has its operating office at Danville, Ill., today authorized directors to proceed with a plan of moratorium, involving forbearance by creditors for a period of two years. The plan would involve refinancing by a blanket first mortgage on the company's properties, and also probably would involve issuance of 35,000 shares of bonus stock, which may be repurchased at between $5 and $7 a share to the end of 1933. Under the plan, banks would agree to arrange a credit of not exceeding $500,000, of which $165,000 would be used for the payment of small creditors and $125,000 to open a new unit at the Duquoin, Ill., plant. Burwell B. Smith, of York, Pa., and Joseph Uihlein and R. E. Schumacker, of Milwaukee, were elected directors.

American Machine & Metals Co., formerly Manhattan Electrical Supply Co., today asked shareholders to deposit their stock under a five-year voting trust agreement to assure continuance of the present management. Four New York Stock Exchange firms are supporting the plan.

Bar Silver Prices Drop To 32¼ Cents Ounce

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Prices of copper and bar silver slumped today, the reaction in silver being particularly acute, reaching a new all-time low at 32¼ cents an ounce and 1⅜ cents under last Tuesday's record low quotation. Custom smelters were offering copper in the domestic market today at 10½ cents a pound delivered. This is one-half cent under the price earlier in the week.

The current slump in silver compares with 46.78 cents the first of the year. This has theoretically reduced Chinese purchasing power about 28 per cent. Slack demand from industrial consumers and sales by the Far East to buy exchanges of countries on a gold standard is said to have caused the latest weakness of the metal.

This announcement resulted in a drop from 38 to 23 shillings in Hudsons Bay shares on the London Stock Exchange.

RECKLESS DRIVING HIT

Tried yesterday on a charge of illegal possession of liquor, arising out of a raid on a roadhouse near Meadows, Md., L. S. Rorer was fined $75 by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Prince Georges County Police Court. Rorer appealed and is at liberty on $200 bond.

Policemen who raided the Lone Star Inn on the Camp Spring-Meadows road, said they found several pint bottles of liquor and a quantity in a jug. Rorer did not deny the existence of the contraband, but based his appeal on a plea that he did not know it was there, and that patrons had brought it.

John Washington, Negro, was fined $47 on four charges brought against him by W. A. Rogers, State policeman. Rogers said the man was driving recklessly, had no registration card, no license and was using tags not his. Judge Sheriff fined him $25 for the first offense, $10 for the second and third, and $2 for the fourth.

Waverly E. Young, of T. B., was fined $11 for reckless driving and using tags issued to another person. Rogers said Young, when pursued, abandoned his car while it was in motion, and that the machine ran into the yard of Frank Pallan, State's attorney, knocking down a fence and a valuable fir tree.

C. H. Mason, of Pleasant street near Nicholas avenue southeast, and Van B. Rynolds were fined $10 each for reckless driving. Robert K. Cobb, of O street near North Capitol street, was fined $5 on a similar charge, preferred by A. C. Thompson, former constable.

Jackson Hancock, of E street southeast, near Fourteenth street, paid a fine of $20 for hunting without a license in the county. Charges of assault against Edwin S. Hager, of Bradbury Heights, were dismissed. They had been made by his wife.

Married for 33 years, Albert P. Kolbe wants a divorce from Emma J. Kolbe, of Glendale, according to a petition filed in the circuit court at Upper Marlboro. He says that she deserted him in 1925, and that they have not been living under the same roof for two years.

Clarence M. Roberts is attorney for the man. The couple have eight children.

The dispute between Margaret E. Boswell, of Capitol Heights, and her husband, Albert E. Boswell, which started in police court in that town, moved to the circuit court yesterday, when she filed a petition for absolute divorce. The disagreement in lower court was over which of the pair should have their child, Joseph L. Boswell, 3 years old.

The woman, now, through Attorney John S. White, asks not only the divorce, but the custody of the child. She also wants alimony and an order for her husband to pay her lawyer's fees.

The couple were married in 1927, and separated in 1928. Mrs. Boswell charges unfaithfulness.

Through Attorney Frank M. Stephens, Mrs. Ann Rebecca Hardesty asked to be divorced from Wilfred Hardesty, on the ground that he deserted her in 1927. They were married in 1920, and have an 8-year-old daughter, whom the mother wants the court to award to her.

The victorious Democrats in Prince Georges County spent $7,305 in the last election; the Republicans spent about $600 more, their local expenditures being $7,925. Reports by the treasurers of the two organizations are the basis for the figures.

The State central committee contributed $2,000 to the Democratic war chest, according to the report of State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer. Their final, preelection rally, a dinner at the Metropolitan Hotel, cost $232.75. This was the largest single expenditure, outside of the amount allotted to the various districts.

The Republican State Central committee appropriated $1,000 for the county organization the report of William G. Brooke, treasurer, shows. The largest individual contribution was from S. Gardner Coale, chairman of the county body, who donated $760. Stationery was their largest item, costing $483.10.

This puts the total cost at about $3,000 including what the county paid to conduct the primary and the general election.

The largest gift to the Democrats was $250. Adherents of the party who contributed more than $100 were: Harry Lusby, James W. Rodgers, Brice Bowie, R. Ernest Smith, M. S. Hall, S. D. Hall, L. G. Sasscer, Alan Bowie, R. E. Brown, W. M. Grimes, F. H. Crown, Mrs. M. W. Browning, O. W. Phair, S. W. Gambrill, J. Guy Bell, C. C. Marbury, W. P. Keys, Edward Clifton, W. H. Anglin, K. R. Mullikin, John H. Schultz, A. G. Miller, Joseph H. Blandford, T. Howard Duckett, James C. Rogers, J. Chew Sheriff and C. S. Early.

Next to Coale's, the largest individual contribution to the Republican fund was $240. Those who contributed more than $100 were William T. Davis, James H. Davis, George N. Wells, William A. Duvall, W. Curtis Hopkins, Thomas H. Garrison, George N. Bowen, A. Kingsley Love, John H. Petty, Howard Fetty, William H. Duvall, Peter Duvall, W. A. Middleton, Frank Small, jr., R. K. Small, Charles A. Ryon, E. H. Garner, George P. McCeney, Bird H. Dolby, Richard Zantzinger, John B. Cochran, A. R. Hassall, Margaret Lemon, Agnes Hassall, A. P. Ryon, W. R. Smallwood, Oliver Metzerott, Miss Henrietta Metzerott, Charles Eickman, Robert G. MacCartee and Margaret MacCartee.

Two drives on law violation by motorists have been started by State policemen in Prince Georges County. At the same time that authorities at the Laurel Substation announced speeders would be strictly curbed, Policeman W. A. Rogers made it known he would check up closely on the registration of cars using the Marlboro and the southern Maryland pikes.

The newly widened Baltimore boulevard offers a tempting vista to drivers who have more speed than they can use on ordinary roads, and several had accidents recently have been caused by yielding to the temptation. This is the reason behind the Laurel crusade.

Rogers said many people who live in Maryland have been buying District tags because they are cheaper, and warned that those car owners who live in Maryland must have Maryland tags. In checking on the registration, he will note also the drivers' permits. Yesterday he had eight charges of no license, no registration and wrong tags before the police court.

John Donn, a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad employe, was hurt yesterday at the Brentwood station, when he was struck by a baggage truck, which had been hurled aside by a passing train. Donn was taken to Providence Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, and was kept at the institution for observation.

Albert D. Rush, of Lanham, Md., was made defendant in a $10,000 damage suit filed by Robert C. Plush, of Frederick, in the Prince Georges Circuit Court. An accident figuring in the suit happened near Frederick.

Papers in the case state that Plush was injured when his car was in a collision last August with one driven by Rush. The plaintiff is represented by the law firm of Harold Tschudi and Hershey, Donaldson, William & Stanley.

TRADE BODIES FIGHT SUITS IN CHANCERY

Demurrers Entered to Many of 1,077 Actions Filed in Arlington.

TEST CASE WAS HEARD

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Wholesale filing of chancery suits for collection of delinquent taxes is being strenuously opposed by the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington County branch of the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax Real Estate Board, according to indications provided by filing of score of demurrers to the 1,077 suits in chancery instituted by the Commonwealth's attorney of Arlington County, in the name of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

About eighteen months ago several hundred similar suits were filed in the name of the board of supervisors, for which that board advanced over $4,500 to pay fees of officers. A test case was taken to the Court of Appeals, where a decision adverse to the county was rendered, and the county lost over $3,300 in fees.

Charles T. Jesse, of the firm of Jesse, Phillips and Klinge, defense attorneys in these suits, said yesterday:

"I am unable to find any justification for filing these suits. In no case do the costs amount to less than $9.60. Numbers of them are instituted for the collection of less than $2 in taxes, and in one case the amount of taxes claimed is 80 cents. Just how ridiculously excessive the expense of these proceedings is can be seen by inspecting the records of the clerk's office. In one case, costs amounted to $471.85, of which amount the Commonwealth's attorney received $275 as fees and the amount of taxes collected was $96.91.

"Representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and Real Estate Board advised me that these proceedings are militating against the sale of real estate and placing of loans thereon, because the real estate on which the taxes are levied may be sold without any notice whatever to holders of the notes, secured by deeds of trust on the property. Their chief complaint is that the taxes, in a great many cases, would be paid immediately, in response to a notice by telephone or letter, that the filing of these suits was contemplated."

Struck in the face with the butt of a gun by two men who were not recognized, Paul Dowdler, manager of the Shell gasoline station on the Military road leading to Fort Myer, was held up and robbed of $25 last night.

Officer Norman Carson, of Arlington County, answered a call from the station, but the men had made their getaway.

According to police the men were dressed in blue serge suits, wore light felt hats and were about 25 years old.

According to announcement last night by S. P. Vanderslice, principal of the Washington Lee High School, Tolbott Riggs, coach of St. John's College, will address the student body at a special assembly in the auditorium Tuesday morning.

At this meeting Coach O. L. Driver will present letters to the following members of the football team: Stanley Mortimer, Capt. Harry Chase, Howard Crouch, Allen Goodwin, Lewis Eaton, DuVall Allen, Elwood Clements, Frank Scott, Arthur Hammond, Paul Robinson, Archie Via, James Hood, Joseph Ellis, Clifton Stoneburner, Pierce Bragg, and Wilson Goodrick, manager.

The County Pension Board for Confederate Veterans, consisting of Mrs. Mary Perkins Snyder, Ashton C. Jones and W. O. Pickett, met last night at the home of Mrs. Snyder and elected her chairman.

The board was appointed by the county clerk, William H. Duncan, and its duties are to investigate and file pension papers for Confederate soldiers.

Word was received at the courthouse yesterday that William E. Van Deuson and Jesse E. Chaney, two of the county's young lawyers, have successfully passed the State bar examination, recently held at Richmond.

S. P. Vanderslice, principal of the Washington-Lee High School, announced yesterday that he has been advised by Dr. William R. Smithy, chairman of the State educational committee that the high school was elected as a member of the Southern Association of Accredited Secondary Schools and Colleges at the annual meeting held recently at Atlanta.

The first school trimester having been completed, 70 pupils from the elementary schools will enter Washington-Lee High School. These students will attend classes in the afternoon until additions ot the building have been completed. With these new students the enrollment will reach close to the 1,400 mark, according to S. P. Vanderslice, principal.

Funeral services for James F. Wood, 47, who died at his home in Radnor Heights Thursday morning, will be conducted in the chapel at Fort Myer today at 11 o'clock, by the Rev. J. J. Dimon, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, of Washington. Burial will be in the Arlington National Cemetery.

Beside his widow, he is survived by two daughters, Ruth and Emma, and two sons, William and Theodore.

Services tomorrow at St. George's Episcopal Church will be conducted by the rector, the Rev. Henry J. Miller. His subject at the 11 o'clock service will be "All Christians-Ministers."

In the evening at 7 o'clock the young people's song service will be conducted and at o'clock the Young People's Discussion Club will meet in the Rectory.

Morning and evening services at the Clarendon Baptist Church tomorrow will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell. At the morning service his subject will be, "The Soul of Prosperity." In the evening he will preach on "The Hour has Come."

Lutheran Church services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Clarendon Presbyterian Church. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor of the Grace Lutheran Church, Washington. Following the services a brief business meeting will be held.

The Ashton Heights Citizens' Association will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday night in the Women's Clubhouse at 8 o'clock.

Suggestions for Higher Postal Rates.

(In view of Postmaster General Brown's proposal that the Government raise its postal rates as a means of solving its debt problems.)

LOVE LETTERS (first class): Ardent epistles pledging undying love between two persons under 25 years of age, 10 cents.

LOVE LETTERS (second class): Same communications between persons between 25 and 35, if not exceeding three pounds in weight—the letters, not the persons—50 cents.

DUNNING LETTERS: Communications of this type shall be stamped according to grades. The present postage of 2 cents shall be considered enough for a first dunning letter, as it is so much wasted effort, anyhow. The second dunning letter shall require a 4-cent stamp because of the slight chance it may bring results. Third, fourth, fifth and sixth letters shall jump up 2 cents each. All letters beyond the seventh shall require a 50-cent stamp, but if after a fifteenth dunning letter the sender has obtained no results, all subsequent letters shall be carried free, out of governmental sympathy.

CHAIN LETTERS: A $4 stamp, if the penalty for breaking chain is limited to a long siege of sickness; $10 stamp if violent death is promised.

• • • •

(c) Letters from wives written on both sides of a double sheet of paper describing the hotel in detail, the view, the people at the next table, the hotel orchestra and the poor elevator service, $1 in 2-cent stamps, the idea being that something should be done to end a wholly unnecessary vacation ritual.

VACATION SOUVENIR POSTALS: (a) All views of memorial libraries, fire houses, soldiers' monuments, Revolutionary War fortifications, village greens, historic bridges, 10 cents.

(b) All views of inns or houses where Washington once slept, $5.
